NEW DEAL STEPS UP PRESSURE ON NATION'S PRESS

Hands Out Favors to Friendly Papers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[Special.]—Recent developments illuminate the steady enlargement by the Roosevelt administration of the federal government's power to control the press. Never before has it been possible for the political party in control of the central government to subject newspapers to so many insidious influences to still criticism and procure editorial support.

There are now eleven government agencies possessing the power to aid, punish, or otherwise regulate the press. Theoretically there is no censorship of the press and cannot be under the first article of the bill of rights, but practically a potent influence upon newspaper utterance is exerted by the power of the government to grant or withhold favors, to mete out or withhold penalties.

Newspapers Hit by Depression.

Newspapers most amenable to such influences are those in financial straits, of which there is a large and steadily increasing number as a result of the ravages of the depression. The newspaper owner who seeks a loan from the government learns, like other business men, that he has a better chance of getting it if he stands well politically in Washington. The general rule under the current Democratic régime with regard to the dispensation of government favors is that "anti-New Dealers need not apply." Hence, those seeking loans or other favors are careful to present a record devoid of offense to the New Deal.

The loans made to newspapers are elaborately concealed in the mazes of red tape, for publicity would destroy the influence of the press in favor of the administration in the case of newspapers whose independence had been destroyed by the exigencies of government financial aid. Thus, the Reconstruction Finance corporation is able to say that no loans have been made to newspapers, but that loans to sixty-eight borrowers in the paper manufacturing and wood pulp industry aggregating $23,236,850 have been authorized. Of this total $2,687,134 was canceled and $9,857,537 has been disbursed up to date.

Need Congressional Inquiry.

So skilfully is the trail covered up that nothing short of a congressional investigation could disclose how many newspapers are in hock to the New Deal. An illustration of the manner in which loans to newspapers are concealed is afforded by the case of David Stern, an ardent New Dealer, who owns the New York Post and the Philadelphia Record.

It was known for months that Stern had obtained a large loan, reported to be a million dollars, from some government agency. It was known that the President himself had used his influence to get the huge loan for his friend and supporter. The Reconstruction Finance corporation insisted, however, that no loan had been made to Stern or even applied for. Likewise the federal reserve board professed ignorance of any Stern loan.

It required literally weeks of digging by a TRIBUNE reporter to unearth that loan to Stern. It was finally discovered in the Federal Reserve bank of Philadelphia, despite the efforts of that institution to keep the facts from the public. The Philadelphia reserve bank furnished directly $400,000 of the million dollar loan and the remaining $600,000 was derived from the rediscount at the reserve bank of Stern notes by the Camden Trust company of Camden, N. J., and the Philadelphia National bank.

Stern Loan Is Unsecured.

Stern's million dollar loan was unsecured. Part of it was procured under that provision of the law that "in exceptional circumstances, when it appears to the satisfaction of a federal reserve bank that an established industrial or commercial business located in its district is unable to obtain requisite financial assistance on a reasonable basis from the usual sources," the reserve bank may make direct loans.

In 1935 the RFC was under fire as the result of the action it had taken to keep two Tennessee newspapers from passing into anti-New Deal control. The RFC had come into possession of $250,000 bonds of the Tennessee Publishing company, pub-

Roosevelt Car Averts Crash by a Few Feet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's assumption of the rôle of Mr. Average Citizen—traveling by automobile without motorcycle escort — almost led to tragedy today.

As he was returning from a visit to the Charlottesville, Va., home of his third son, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., an automobile darted in front of his sedan near Clarendon, Va., within sight of the capital. Monty Schneider, the President's chauffeur, thrust down on the brake. The tires screamed and an accident was averted by a scant two feet.

Comes to Sudden Stop.

The President's car came to a complete stop. Cars in the motorcade, accompanying the President and traveling at a speed in excess of fifty miles an hour, zigzagged to screeching stops across the highway.

Before the secret service men, in a car behind the President had come to a rough stop at the side of his car, the offending automobile was far up the hill side road.

President Bans Escort.

The trip to and from Charlottesville, where Franklin Jr. is studying law and has established a home for his wife, the former Ethel du Pont, and their infant son, Franklin III., was one of the few the President has taken without the accompaniment of screaming sirens.

The motorcycle escort was banned by his specific order. He insisted that in the journey to the old University of Virginia town he was playing the rôle of Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt and not that of the nation's chief executive.

BRITON GLIDES OVER ENGLISH CHANNEL; LANDS IN FRANCE

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—G. H. Stevenson, 27 year old member of the London Gliding club, made today what was believed to be the first unassisted glider flight across the English channel. He took off from Dunstable and landed near Boulogne three hours later. He had traveled 125 miles.

The channel has been crossed before by glider, but with an airplane helping the craft to attain altitude.

In Air 5½ Hours.

BERLIN, April 22.—Germany has laid claim to a new world record in long distance gliding to a prearranged destination. Hans Braeutigam of the National Socialist flying corps flew 218 miles in a two seater sailplane. The flight was made from Gross-Rueckerswalde to Vienna. Braeutigam carried a passenger and was in the air 5½ hours.

TYRONE POWER AND ANNABELLA TO WED TODAY

Hollywood, Cal., April 22.—(AP)—Tyrone Power, film star, will wed Annabella, the Parisian actress, tomorrow at his mother's home in the Belair district.

The simple home wedding will take place some time in the afternoon with Superior Judge William J. Palmer performing the ceremony.

Best man will be Don Ameche. Pat Paterson [Mrs. Charles Boyer] will be the matron of honor.

Tyrone and Annabella applied for a marriage license last Tuesday. He will be 25 on May 5 and she will be 26 July 14. This will be the third marriage for the bride-to-be, who was born Suzanne Georgette Charpentier, but changed her name to Ann Carpentier. It will be Power's first marriage.

PONY OUTRACES BICYCLE RIDER; PRIZES SHARED

Hereford, Tex., April 22.—(AP)—John Douglas Pitman, 13 years old, said a cow pony could outrace a bicycle. Tommy Wilson, 11, demurred.

They settled the argument today over a sixteen mile course. John Douglas and his pony came in first—by 150 yards.

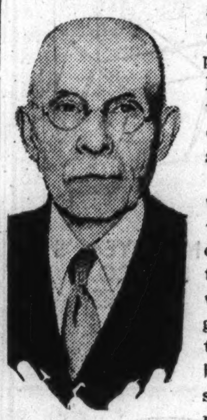
Despite the blow to his prestige, Tommy took consolation by sharing in all the ice cream sodas the pair could drink—the gift of business men.

Snip Needs No 'Tally-Ho!' to Send Him Fox Hunting

Bolton Notch, Conn., April 22.—(AP)—Snip, E. J. Finley's 2 year old foxhound, returned from a solo jaunt in the woods the other day and laid at his master's feet a fox puppy, scared but unharmed. Finley found the den and gave the fox back to mamma.

Governor Tells Michigan: Pray to Foil Lobby

Lansing, Mich., April 22.—[Special.]—Gov. Luren D. Dickinson today asked Michigan church people to pray for Michigan legislators during the closing weeks of the current session.



Gov. Luren Dickinson.

The executive, who is 80 years old and a devout churchman, said the law makers will need divine guidance to resist the efforts of lobbyists who are seeking enactment of bills involving expenditures greater than the state's resources admit, if a balanced budget is to be maintained.

"I am asking the churches of the state," Dickinson said, "in their services April 30, to ask divine wisdom in assisting the members of the legislature to have courage, conviction and wisdom."

Cites Terrorist Campaign.

Citing the record of past sessions when he said lobbyists representing strong blocs literally have terrorized legislators into doing their bidding, the governor warned that this situation may prevail again unless taxpayers properly fortify their legislative representatives.

"The fear of these organizations," said the governor, citing specifically lobbyists for schools, highways and institutions, "with their floods of telegrams, letters, and petitions, has overwhelmed members of the legislature and brought about submission to their demands because there was no real organization functioning in the interest of the taxpayers."

Dickinson reiterated his determination to follow the objective of the late Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, of "balancing the budget without new taxes."

Demands Pledges Be Kept.

"These promises must be kept," said Dickinson, "or faith in the party will be lost. I am told that such a program will meet with overwhelming opposition from organized lobbyists for various interests.

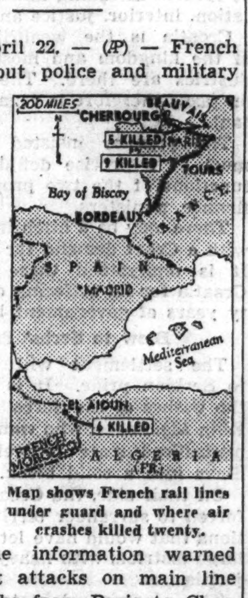
"Will the members of the legislature be overwhelmed, lack courage to face the facts and stand for the poor taxpayers, as has been the case in so many instances in the past? Political futures have made them yield in the past. Will they yield now or will they help carry through promises made in the campaign?"

Dickinson said the executive office is taking the lead in drafting an economy budget, reducing its annual appropriation for the coming biennium from $57,000 to $42,000.

FRENCH GUARD RAILWAYS; FEAR SABOTAGE PLOT

Secret Warning Stirs Police.

PARIS, April 22. — (AP) — French authorities put police and military guards along two important railway lines and at a few places in Paris tonight. They had received a tip similar to one that had reached them before the recent burning of the liner Paris.



Map shows French rail lines under guard and where air crashes killed twenty.

High police said the information warned them against attacks on main line railroad tracks from Paris to Cherbourg and Bordeaux.

The Aquitania boat train from Paris, carrying a large stock of gold consigned to the United States, as well as passengers, was closely guarded.

Embassy Guards Doubled.

Police were assigned to watch embassies, foreign travel bureaus and public monuments in Paris. It was said the guards were doubled.

After the liner Paris burned at Le Havre, it was disclosed mobile guards at Nice had received an anonymous letter warning of sabotage against vessels at Le Havre. The letter was received before the vessel burned.

Six Italian employés of a factory working on national defense orders at Toulon today were ordered expelled from France. They were accused of spreading anti-French propaganda.

Inquiry on Twenty Air Deaths.

France suffered a heavy blow in an overnight series of three air force crashes that killed twenty flyers and destroyed four planes.

Air Minister Guy La Chambre assigned two of his highest assistants to conduct inquiries at Tours and Beauvais, where two of the crashes occurred. An air officer in French Morocco was ordered to investigate the third crash, near El Aioun.

La Chambre has been struggling to raise France's plane strength to a level near that of Germany and Italy.

All four planes lost were French made. Preliminary reports indicated no sabotage was involved.

A Farman 221 four motored bomber fell in French Morocco, killing six. At Beauvais a Potez 540 twin motored ship disappeared on a night flight and today was found wrecked, the crew of five dead.

Near Tours two Marcel Bloch 210 twin motored bombers collided. Nine men were killed.

Rush African Sea Base.

France today ordered work rushed in a new naval base at Mers el-Kedir, on the Algerian coast opposite Spain.

Mers el-Kedir, west of Oran, is of peculiar strategic value. Warships could operate from there in the narrow section of the Mediterranean bounded by the Spanish and Spanish Moroccan coasts.

The government also ordered new naval vessels, construction of which will begin within a year. Included are eighteen submarine chasers, twelve dredges, one floating dock, and 12,140 tons of other small warships.

Of the $343,200,000 to be raised by a 1 per cent sales tax decreed yesterday for armament, the Official Journal disclosed today that the air force will get $101,640,000. The rest will be distributed generally as follows: $110,880,000 to the army, $109,296,000 to the navy, and $15,312,000 to colonial troops.

Chicagoland Turns Clocks Ahead an Hour Next Sunday

Chicagoland will make its 21st annual shift from central time to daylight saving time at 2 a. m. next Sunday, April 30. At that time clocks will be moved ahead one hour to bring an additional 154 extra hours of daylight during the summer months. Central time will be restored Sept. 24. As in years past, surrounding suburbs will go on daylight time. Suburban train schedules will be adjusted accordingly.

10 OF 11 REPLIES SEE NO THREAT OF AGGRESSION

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—Eleven nations are known to have replied to the three questions put to them by Reichsfuehrer Hitler. The questions were:

"Do you consider yourself menaced by Germany?"

"Did you ask President Roosevelt's intercession?"

"Did you know in advance of his plea for a minimum of ten years of assured nonaggression.?"

The replies, or as much of them as was made public, follow:

RUMANIA—"The government of Rumania does not see how any one could feel secure in Europe at the present time."

Swiss Rely on Neutrality.

SWITZERLAND — "The federal council [of Switzerland] has confidence in respect for Swiss neutrality, which the confederation will defend with its army and which Germany, as well as its [Switzerland's] other neighbors, have expressly recognized." Switzerland said it had no advance knowledge of Mr. Roosevelt's intention to send his note to Germany and Italy.

LITHUANIA—Was reliably reported to have referred Germany to the Lithuanian-German treaty of March 22, under which Germany promised neither to use nor support force against Lithuania.

FINLAND—Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko said Finland did not consider its neutrality threatened by Germany.

BELGIUM—Was reported to have decided to answer that it has no reason to suspect the good faith of the three nations—Germany, Britain, and France—which have pledged themselves to guarantee its independence.

Holland Prepared for War.

THE NETHERLANDS—Said it did not consider itself menaced by Germany, but was determined to be prepared for any possibility in event of European war. Said it had not asked Mr. Roosevelt to champion its cause and had no knowledge of Mr. Roosevelt's peace message before it was sent from Washington, D. C.

SWEDEN—Replied that it did not regard itself as menaced.

DENMARK—Officials refused to disclose whether the questionnaire had been received, but informed observers expressed belief it had and that a negative answer had been given.

NORWAY—Officials in Oslo maintained silence, but authoritative sources said Norway probably would act in concert with Sweden and Denmark.

LATVIA—Informed sources said Latvia had replied that its international relations gave it no reason to assume it was menaced by any one.

Greece Feels Secure.

GREECE—Official circles in Athens said Greece replied that it did not consider itself threatened by Germany because it felt friendly relations between the two countries rendered such a contingency impossible.

Poland, Germany's big neighbor to the east, and France, her western neighbor, were understood not to have been questioned. The foreign office in Warsaw said Poland had received no questionnaire.

NAZIS PREPARE THEIR ANSWER TO ROOSEVELT

Only Rumania Tells of Apprehension.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 22.—The idea that any of Germany's neighbors should be afraid that Germany will invade them as it invaded Czecho-Slovakia, or as Italy invaded Albania, is to be branded as preposterous by Reichsfuehrer Hitler on April 28 when he replies to President's Roosevelt's proposal for 10 or 25 years of peace.

Material for this section of Hitler's speech is being gathered rapidly by Germany's envoys. It consists of answers by various nations to questions propounded by Germany. The nations, all of which are among the thirty-one whom Mr. Roosevelt sought to protect through Nazi-Fascist pledges against invasion, were asked whether they feel menaced. They were also asked to state whether they had suggested or had advance knowledge of the Roosevelt notes to Germany and Italy.

Eleven Nations Reply.

Holland replied quickly and according to reports here at least ten other nations have already given their answers. While none of the replies have been made public here, there is no doubt in the minds of Nazi officials that all will reply that they are not afraid of Germany. Hitler is expected to use the text of the replies in his speech.

Nevertheless no reports have been received here to indicate that any of these nations are thinking of rescinding any mobilization orders issued to date.

Poland is one of the few countries from which no reply to Hitler's query has been received. The Poles are keeping close to 1,000,000 men under arms.

Nazis Attack Press.

The entire German press tonight united in an attack upon the press of other countries, which is blamed for the world's failure to see eye to eye with Germany on all questions.

"The most dangerous war agitators of our times—the press—will declare the next war," it was said by Nazi newspapers.

American students who staged a broadcast depicting war between England and France on one side and Germany on the other were used as illustrations of the war hysteria which it is alleged has been engendered by the press.

At the same time, European radio stations are broadcasting war plays. Only a few days ago a German station and an English station broadcast different plays simultaneously about naval battles. A ship could be heard sinking in the gurgling sea and the labored breathing of the dying heroes could be heard. But nobody in Europe got particularly excited about the matter.

Hope for Muzzle on Press.

With great satisfaction, the German press reprinted the words of Cardinal Arthur Hinsley, archbishop of Westminster, who wished that the English press had been forbidden to appear in recent weeks.

It was the first time in months that Germany has wholeheartedly endorsed the view expressed by an Englishman. The Nazis hoped that this and similar expressions might hasten a more thorough muzzling of the English press.

Der Angriff climaxed its attack on those who abuse free speech with this appeal:

"Is there no power among the democracies that can curtail the freedom of the press? Is it not possible to form a joint front against the true enemy of peace, the greatest and most dangerous war agitator of our times, the poisoners of public opinion, against the anonymous power of the press?"

SERBS MAY BACK AXIS

VENICE, Italy, April 22.—(AP)—Sources close to the Italian and Jugo-Slav foreign ministers expected tonight that their conferences here would result in a Jugo-Slav expression of friendship for the Rome-Berlin axis.

Italy's foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, sat down with Alexander Cinca-Markovich, Jugo-Slav foreign minister, in a hotel today for the first of a two day series of meetings.

After their first talk, which lasted an hour and one-half and which Ciano called cordial, with great understanding on both sides, the Italian foreign minister escorted Cinca-Markovich on a sightseeing tour through Venetian canals aboard a new Italian submarine chasing launch.

Statement to Be Issued.

It was said a statement summing up the results of the two days of conversations would be issued tomorrow.

Ciano's purpose was believed to be to swing Jugo-Slavia into the axis partners' lineup against the European nations rallying to the British-French bloc.

Some diplomats believed Italy would try to get Jugo-Slavia to sign the anti-comintern pact. Ciano, however, indicated that no new accords were likely to be signed here. Such resistance was foreseen in Jugo-Slav quarters as to make Belgrade's signature to the anti-comintern pact doubtful.

The talks, however, were expected to cover the whole range of Italo-Jugo-Slav relations.

Informed sources expected that Jugo-Slavia would be drawn closer to the Rome-Berlin axis by agreeing to a nonaggression pact with Hungary, a good friend of the axis and Jugo-Slavia's old foe.

Vision Friendship Pact.

Should Hungary then give concrete evidence that it would not press territorial claims against Jugo-Slavia, a tighter Hungarian-Jugo-Slav treaty of friendship was expected to follow the nonaggression pact.

Jugo-Slavia's reward for coöperation with Italy against what Fascists have called British-French attempts at encirclement of the axis partners, informed sources said, would include renewed assurances that Italy would not extend its Balkan expansion into Jugo-Slavia and, possibly, economic concessions.

Count Ciano, arriving here by airplane, said the conference showed that Italo-Jugo-Slav friendship is as firm as ever. Italian military authorities in Albania, Jugo-Slavia's southern neighbor, it was announced at the same time, had made what were described as cordial contacts with Jugo-Slav officers at frontier points.

DYNAMITE CACHE PROMPTS GUARD FOR SOO CANAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 22.—Royal Canadian mounted police tonight directed a search for persons who hid fifty pounds of dynamite near the Sault Ste. Marie canal, which links Lakes Huron and Superior.

The canal, which carries four times as much trafic as the Suez canal, was guarded by dominion officers to prevent sabotage that might cripple the dominion in time of war.

Squads of war veterans were recruited to guard important steel, paper, and chromium industries here.

The Conservative party leader R. J. Manion told veterans in Ottawa that he took seriously reports of possible sabotage.

"Wars are not declared these days," he said.

SPAIN SENDS 71 U. S. PRISONERS OF WAR INTO FRANCE

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], April 22.—(AP)—Seventy-one American prisoners captured by the Spanish Nationalist army in the civil war were sent across the frontier into France today.

They were part of 105 liberated former members of the Republican International brigade. Other prisoners released today were seven Cubans, four Chileans, eight Danes, and fifteen Swedes.

The men, poorly clothed and showing signs of their long imprisonment, were given a meal and cigarets before being put aboard a train leaving for Paris. They will be sent on to Le Havre tomorrow. There are still 122 American volunteers at Le Havre whose passport difficulties have prevented their return home.

CAIRO, April 22.—(AP)—Seventeen year old Queen Farida has joined her 19 year old husband as a sufferer from chicken pox. Physicians today ordered her to remain indoors for two weeks. King Farouk is convalescing.

BROTHERS TAKE BANDIT'S PISTOL, BEAT, SEIZE HIM

An unidentified bandit was captured early today when his intended victims—two brothers—took his gun away and beat him. The attempted holdup took place in front of 916 Milwaukee avenue.

The brothers, Morris and Joseph Hacker, 1109 North Sacramento avenue, were about to step into the former's wine delivery truck when the robber confronted them with a gun. Morris, who was robbed of $115 on the south side only a week ago, was in no mood for a second robbery.

He grabbed the bandit's gun. His brother went to his aid. They disarmed the robber and beat him severely. He attempted to flee, but stopped when Morris fired a warning shot. The robber was taken to the bridewell hospital for treatment of injuries received in the beating. He would not give his name.

PARADE MARKS SHAKESPEARE'S ANNIVERSARY

Stratford-on-Avon, England, April 22. — (AP) — Thousands of pilgrims marched with top hatted diplomats through the flag lined streets of William Shakespeare's home town today. The celebration marks the bard's 375th birthday anniversary. School children and townsfolk carried daffodils to Shakespeare's tomb. The celebration also marked the diamond jubilee of the Shakespeare Memorial theater, which presented "Much Ado About Nothing."

HUNGARY KEEPS ARMY AT BORDER, SLOVAKS CHARGE

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, April 22.—(AP)—Hungarian troops who, Slovakia charges, fired on two villages in eastern Slovakia Thursday night have not yet withdrawn, the Slovak Press bureau reported tonight.

The press bureau charged that Hungarian artillery fired on Blatne and Reviste. One shell damaged a church steeple.

Slovakia has protested to Hungary.

POLICE SEIZE PROWLER.

Stanley Galecki, 25 years old, 7915 Muskegon avenue, was arrested by police last night crouching in the rear room of a closed tavern at 2839 East 79th street.

SERBIANS OFFER AUTONOMY PLAN TO PACIFY CROATS

Would Split Jugo-Slavia Into Four Branches.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 22.—Jugo-Slavia believes it has the Croatian problem practically settled. Tension around governmental bureaus here was eased today as a result. Premier Dragista Tsvetkovich and a delegation from the Belgrade government today submitted to Dr. Vladko Machek and other Croat leaders at Zagreb their proposals for governmental changes. Included is a plan to reorganize the nation on a federal basis satisfactory to the Croats.

A communique issued after the conference said merely that the conversations had proceeded in a friendly atmosphere and would continue.

Several Principles Accepted.

Premier Tsvetkovich accepted the following principles:

Taxes paid by Croats will be earmarked for expenditures in Croatia.

An autonomous Croat cabinet shall be created including ministers of education, interior, justice and finance.

Croatia is the wealthiest section of the kingdom and most of the industries are there. The concession on taxes therefore is regarded important.

The premier insisted that there must be a precise definition of the functions of the two proposed Croat finance ministers.

There may be a hitch in connection with a Croat demand for reparations It is understood these would pay Croatia for its suffering during twenty years of government by Belgrade.

Blow to Serbs' Pride.

The settlement will be a blow to Serbian pride. It is contrary to the wishes of the Serbs' idolized late King Alexander, who wanted a highly centralized state to weld all Jugo-Slavs into a solid block.

On their side, the Croats have been forced to surrender territorial aspirations that would have let Zagreb rule large districts with heavy Serbian majorities.

The reorganized state will be divided into four, one for the Croats, one for the Serbs, one for the Slovenes and one a neutral land in central Bosnia where the population is greatly mixed.

This arrangement will discard the system of administration that divides the country into ten districts under the control of Belgrade. Within these four areas the nationality groups will enjoy autonomy. They will be united by the crown, the army, a common currency, customs-free borders and a federal administration in which all will participate on a basis of population.

Venice Parley Angers Croats.

The Croats have found a new grievance against the Serbians in the meeting today at Venice between Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Markovich and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

They fear Cincar-Markovich, on whose errand they were not consulted, may sign an agreement, and because of their position close to Italy they see themselves as the victims of any deal. Croat leaders go so far as to say scornfully that Count Ciano had better not have too much confidence in Cincar-Markovich's ability to deliver what he pledges.

[Dispatches from Venice said Jugo-Slavia was expected to agree to negotiate a nonaggression pact with Hungary. This was expected to lead finally to Jugo-Slavia becoming more friendly toward the anti-communist pact of which Germany, Italy, Japan, and Hungary now are members.]

Croats Want Voice in Policy.

The first step to be taken after the Serbian-Croat settlement has been signed will be the formation of a coalition government including the Croats. The Croats will insist that the foreign minister be a Croat. They will scrutinize carefully any paper Cincar-Markovich may sign with a view to repudiating it if it displeases them.

The new régime probably will revise all of Jugo-Slavia's foreign policies. Regent Prince Paul, now at the helm, objects to relaxing his hold, THE TRIBUNE learns. The Croats are determined that they are going to have their say.

THE CORNED BEEF MART PERKS UP; MURPHYS TO DINE

There will be more Murphys than you can shake a shillelah at when the Murphys of Chicago and the metropolitan area gather Wednesday night in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel for their annual get together. The Murphy's favorite dish—corned beef and cabbage—will have a prominent place on the menu. Ald. William T. Murphy [17th] is general chairman, Mrs. Hanna Murphy Gannon is secretary, and the Rev. James V. Murphy of Deerfield is chaplain. On the arrangements committee are the following Murphys: Ald. William T., Daniel F. [a former police captain], James F., Hugh E., W. J., Joseph G., Mrs. Hugh E., and Mrs. Gannon.

BRITISH BALK AT RUSSIAN SCHEME FOR BROAD PACT

Diplomats Doubt Cabinet Will Approve Plan.

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—Although British official quarters remained confident that a British-French-Russian agreement soon would be reached, some doubts were being raised in diplomatic circles tonight.

Soviet Russia was pictured as still seeking a broad general nonagression pact in addition to a specific military alliance with Britain and France. Few observers believed any sort of resurrected league of nations combination could be formed.

The British cabinet was scheduled to meet in special session Monday presumably to discuss the 1939-'40 budget, but it was expected also to study Moscow's proposals for reviving the world war triple entente and also, possibly, to consider some form of national conscription.

Move to Guard Suez.

Expecting a quiet, sunny week-end, British officials abandoned Whitehall promptly at noon and left the admiralty to demonstrate that Britain was taking no chances.

The movement of British ships in the Mediterranean indicated that Britain was getting ready to concentrate an important part of her fleet around the Suez canal and also to guard the western gateway to the Mediterranean at Gibraltar.

The overnight arrival of two British submarines and five fleet repair ships at Alexandria, Egypt, brought the number of British vessels at that port to fifteen and others were expected during the week-end for indefinite stays. The British battleship Ramillies, three destroyers and a submarine arrived at Gibraltar, which had been left virtually in the protection of French naval forces.

Soviet Proposes Conference.

PARIS, April 22.—[U. P.]—Soviet Russia, ready to sign a Russia-British-French mutual military assistance agreement, was reported tonight to have proposed an international conference of all nations fearing aggression by the Nazi-Fascist dictators.

The purpose of the conference would be to write a collective security agreement which would pool the armed strength of all the involved nations against the totalitarian powers if they should try further aggression.

Nazis Fear Russian Victory.

BERLIN, April 22.—(AP)—The Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, semi-official mouthpiece of the German foreign office, warned France and England tonight that the price of Russia's participation in a war might be establishment of the soviet government as "the final victor."

The organ called attention to statements of the communist international official Manuilsky in the Russian communist party organ Pravda, quoting him as saying, "war is necessary to reach the goal of a world revolution."

SON OF LINCOLN'S HOST AT DINNER TO ATTEND 1940 CLUB CEREMONY

F. Marion Smith, 86 years old, who remembers when Abraham Lincoln stopped for dinner at his father's farm near Clinton, Ill., many years ago, called on Harry S. Ditchburne yesterday to say he would attend the 1940 club's Lincoln program on May 18. This is the anniversary of Lincoln's nomination for the presidency at the Wigwam in Chicago in 1860. The club, of which Ditchburne is head, is to conduct ceremonies on the Wigwam site at Lake and Market streets. Mr. Smith lives at 5858 Nina avenue.

British Trade Mission Leaves to Woo Rumania

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—Ten members of a trade mission which Britain is sending to Rumania in an attempt to offset Germany's economic thrust into the Balkans left London today for Bucharest. Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, chief economic adviser to the British government and head of the mission, left London Thursday. He will join the rest of the delegation when it passes through Brussels.

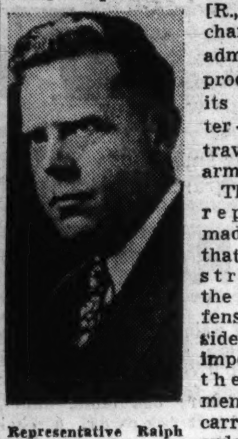
REP. CHURCH RAPS HELTER-SKELTER REARM PROGRAM

Calls Indiscriminate Bill Voting Extravagant.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[Special.]—Representative Ralph E. Church [R., Ill.] today charged that the administration is proceeding with its usual helter-skelter extravagance in rearming America.



Representative Ralph Church.

The Illinois representative made it clear that he favors strengthening the national defense, but considers it highly important that the rearmament program be carried on in an orderly fashion. As the program is now being carried out, he said, the administration is sponsoring a series of measures in a piecemeal fashion and lacks a coordinated plan.

Representative Church stressed that no one knows from the White House down what the total cost of an adequate national defense will be or even what is considered necessary to an adequate national defense.

Vote 72 Millions with No Dissent.

He pointed out that last Wednesday without a dissenting vote the senate passed a naval authorization bill for the expenditure of $66,800,000 for improving facilities. On the same day, also without a dissenting vote, the house passed a bill authorizing the expenditure of $5,675,000 by the Civil Aeronautic authority for the training of civilian pilots.

"To these two measures acted upon this week should be added numerous other bills already enacted into law and pending on the calendar," Church said. "Last year congress enacted a billion dollar naval construction authorization bill in addition to unusually high peacetime army and navy appropriations.

"On April 3 the President signed the military authorization bill for an expenditure of 300 million dollars on the army air corps, $23,750,000 for rehabilitation of the Panama canal and $36,500,000 on industrial educational orders.

Other Bills Are Pending.

"On April 13 the house passed a naval public works bill authorizing an expenditure of $38,524,500. Congress passed the regular army appropriation bill of 520 million dollars and a bill giving 116 millions for new equipment such as anti-tank guns, anti-aircraft guns, and the like."

Church also pointed out that a number of bills relating to building up the defense are pending before congress. Among these is one which would authorize expenditure of 100 million dollars for acquiring stocks of strategic materials such as manganese, tungsten, tin, and chrome ores.

"If mere number of bills were any criteria, one would be inclined to believe that the administration is providing the country with a strong national defense," the representative said. "But the strengthening and maintenance of an adequate national defense involves much more than passing a series of bills.

"It involves long range planning, careful cost accounting and coördination. A proper defense for this great democracy, and the western hemisphere as a whole, cannot be provided in the piecemeal, haphazard fashion in which the New Deal has undertaken the program.

"I do not believe a single member of congress, let alone the people, knows what our armament program is costing. In addition to the regular appropriations by congress, money has been taken out of relief appropriations and expended on military and naval facilities.

"There are no less than three different estimates in the budget of 1940 for national defense. The program has been handled in such a piecemeal fashion that I do not believe the director of the budget himself could say exactly what it represents in dollars and cents.

"Moreover, there is an utter lack of long range planning and coördination in the work undertaken. Instruments of defense are being constructed with almost no thought being given to the fact that scientific advancement in armaments may quickly place them in obsolescence, with no special attention being given to a coördination of the military and naval activities.

Urges Study as a Whole.

"It is true that congress repaired many deficiencies in our military and naval establishments. But as commendable as that is, it cannot be said that a truly adequate defense can be maintained for our people simply by passing a series of bills and spending money. Like a great many other programs undertaken by the New Deal, there is a decided need for a system of coördination and long range planning.

"Much could be accomplished in this regard if the President could be prevailed upon to establish a national defense commission to study the entire subject. The agency can be composed of experts, predominantly civilians, who in coöperation with the army and navy officers, and other government officials, will make a thorough investigation of our needs and recommend a defense program that will keep our defenses up to date.

"Such a study can be undertaken without delaying the work now going on. It would serve to give the people a complete view of the situation and at the same time enable us to coördinate our plans for the future."

Barbara Goes Out with a Baron

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, who returned to the United States from Europe recently, with Baron Hubert Pantz of Austria at night club in New York.

Off to Florida

The countess hurried into a private car with her 3 year old son, Lance, and left for the south to visit her father, Franklyn L. Hutton.

Friday night Barbara was escorted to "Leave It to Me" and later to Felix Ferry's Monte Carlo by Baron Pantz, who was once linked romantically with Mrs. Louise Van Alen Mdivani, Barbara's predecessor as the wife of the late Prince Alexis Mdivani.

The countess, separated legally from her Danish husband, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, arrived from Europe April 14 to stay two or three months. Under Danish law she will not be divorced for more than a year.

Nazis Report New Polish Riots Against Germans

BERLIN, April 22.—[U. P.]—The official DNB news agency continued today to report anti-German riots in various parts of Poland. It said that the Polish patriotic organization, "West Union," beat Germans living in towns and villages in the vicinity of Katowitz and stoned the windows of German homes. The agency added that Polish police measures to protect Germans were inadequate.

Danish King Has Mild Case of Flu; Cancels Audiences

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 22.—[U. P.]—King Christian has canceled public audiences scheduled for Monday because of a mild attack of influenza.

HOOVER URGES U. S. MAKE WAY FOR REFUGEES

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover sent a telegram today to a joint congressional committee urging it to recommend legislation which will permit the entry of 20,000 German refugee children into the United States.

"No harm and only good can come to a nation by such humane action," Hoover said in the message read by Clarence E. Pickett of Philadelphia, one of the sponsors of the legislation.

Spokesmen for patriotic organizations opened an attack upon the refugee bill as a violation of immigration standards and as threatening to add to unemployment and relief problems. Their testimony clashed directly with that of Dorothy Thompson, writer; Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York City, and Dean Dudley D. Carroll of the University of North Carolina.

MEXICAN LAWYER AND N. U. WORKER WED IN EVANSTON

George Viesca y Palma, an attorney of Mexico City, Mexico, and Miss Inez Lord Awty, recorder for the graduate school of Northwestern university, were married yesterday at the home of Mayor Henry D. Penfield of Evanston, at 410 Davis street. Chief Justice Harry H. Porter of the Evanston Municipal court performed the ceremony. Viesca y Palma is a former attorney general for the state of Vera Cruz. In 1934 he and Miss Awty, who lives at the Margarita club, 1566 Oak avenue, Evanston, met in New York while vacationing. Recently he met Mayor Penfield in Mexico.

COL. LINDBERGH AT WRIGHT FIELD IN NEW ARMY JOB

Staff Loses Half-Holiday to Answer Questions.

Dayton, O., April 22.—[U. P.]—The United States army air corps' experimental laboratory at Wright field remained open all day while its officers and engineers talked with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who today began the tour that will give him first hand information on national aviation development.

Wright field usually is closed on Saturday afternoons, but today its military and civilian staff stayed on duty for conferences with Col Lindbergh, who was recalled to active duty by the government this week.

Col. Lindbergh is not making an inspection tour. His activities are limited to an exchange of technical information and a study of recent developments by the domestic air force.

Denies Press Information.

The famous aviator, one of the world's outstanding authorities on progress in the design and manufacture of aircraft, granted the press no interview. The exact nature of his conversations here could not be learned.

Lindbergh flew here from Washington this morning in his new Curtiss single seat pursuit plane. The trip took about two hours and a half. When he left the capital, his destination was not announced. His itinerary after he leaves Dayton likewise is unannounced.

In Dayton he is the guest of Brig. Gen. George H. Brett, chief of the air corps material division. Gen. Brett said Lindbergh would leave here not later than Monday.

Urges Mass Protection.

All new types of planes and equipment designed for army use are tested at Wright field. It is the center of government aviation research and therefore is considered one of the most important stops in Col. Lindbergh's nation-wide tour.

Lindbergh was reported to have cited to army officials the need for mass production of planes to bring American aviation up to par with European countries.

DANISH CROWN PRINCE AND WIFE ARRIVE TONIGHT

City to Fete Frederik and Ingrid for 3 Days.

They are marshaling the guards at Union station today. Brass buttons will be polished and brass bands turned out, for Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark arrive tonight.

Several thousand persons, in addition to a welcoming committee yards long, are expected to meet the young royal couple, future rulers of Denmark and Iceland, who will be in Chicago for a busy three days. With them comes a royal entourage of eleven.

Their visit to Chicago, spokesmen have pointed out, will be strictly in the democratic spirit. That is, they will eat American food, see American sights and make public, rather than private, appearances. They will attend only one private gathering, and will stay at the Stevens hotel instead of in a private home.

Busy Time in Prospect.

Practically every minute of their stay is accounted for in advance. Their train—the Hiawatha—will arrive from St. Paul at 7:30 p. m. At 8:40 they will leave for the Danish Trinity Lutheran church for a reception. Early tomorrow they will drive to Racine, Wis., for a luncheon and reception. On the way back they will visit the Danish Old People's home in Norwood Park and tomorrow night will be guests of Reimund Baumann, consul of Denmark and Iceland, and Mrs. Baumann at a musical and reception in the Woman's Athletic club.

Official respects will be paid Tuesday. At 10 a. m. they will begin a sight seeing tour of the city, after which Frederik will call on Mayor Kelly while Ingrid shops. Tuesday afternoon they will visit the Field museum and attend a reception in Dania hall, 1651 North Kedzie avenue. Tuesday night the Danish colony of Chicago will give a banquet for them in the Stevens hotel. They will leave by train for Detroit at 10:05 a. m. Wednesday.

Nation's No. 1 Salesmen.

Frederik and Ingrid are Denmark's No. 1 international salesmen of good will. All who have met them on their American tour say they fit these rôles ably, aware of their responsibilities as the future rulers of the Danish kingdom and possessing attributes necessary as its traveling representatives.

Some day the crown prince—Christian Frederik Franz Michael Carl Valdemar Georg—will become King Frederik IX., succeeding to the throne the first Frederik ascended in 1523.

Denmark today is a small kingdom, relatively unimportant when compared with the powers of the world. But during the reign of Frederik I. and his immediate successors it was a larger, formidable Denmark. From 1544 to 1626 the country was the most important Scandinavian kingdom, holding its own against Germany and England.

Forced to Surrender Norway.

Before much of the seventeenth century had passed, however, Denmark's decline had begun. This transformation was completed early in the nineteenth century when, by the treaty of Kiel [1814], Denmark was compelled to surrender Norway to Sweden.

In 1863 the direct male line of the House of Oldenburg, from which the kings of Denmark had come since 1448, became extinct. The great powers of Europe met and placed Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glucksburg upon the Danish throne. From this royal house came the present ruler, King Christian X., father of Prince Frederik.

Frederik was born in Sorgenfri castle on March 11, 1899. He became crown prince in 1912 when his father ascended to the throne. Frederik became a naval cadet in 1917. Four years later he became lieutenant. At present he holds the rank of captain commander in both the navy and the army.

Engaged to Greek Princess.

After he attained his majority the tall, good-looking prince was linked romantically with many noble ladies. In 1922 he was engaged to Princess Olga of Greece. In 1927 there were rumors that he would marry Princess Marie José of Belgium.

On April 3, 1934, Princess Ingrid of Sweden issued a denial to reports that she was engaged to Frederik, her cousin. "Why," said Princess Ingrid, "I don't even know him."

Thirteen months later—on May 24, 1935—Prince Frederik and Princess Ingrid were married in a wedding attended by members of all royal families of Europe.

The crown princess—whose full name is Ingrid Victoria [Sofia] Louise Margareta—is the daughter of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden. She is a descendant of Marshal Bernadotte, famous in the Napoleonic wars, and later King Charles XIV. John.

Marriage Termed Ideal.

Friends say that the marriage of the crown prince, now 40 years old, and his princess, who is 29, is an ideal one. The two have much in common. Ingrid was reared with her four brothers to enjoy outdoor sports, and is fond of tennis, motoring, and riding. Frederik, an outdoor man, enjoys hunting, tennis and yachting. Frederik also is a musician. He plays the piano three or four hours a day, frequently composing his own music.

The prince and the princess have their serious sides, too. In the thrifty manner of all Scandinavian princesses, Ingrid was trained in housekeeping and cooking, and holds a hospital diploma for nursing. Interior decorating is her hobby. In recent years the crown prince has represented his country at international exhibitions as president of the Danish trade exhibition. The American tour is in line with this endeavor to promote the interests of Denmark and its commerce.

80 Years a Printer

Benjamin Franklin Waite, 95 years old, at linotype yesterday on visit to Tribune composing room.

Benjamin Franklin Waite, 95 years old, said to be one of the oldest working printers in the country, stopped in Chicago yesterday en route from his home in Johnson City, N. Y., to the San Francisco World fair. He is to be a guest of the Sacramento Advertisers club. Waite has been in the printing business for eighty years—ever since he was a boy. He visited THE TRIBUNE yesterday to chat with old time printers and inspect latest type presses.

QUEEN GERALDINE TURNS DOWN BID TO ENTER MOVIES

Zog Decides Not to Make U. S. Lecture Tour.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 22.—(AP)—Former Queen Geraldine of Albania, who fled with King Zog and their 2 day old son when Italy invaded their land, has rejected an offer from an American film company. She has no intention to seek a stage or film career.

This was announced today by Imre Hunyor, attorney for the Apponyi family interests. Geraldine, before her marriage last April to Zog, was Countess Geraldine Apponyi of Hungary.

Former King Zog and his wife and their baby, Skander, are in Greece. Hunyor indicated both England and the United States were under consideration as possible choices for their new home. They are undecided when they will leave Greece or where they will reside.

Oil Lease Provides Cash.

Hunyor said that some time ago Zog received a substantial sum from an Anglo-Dutch concern for permission to exploit certain oil fields owned by his family. This money was said to be deposited in a London bank.

The attorney said that Zog would not make a lecture tour of the United States. The Hungarian newspaper Az Est recently said the former king had been offered an American lecture tour contract.

Geraldine, who is of American and Hungarian parentage, never has been in the United States. Her American born mother, now Mrs. Gladys Stewart Girault, lives in southern France.

Jacomoni Is Viceroy.

ROME, Italy, April 22.—(AP)—Francesco Jacomoni, who was Italian minister to Albania when that kingdom was absorbed by Italy, today was appointed lieutenant general of Albania by King Vittorio Emanuele.

He will represent the king at Tirana, Albania's capital, virtually as viceroy.

Jacomoni, 46 years old, became minister at Tirana in 1936. He conducted the negotiations with the Albanian government which preceded the Italian occupation.

Albanians Must Salute.

TIRANA, Albania, April 22.—(AP)—The Fascist salute became the obligatory form of greeting throughout Albania on orders of the new Albanian cabinet today.

The cabinet made Premier Mussolini honorary citizen of every Albanian city, and the Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, an honorary citizen of Tirana.

8 G. O. P. JUDGES TO KEEP PLACE ON DEMOCRAT SLATE

Defend Coalition as Aid to Honest Selections.

The eight Republican judges of the Circuit court whose names will appear in the Democratic column in the election June 5 told reporters yesterday that they have no inclination to change the situation.

They were asked for statements because, after the Democratic county convention had nominated them as a part of its ticket on April 15, the Republican county convention, which had been sitting simultaneously, unexpectedly nominated an entirely new group of candidates. That action placed Republican candidates in opposition to the eight Republican sitting judges who are running for reëlection on the Democratic ticket.

Each Still for Party.

When taken together, the statements of the eight presented an argument that they had expected the Republican and Democratic organizations to coalesce this time as they have done in other elections. Believing that prospect certain, they accepted nominations on what they believed would be a coalition ticket. Each considers himself just as good a Republican as ever.

Some of the judges said they were not offered places on the Republican ticket. But Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Republican county committee, declared that several days before any nominations were made he sent each of the eight a letter and a telegram in his effort to ascertain whether any of the Republican sitting judges would run under the G. O. P. label.

Tell Their Positions.

When asked for their sentiments the oral statements made by the eight were as follows:

JUDGE KICKHAM SCANLAN: "The original fight started in 1921 when the Republicans wanted to drop me and some other judges. We then organized a coalition ticket and I have favored one ever since. I want to keep the judgeships out of politics. I remain a Republican."

JUDGE DAVID F. MATCHETT: "I am going to stay where I am. Let the others fire their ammunition now. I may have a written statement next week."

JUDGE WILLIAM V. BROTHERS: "I am a Republican and always will be one. The impression should not be created that I and the other Republicans on the ticket with me are deserting our party. I was never asked to go on the straight Republican ticket, and I intend to stay where I am."

JUDGE STANLEY H. KLARKOWSKI: "I agreed to go on a coalition ticket before the two party conventions were held. I am going to stay where I am."

Run on Both Tickets.

JUDGE DANIEL P. TRUDE: "There has been coalition at several judicial elections. I have been on the bench twenty-one years and I have run twice on the Democratic ticket and twice on the Republican ticket. I am now a Republican running on the Democratic ticket."

JUDGE HUGO M. FRIEND: "I am staying on the Democratic ticket. Coalition has been accepted by the people for many years as a means of reëlecting judges who have proved themselves capable."

JUDGE MICHAEL FEINBERG: "While the other Republican judges remain on the Democratic ticket, so will I."

JUDGE GEORGE FRED RUSH: "I will remain on the Democratic ballot."

2d Suit Succeeds

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
MRS. MARY P. KUHAR.

When Mrs. Mary Kuhar asked a divorce on the ground of cruelty Jan. 31 because her husband slapped her twice, Judge Philip J. Finnegan said that wasn't cruelty.

"Cruelty," he explained, "must consist of violence great enough to endanger life. A slap does not. A man may slap his wife as hard as he wants to if he doesn't kill her. If more wives were slapped there would be fewer divorces."

Yesterday Mrs. Kuhar, who is 21 years old, returned to say the slaps drew blood. "You should have told me that the first time," the judge said. He gave her a divorce from John Kuhar, a trap drummer. Mrs. Kuhar went home to 11530 La Salle street.

ERROR VOIDS 17TH DISTRICT G. O. P. JUDICIAL TICKET

Somebody [or perhaps everybody] forgot to certify the names of the three Republican nominees for Circuit judge in the 17th judicial district to Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes before the deadline Friday night.

New Convention Likely.

Their best guess at midnight was that the convention which nominated them may have to be held all over again in an effort to rectify the situation. The convention met in Rockford on April 15. The Democrats nominated only one candidate, B. J. Knight of Rockford.

An explanation of the failure to file at Springfield was given last evening by Attorney Lisle Menzimer of Rockford, who was secretary of the convention. He said Eugene Runyard of Waukegan, who was chairman, had to leave as soon as the convention was over and suggested that Menzimer send him the official report of the proceedings for his signature.

Report Arrives 12 Hours Late.

"I sent the report to Runyard about Tuesday," Menzimer said. "It got back to me today, twelve hours after the deadline."

The secretary indicated that neither he nor Runyard had been aware of the necessity of filing Friday.

Under the law, the secretary of state must file only the names that arrived on time—in the 17th district only Knight's. But there is machinery for getting party names on the ballot later and this, according to the three Republican candidates, will be invoked.

"At the convention," said Judge Dady, "there was a resolution that in the event of a vacancy on the slate there could be a reconvening on ten days' notice. There was also a provision that the ten day notice could be waived if all delegates agreed. We believe the waivers will be given and the new convention held within a week.

"The election law says that if nominations become ineperative, as ours did, the convention can renominate up to thirty-five days before the election. That gives us to May 1 to rectify things."

Judge Pierce and Attorney Gill said they would go to Springfield tomorrow to ask Secretary of State Hughes if the Republican list can be certified without the convention.

STATES, PLAGUED BY STRIFE, ACT TO END LABOR WARS

Take Steps to Put Curb on Lawless Violence.

Industrial strife that has plagued the nation in recent years, bringing death and injury to hundreds and the loss of millions of dollars in wages and trade, has brought a defensive tide of state legislation designed to curb irresponsible labor sufficiently to restore peace.

In response to demands for such restrictions, one state after another has enacted or is considering laws that will punish those who resort to violence and intimidation in labor disputes.

The movement has spread eastward from the Pacific coast until it now encompasses many of the country's chief industrial centers. The most drastic reaction to unnecessary labor strife has been evidenced in the middle west.

Seek to End NLRB Defects.

Virtually all of the new laws seek to remedy the defects in the national labor relations act, under which much of the labor turbulence has been permitted. Almost without exception they ban sitdown strikes, limit closed shops, restrict picketing, and provide for a breathing spell between notice of a strike and its actual beginning.

They define a labor dispute as a controversy between an employer and a majority of his employés, prohibit the checkoff system of collecting union dues, and restrain secondary picketing and boycotts.

They further provide that employés must not hinder the pursuit of lawful employment, intimidate other employés, or coerce employers to interfere with other employés.

TWO ILLINOIS MEASURES

ILLINOIS—Two bills to set up state labor relations boards are pending in the Illinois legislature. A senate proposal would ban sitdown strikes and otherwise consider the rights of employers and the public as well as of unions. The other, a house measure, would pattern the state law after the national labor relations act.

The senate bill was drawn to set up standards of good behavior for unions and employés as well as for employers. Interest in the proposed law was given impetus by a killing on April 12 in the Chicago truck drivers' strike. Supporters said that the slaying and attendant trouble very likely could have been averted had the measure been in effect.

Provides 10 Day Wait.

An important feature of the bill is that it provides a ten day breathing spell before a strike can go into effect after a strike notice has been given. This would allow time for tempers to cool and for bringing about a peaceful settlement of most disputes.

Union officers would have to give a financial accounting to members each year under this bill, and further would have their power restricted by its definition of a labor dispute as a controversy between an employer and a majority of his employés. It would also give employers as much right as employés to call a collective bargaining election.

The senate bill is now in hearing before the agriculture committee to which it was referred because of references in the draft to special problems of farmers and their coöperatives relative to perishable commodities and seasonal production.

A CURB ON TERRORISM

MINNESOTA—Awaiting the expected signature of Republican Gov. Harold E. Stassen in Minnesota is a labor relations act which aims to prevent by conciliation a recurrence of the bloody industrial strife this state has known under other administrations.

Like the legislation in other states, this proposed law forbids sitdown strikes, guarantees collective bargaining, limits the closed shop, forbids blacklisting of employés, and restricts picketing by prohibiting illegal interference with workers seeking to enter or leave struck plants.

The measure originated in the lower house where efforts to outlaw closed shops completely were defeated by a close vote. Sent to the senate, the bill, which already barred sitdowns, was amended so that picketing virtually would be forbidden.

Backed by Farm Bloc.

The proposed law, which had the support of a powerful farm bloc, is aimed at terrorism and strike abuses which have marked Minnesota's labor history for years. Five years ago the strife reached such a point that a complete breakdown of law enforcement occurred at the height of a truck drivers' strike during the administration of the late Gov. Floyd Olson, Farmer-Labor radical.

Numerous killings of union men, including two high officials, and the slaying of two newspaper editors who campaigned against labor and vice problems contributed to the rising tide of opinion in Minnesota that a law was needed to place a curb on irresponsible labor agitators.

REVOLT OF FARMERS

WISCONSIN—An uprising of farmers against the high handed tactics of labor unionists was largely responsible for the passage of two bills in Wisconsin. The legislation here was backed by the powerful Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, which embraces more than thirty organizations and coöperatives claiming a membership of 80,000 farmers.

The farmers' opposition was brought to a head last summer at Richland Center, Wis., where members of a coöperative creamery resisted efforts to unionize their plant. About 500 farmers marched on the plant and ousted seven union employés. Other farmers had been victimized by a canning factory strike at the height of their spinach and cabbage season, causing crop losses running into thousands of dollars.

Secondary Picketing Common.

Numerous other labor disputes, accompanied by violence, had tied up industries throughout the state. Among them were troubles at the Nash automobile plant in Kenosha, the Chevrolet factory in Janesville, the J. I. Case machinery plant in Racine, and many Milwaukee businesses. Secondary picketing has been common in this state.

Responding to a demand for legislation to curb these abuses, the Catlin bill was enacted on March 30. It limits legally recognized labor disputes to controversies between an employer and a majority of his employés. It thus bars so-called stranger picketing by labor unions and also outlaws secondary picketing of outlets.

Last Thursday the legislature passed a second and more stringent bill setting up a new labor relations law to replace former Gov. Philip La Follette's measure known as the Little Wagner act, under which violence and destruction of property had spread through the state. The new measure outlaws all forms of sitdown strikes and prohibits a closed shop except by approval of 75 per cent of the employés.

MICHIGAN ACT PENDING

MICHIGAN—The wave of automobile strikes which paralyzed Michigan's principal industry a few years ago was credited in the main for the labor relations bill passed by the lower legislative chamber a month ago. Republican Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, who sponsored the bill and who died the night is was passed, termed it a pro-public measure.

The proposed law provides that a fifteen day notice of intent to strike must be given the state labor relations board, and that the board will be empowered to determine whether the strike is justified. It stipulates that a strike may be called only upon action of a majority of employés.

Picketing would be restricted to employés of a struck plant, and boycotts would be forbidden. Although a minority could not call a strike, the measure provides for minority representation in collective bargaining.

The bill is now before the senate, where Senator Harry Hittle, chairman of that body's labor committee and a former counsel for labor unions, is seeking to modify it to pacify labor. Whether his proposal will satisfy the Republican controled house is considered questionable.

SITDOWNS HALTED

MISSOURI—Following the lead of other states in legislating against industrial strife, Gov. Lloyd C. Stark last week signed a bill broadening the law of unlawful detainer to include sitdown strikes.

The governor told the legislature that the amended law was necessary because Missouri courts had held that an action involving unlawful detainer applied only where the relationship of landlord and tenant existed. The bill added to the definition of unlawful detainer instances "when premises are occupied incident to the terms of employment and the employé holds over after the termination of such employment."

COURT CURBS STRIFE

CALIFORNIA—The trend toward curbing industrial strife was evidenced in this strike harassed state recently by a decision of the California District Court of Appeals that closed shop contracts between unions and employers are contrary to public policy.

The court's ruling was handed down in three similar cases. Each case involved picketing to enforce closed shop demands. The court declared in effect that peaceful picketing for illegal purposes—such as to enforce closed shop demands—is unlawful.

In ruling on the picketing issue the court illustrated the point that peaceful picketing now is lawful for illegal purposes by citing the possibility that a business man might picket a competitor he had accused of unlawful labor practices.

ACTION BY VOTERS

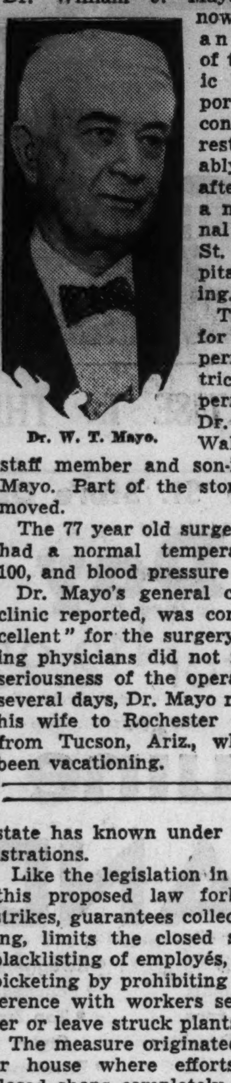
OREGON—Oregon led the constantly widening wave of legal curbs on industrial strife. Driven to drastic action by labor violence, citizens exercised their right of initiative last November and passed a law so stringent the state virtually has been free from labor trouble since.

The law restricts closely the activity of labor unions and provides jail sentences and fines for violators. It gives Circuit courts the power to restrain picketing, forbids jurisdictional strikes, outlaws boycotts, and curtails political fund raising activities of unions.

Recollection of four years of labor troubles and racketeering was in the minds of citizens when they approved the measure, which apparently is proving the claim of supporters that it would bring peace. Strikes of longshore men and lumber workers previously had taken a toll of many lives and the loss of millions of dollars in wages and commerce.

DR. WILLIAM J. MAYO, FAMOUS SURGEON, 77, UNDERGOES OPERATION

Rochester, Minn., April 22.—(AP)—Dr. William J. Mayo, world renowned surgeon and co-founder of the Mayo clinic here, was reported in good condition and resting comfortably late today after undergoing a major abdominal operation at St. Mary's hospital this morning.



Dr. W. T. Mayo.

The operation for a subacute perforating gastric ulcer was performed by Dr. Waltman Walters, clinic staff member and son-in-law of Dr. Mayo. Part of the stomach was removed.

The 77 year old surgeon late today had a normal temperature; pulse, 100, and blood pressure of 130.

Dr. Mayo's general condition, the clinic reported, was considered "excellent" for the surgery, but attending physicians did not minimize the seriousness of the operation. Ill for several days, Dr. Mayo returned with his wife to Rochester last Sunday from Tucson, Ariz., where he had been vacationing.

WIEBOLDT, UNION AGREE ON TRUCE AND SEEK PEACE

Pickets Withdraw; Date for Election Sought.

Possibility of a settlement of the teamsters' union strike against the Wieboldt department stores appeared yesterday after store and union officials, meeting in the La Salle hotel, agreed on a truce.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], chairman of the city council labor committee, who arranged the meeting, said only one point—the date for an election to determine a bargaining agency for the store's drivers—remained unsettled. Negotiations broke off once before because of inability of the negotiators to agree on a date for the election. An attempt to fix a date on which both sides can agree will be made at a conference tomorrow.

Picketing Is Suspended.

Elmer F. Wieboldt, president of the store corporation, and Leslie Goudie, president of the teamsters' joint council, arranged the truce. Under its terms the union is to keep its pickets away from the stores at least until after the meeting tomorrow. Meanwhile, the stores are not to receive any new merchandise.

Wieboldt, Ald. Rowan said, will confer with his associates and name the earliest date that will be satisfactory for the election. Goudie is to report on the latest date to which the union will consent.

So far the company has insisted on a delay of at least two weeks, its officials contending that employés are being intimidated by union agents. The union, denying the charges, has argued for an immediate election. In the voting the men are to have the choice of the teamsters' union or an independent organization. Seventy-four drivers and helpers are eligible to cast ballots.

First Face to Face Parley.

Until yesterday representatives of the two parties had not met face to face to discuss a settlement.

The picketing began soon after the strike was called two weeks ago. Several drivers have been beaten and a helper, James Lawrence, was slain on April 12.

Teams of Salvation Army Boy Scouts and Girl Guards tied knots, wrapped bandages, and struck fire with flint and steel yesterday in contests at the ninth annual rally of the organizations. Nature study, Morse code signaling, and bugling also were on the list of events at the 131st Regiment armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue.

MARKET OWNER DEMANDS COURT BAN ON PICKETS

Charges Illegal Blockade of His Customers.

Accusing union pickets of refusing to permit customers to leave their automobiles, the Farm Food Store, Inc., asked the law's protection yesterday. The store, at 6520 Cicero avenue, was the scene of violence last Sunday, when a labor leader was wounded in a shooting.

Herman Wadler.

Herman Wadler, president of the corporation, asked an injunction against further picketing. His concern sells produce to customers who enter the driveway in their cars.

On April 7, the petition said, the heads of four unions demanded that Wadler order his twenty-five employés to join unions, He told the workers to do as they chose, according to the petition, and they refused to join.

Charges Buyers Are Blocked.

Since that time, the petition said, the driveway has been so full of pickets that customers cannot enter. If they do find a place, he charged, the pickets will not permit them to leave their cars.

Wadler said his truck drivers are being pursued and intimidated, and that tires of their cars are being slashed. From across the street, he said, terrorists hurl threats and insults at the workers.

The injunction was asked in Circuit court against pickets of the Retail Clerks, Groceries, Provisions, Fruits, and Vegetables union, local 1248; Meat Cutters and Butchers' Workmen of North America, Amalgamated, local 546; Egg Inspectors' union, meat cutters' local 663, and Chicago Grocery Market and Commissary Drivers' union, local 752.

Union Aid Shot.

The man shot during the store's labor troubles is Harry Thieme, financial secretary of the egg handlers' union.

Judge Donald S. McKinlay issued a temporary injunction yesterday in Superior court restraining Local 210 of the International Oil Workers' union from picketing the twelve filling stations of the Burnham Refining company. The company asserts the pickets carry strike banners, although the strike is in the oil fields of the Continental Oil company. Judge McKinlay referred the case to a master in chancery who is to determine if the Burnham company is an agent of Continental or merely a jobber selling its oil.

Judge McKinlay also issued a temporary injunction against intimidation and coercion by either side in a controversy between the Blue Star Automobile Stores corporation and the Appliance and Furniture Salesmen's union and the Retail Clerks' International Protective association. The company, operating twenty stores, asked the injunction. Judge McKinlay ordered an investigation by a master in chancery to determine if either side has practiced intimidation or coercion.

PENDERGAST AID LOSES CITY JOB IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., April 22.—[U. P.]—Bernard W. Gnefkow, who drew $160 a month from the city as a sanitary inspector while he was working as Boss Tom Pendergast's private secretary, today was dropped from the city pay roll on orders of Mayor Bryce B. Smith. The mayor has ordered the discharge of 500 city employés in a pay roll cleanup.

"Gnefkow is through at the city hall," Smith said. "He was ordered discharged the moment I learned he was on the health department pay roll. The day of political drones drawing pay for little or no service is over. Every person on the pay roll from now on must give a day's work for a day's pay."

TWO GUNMEN ROB STORE OF $235.

LIVE ALL YOUR LIFE!

By CALEB

SOMEWHERE, not so long ago, we saw the text of an ingenuous letter written by a small boy to a very grown-up man of the world. The sentences were mostly such as you would expect from one of his tender years, until he came to the close . . . and then appeared a bit of naivete that the recipient of that letter is not likely ever to forget. For his finale, this lad had added, either in a flash of singular insight, or merely for what he hoped would be an appropriate ending: "I hope you live all your life."

If spiritual insight prompted those seven concluding words, never could it have been better employed by the most sophisticated of advisers! To live all one's life is not the simple, day-to-day affair one would infer on first consideration. Too many instances are about us, of men and women quietly enslaved in life's repetitive round, to render the matter so easy of explanation. Eating and sleeping—reading the morning stock reports—walking the same four blocks to the "L"—lunching at the same table—saying the same things to the same people, spring, summer, autumn and winter of each successive year . . . is certainly not the whole story of living life! . . .

Essentials to existence, obviously. But not in any sense all the ingredients demanded by a progressive formula for living. Physical well-being is but a beginning of the long way, traversed by mental and spiritual marches, which leads to full expression of the heart and soul within the best-kept body.

Everywhere around us is a principle of growth to be realized; forces for evolution and progress that must be intelligently dealt with. To go on and forward calls for new additions to past knowledge; new interests added to the old; new extensions of spirit through music, painting, plays and books; fresh insights cultivated in fresh friendships. Not mere animal existence; but unfoldment. A process independent of the passing years, and possible so long as one's faculties remain intact.

Goethe, toiling at the final episodes of Faust past his eightieth year—Verdi, composing Aida after reaching threescore and ten—Beethoven, creating his finest symphonies undefeated by deafness—Milton, writing his greatest poems when sightless — Gladstone, learning Greek in his eighties—Lincoln, self-educated — Theodore Roosevelt, self-disciplined despite frail health . . . are but a few inspiring reminders of men who lived "all their lives." The whole story and glory of growth, through ultimate accomplishment, is summed in the simple criterion of how much, in the last analysis, we are all of us alive.

LABOR ASSASSINS KILL 20; NOT ONE SLAYER CAPTURED

That's 8 Year Toll as Guns Roar Out Again.

Twenty times in the last eight years labor assassins have taken the lives of men and women in union wars on Chicago streets. This toll of death apparently bears out the reports by experts in criminology which say the safest form of murder is the labor killing. For not a single slayer involved in these crimes has been apprehended.

Latest of these victims is James Lawrence, the Wieboldt department store truck helper who was shot to death on April 12 by labor terrorists. A $5,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of his slayers. But state's attorney's investigators say they have been unable to find the killers.

Sluggers Kill Laundry Driver.

Labor assassins who struck three times in 1938 have been equally elusive, the state's attorney's assistants report. In two of these instances there were no arrests. One was the murder of an independent laundry driver, Lloyd Rourke, by a union picket outside the Fairfax hotel, 1639 Hyde Park boulevard, the afternoon of Feb. 10.

Rourke had refused an order by pickets to stay away from the Del Prado hotel where the Trades and Crafts council, an overhead organization of unions, had established a picket line. Rourke had a contract to carry laundry finished at the Del Prado to other neighborhood hotels and apartment buildings.

When he stopped outside the Fairfax hotel sluggers who had been waiting hauled him from his automobile. One man knocked him down and then beat him to death with a baseball bat.

Shoot Foe of Union Chief.

A few weeks later, on March 25, Edward Shuler, a member of local 399 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, was shot to death on the west side. It was discovered in subsequent investigations that he had been an opponent of the ruling faction in the union and that he had been beaten at a meeting a few weeks before he was slain.

The last labor murder of 1938 came on Aug. 7 when James G. Dungan, boss of the painters' union, was slain by two gunmen on the sidewalk in front of his home at 3116 Lowe avenue. There were a score or more witnesses to this shooting, which occurred at 9 o'clock in the evening, but no arrests ever were made.

Police say all these killings are merely incidents in the struggle for power by professional gangsters and labor racketeers who seek to control wealthy unions. Terror is one of their chief weapons in enforcing their will upon hapless members of these unions. The killings are part of the blood purges these racketeers inflict upon their opponents.

This explanation fits the pattern for most of the killings. Five other persons connected in various ways with the painters' union, for example, have been killed since 1931. They were Frank Carr, in 1931; Michael [Bubs] Quinlan, a gangster and slugger, in 1934; Roy Thompson, a business agent, in 1934; Mrs. George Henneman, killed by bullets intended for her husband, who was financial secretary of a painters' local in 1936, and Robert A. Shields, a union member, in 1937.

Five Slain in Movie War.

Five killings of this nature have removed active members or officials of the Moving Picture Operators' union. The victims were: Jacob Kaufman in 1931; Fred F. Oser in 1933; Tommy Maloy, the hoodlum czar of the union, in 1935; Clyde Osterberg, an anti-Maloy member, in 1935; and Fred C. Blacker, another anti-Maloy worker, in 1937.

Teamsters' union troubles accounted for the deaths of Timothy J. Lynch, the west suburban boss, in 1931; Dan Tagnetti, also in 1931; George [Red] Barker, in 1932; James Tribble in 1933; Three Fingered Jack White in 1934; Michael J. Galvin, head of the so-called outlaw teamsters' union, in 1936.

Barker and White were gunmen and gang killers who tried to seize rich union treasuries when their prohibition profits were ended by repeal.

Slain in Chicago Labor Strife

(Story in adjoining column.)

Chicago labor disputes have resulted in twenty unsolved killings since 1931. Below are sixteen of the victims, each identified as to the year he was killed and the labor faction in whose dispute he was involved.

COURT UPHOLDS RIGHT TO FIRE UNION WORKERS

Newark, N. J., April 22.—(AP)—Vice Chancellor John O. Bigelow ruled today that New Jersey employers not affected by the national labor relations act had a right to discharge employés for union activities.

"An employer," he said, "still has a right to pick and choose whom he will hire and fire and to run his business as a nonunion shop."

The court granted a preliminary anti-picketing injunction to Krich-Radisco, Inc., an electrical concern.

MANY VIEW NORTHERN LIGHTS.

Many Chicagoans reported an excellent view of the northern lights last night. They were best seen from Elmhurst and other western suburbs. The display lasted from about 8 o'clock until midnight.

SEIZE BARTENDER IN ACT OF SERVING BEER TO GIRL, 14

Robert Fishel, 4541 Malden street, a bartender in a saloon at 1213 Wilson avenue, was arrested last night for serving beer to a girl 14 years old. The girl's mother noticed beer on her breath and notified Capt. Patrick O'Connell of Town Hall station. He assigned Detectives Edward Kane and Thomas Benn to the case. They took the girl to the saloon and ordered beer. Fishel served all three, according to police. He was promptly arrested.

TAKE BODY FROM FOX RIVER.

The body of a man about 53 years old was recovered last night from the Fox river, about two miles north of Algonquin. Cards in his pockets indicated he was Anton Melin of 3000 South Kenneth avenue.

COUNTY DIVIDED BY MURDER TRIAL OF VETERINARIAN

Morrison, Ill., April 22.—[Special.]—Dr. Lyle Dingman, 32 years old, a veterinarian of nearby Prophetstown, will go on trial here Monday on a charge of murdering his wife, Laura. The case is a Whiteside county mystery and the people are sharply divided on the question of Dingman's guilt or innocence.

The trial will be before Judge Francis J. Coyle in the Circuit court. A panel of thirty-five veniremen, many of them farmers, has been called for selection of a jury. State's Attorney L. L. Winn will head the prosecution staff. Defense counsel is led by Jacob J. Cantlin of Rock Falls and Jacob J. Ludens of Sterling.

Found Dead in Yard.

Mrs. Dingman, who was 28 years old, was found dead in the yard of her home in Prophetstown early on the morning of March 19. Her right arm had been twisted out of joint at the elbow, but there were no other marks of violence. She was fully clothed, except that she lacked shoes.

Dr. Dingman discovered the body. His first story was that he had last seen his wife several hours before. They had visited a number of taverns the night before and on their return home, he said, he went to bed while Mrs. Dingman went to the bathroom, apparently to undress.

The veterinarian said he dozed for a few minutes and was awakened by a noise at his front door. Believing some friends had decided to make a late call he did not go to the door.

Two days later Dr. Dingman told a different story to State's Attorney Winn. The veterinarian said that after he and his wife returned home from the taverns the door bell rang. She wished to go downstairs to answer, but he turned off the bedroom light and tried to stop her, he said.

In the struggle, he said, she tripped over a bench and fell out of the window. He went down to look for her, he asserted, but not finding her, returned to bed and slept. This story, which came from Dingman after he had submitted to lie detector tests, will be the mainstay of the defense at the trial, it was indicated.

CONTINUE EFFORT TO MAKE CUTS IN ILLINOIS' BUDGET

2 Investigations Resume in Capital This Week.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 22.—[Special.]—Twin economy efforts to cut the $456,000,000 proposed state budget for the coming biennium will continue next week—one inspired by Republicans and the other by the Democratic state administration. To date reductions totaling more than $2,000,000 have been made.

The legislative economy committee headed by Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield] will meet again Tuesday to try to reduce large budget items.

Similar efforts will be made by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle on Thursday morning, when he will continue his questioning of state office and department heads on amounts which could be eliminated from their appropriation requests. Stelle is acting at the direction of Gov. Henry Horner in this examination.

U. of I. Marked for $800,000 Cut.

The two largest items marked for elimination last Thursday were $1,000,000 from the inheritance tax refund in State Treasurer Louie E. Lewis' budget request, and $800,000 from the appropriation for the University of Illinois. Lewis made his reduction voluntarily, and also cut $35,000 from his contemplated office expense. The university trustees will discuss the $800,000 reduction proposal made by Stelle next Thursday, when the legislature makes its biennial visit to Urbana. It is predicted that the answer will be affirmative.

Cuts were made in the appropriation of every officer called before Stelle. Almost all made voluntary reduction proposals. John A. Wieland, superintendent of public instruction, objected to any lowering of his appropriation, it was said, and had a sharp interchange with Stelle. Eventually, however, a reduction of $19,000 was made in Wieland's request.

Parole Bill Pending.

The Searcy committee started the economy move by inquiring into charges against Democratic office holders, including George Ray, warden of the Vandalia state prison farm.

Another important matter pending in the house is the Ward-Schnackenberg parole reform bill which Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] will discuss before the house committee on judicial practice and uniform laws. This committee is headed by Representative Charles J. Jenkins [R., Chicago].

The house is expected to be divided sharply over the city manager enabling legislation.

IT'S SOME JOBBO, SAYS HIGHWOOD ITALIAN TEACHER

Strange Speech Explained to Language Group.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

In the village of Highwood, unpretentious north shore suburb, a policeman is called a policio. In the idiom of the townsfolk, he walks along the streeto, past the butchero storo and the grosserio, and accepts no alibis if he finds your trucko parked on the sidewocco.

This strange form of speech which has sprung up in Highwood is the greatest problem that confronts Miss Harriet Cowles, a teacher of foreign languages in the Deerfield-Shields High school in Highland Park, she declared yesterday in a talk before the Association of Modern Language Teachers of the central west and south. The association met in the Drake hotel.

Endings Give Trouble.

Her job is to teach pure Italian to the children of Highwood's little Italy. That should be easy enough in many cases, because the parents of many of the children have not been in America more than fifteen years. But before she can do it, she must strain their vocabularies carefully, separating the English root words from their Italian endings, and then prove to the doubting students that she is not fooling.

"The parents of these children come to me and protest," she said. "Often the word in question is a strictly American word, one they had never heard in Italian. I always have to get down the dictionary to prove to them I am right."

Laboratory Method Told.

Prof. Elmer F. Engel, head of the department of languages at the University of Kansas, and for forty-eight years an instructor there, explained his laboratory method of teaching German.

No books are used and no English words are spoken. Grammar, the bugbear of all language instructors, is not taught as such. The subject is presented with flash cards—such as are used in primary reading—conversation, and a basic vocabulary which the student compiles as his lessons progress.

Classes, which cover two hours, are divided in two periods. The first is devoted to pronunciation and speech. The last is devoted to creative written use of the words the student has learned. Prof. Engel said that his students speak, write, and read German easily after one year.

SUBURB OFFICIAL KILLED, 3 HURT AS AUTOS CRASH

2 Women Among Injured in Palatine Collision.

Louis T. Reuse, who was elected alderman in Palatine last week, died early today in the Palatine Community hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident in which three other persons were injured. Ald. Reuse was 62 years old, a supervisor for the Commonwealth Edison company, and lived at 24 West Chicago avenue, Palatine.

He was a passenger in a car driven by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bertha Reuse, 24, of 157 North Plum Grove road, Palatine. They were driving in Rohlwing road, near Palatine, when she lost control of the car and crashed head-on into a machine bearing Edward Hamenker, 41, and his wife, Margaret, 36, of 248 West Wilson avenue, Palatine. Mrs. Reuse suffered internal injuries, and the Hamenkers leg fractures.

Alexander Dayen, 40 years old, 524 Monticello avenue, was killed yesterday by a hit and run automobile driver as he walked toward a safety island at Potomac and Western avenues.

Miss Anna Joyce, 60 years old, a nurse in St. Bernard's hospital, died in the Southtown hospital of injuries incurred Thursday when she was struck by a car at Garfield boulevard and Hermitage avenue. The driver was William Fingerett, 16 years old, 1910 West 48th street, a junior in Lindblom High school.

The body of a woman who was killed Friday night by an automobile at 61st street and Ashland avenue was identified as that of Mrs. Stefana Stiglich, 60 years old, 5928 South Justine street. The driver of the car was Mrs. Jeanette Luby, 6613 Normal boulevard.

Joseph Kelly, 7550 South Paulina street, died in St. George's hospital of injuries incurred Friday when he was struck by a car in front of his home. The driver was William Coulton, 7357 Stony Island avenue.

Mrs. Hattie Clark, 20 years old, colored, of 948 Adams street, Gary, died last night in the Provident hospital of injuries suffered yesterday when she was struck by an automobile at 42d street and South Park way. The driver was Mrs. Frank Watterman, 55, of 7916 South Bishop street.

George Jessie, 545 West 31st street, colored, died in County hospital of injuries incurred April 9 when his automobile struck a light pole at 53d street and Michigan avenue.

Henry Irving, 30, of 1244 Morgan street, colored, died in County hospital of injuries incurred Friday night when he was struck by a car at Roosevelt road and Halsted street. Police found the car abandoned half a block away. In it was Miss Estelle Harrington, 1317 Morgan street, colored, who said the driver had fled. She said she did not know his name.

John McElroy, 70, colored, of 3306 Wabash avenue, died in County hospital of injuries incurred April 7 when he was knocked down by an automobile at 33d street and Michigan avenue. The driver was Jacob Lasky, 167 West Washington street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 281 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 219 were killed in Chicago, where 5,756 were injured in the same period.

COUNTY HOSPITAL PATIENTS' PARK SECTION FINISHED

Area for Convalescents to Occupy Two Blocks.

A convalescent park is the latest step in the expansion program for Cook County hospital. Completion of a section of this park was announced yesterday by County Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke, chairman of the commission's hospital committee.

When work is completed the park will occupy all of the two blocks across Harrison street from the main entrance of County hospital, with the exception of the area covered by the West Side hospital building at Harrison and Wolcott streets.

Sale of the bankrupt West Side hospital to the county for $110,000 was approved Thursday by Federal Judge William H. Holly. The hospital, operated for twenty-five years by private physicians, will be reopened in about two weeks as a County hospital outpatient department and interns' home.

Store to Be Demolished.

The convalescent park now occupies the block bounded by Harrison, Honore, Congress, and Wood streets, except for a candy store at Harrison and Honore streets, which will be demolished.

The landscaping was done by the WPA. The county commission used part of an $8,000 park appropriation for materials.

The commission has yet to acquire the greater part of the western block, bounded by Honore, Congress, Ogden, Wolcott, and Harrison streets. The only building in this area is the West Side hospital. The University of Illinois owns the remaining land and has agreed to trade it for an equivalent amount of land to be acquired by the commission on Taylor street, two blocks south, according to Bobrytzke.

Little Remodeling Needed.

Bobrytzke said the West Side building needs little remodeling to become a clinic for the 700 to 800 ambulatory patients treated each day in the overcrowded outpatient department in the main building.

The building may be used later as a temporary contagious disease hospital if the commission receives the $2,000,000 grant for a new contagious building requested from the Public Works administration. The new building would be erected on the site of the old contagious division hospital, on Wolcott street, behind the main building.

MOTORIST SHOT FLEEING CRASH DIES OF WOUND

Morris Ford, 25 years old, a mechanic, who was shot and wounded by a private watchman when he failed to stop his automobile after a collision Monday night, died in the Bridewell hospital yesterday. He was shot by George Pearce, 31, of 407 North Laramie avenue, head of a watch service in the Austin district.

Ford was driving his car in Madison street when he ran into a parked car and then caromed into another machine in the 5300 block on that street. Pearce attempted to stop him by waving him down in the middle of the street, but was nearly struck by Ford's car. He fired two shots at the car as it sped past. One of the bullets struck Ford in the head.

Pearce was not held by the Fillmore street police, but will tell his story at an inquest in the county morgue tomorrow. Ford lived at 5539 Congress street.

YOUNG CHICAGO DIPLOMAT GETS POST IN ZURICH

At the age of 24 years, Martin J. Hillenbrand of Chicago has just become American vice consul at Zurich, Switzerland. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Hillenbrand of 4741 North Troy street. His mother yesterday received her first letter from him since he took the post. The vice consul is a graduate of St. Michael's High school here and of the University of Dayton at Dayton, O. He took graduate training at Columbia university. Officials say he is one of the youngest Americans in the consular service.

NEW DEAL STEPS UP PRESSURE ON NATION'S PAPERS

Passes Out Favors to Friendly Press.

lisher of the Nashville Tennesseean and the Evening Tennesseean. The bonds had been put up with the RFC as collateral for a government loan to the Canal Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans. The Canal bank suspended and the RFC became the technical owner of the bonds.

The receiver of the Canal bank proposed to sell the bonds for $200,000 to James Hammond, publisher of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, who had been critical of the New Deal. The RFC promptly intervened by asking Paul Davis, president of the American National bank, whether he thought a better price might be obtained. Davis is a brother of Norman Davis, who is now chairman of the Red Cross, but at that time was Mr. Roosevelt's roving ambassador. The Davis bank already held $210,000 of the Tennessee bonds.

Outbid Anti-New Dealers.

Pro-New Dealer Davis offered $250,000 for the RFC collateral, $50,000 more than Anti-New Dealer Hammond had offered. The RFC accepted the Davis offer without inquiring of Hammond if he would top it. Thus, the two papers were kept from falling into the hands of a critic of the administration.

Many newspapers are in hock to manufacturers of newsprint for their supply of paper and some of the newsprint manufacturers are in hock to the New Deal. The newsprint concerns in numerous instances control the policies of their newspaper debtors. Being under obligations to the New Deal for loans, such newsprint borrowers exercise a virtual censorship in favor of the administration over the newspapers they control. The RFC declined to disclose the names of the sixty-eight borrowers in the paper and pulp industry.

In numerous other ways is the press subjected to influence by the administration. Even the news of the activities of the government is treated by the administration as a private commodity.

TRAGEDY RIDES BERT'S ATTEMPT TO GREET SPRING

Spring came to the Brookfield zoo yesterday. Bert the Australian bower bird was stirred to action. He began building his bower. It really wasn't needed; he and his mate Bessie already had a nest, a utilitarian contraption to hold eggs. The bower was to be just a place in which to dally.

Into the framework of the house Bert wove some bright pieces of cloth, a few feathers, and a mass of twigs. He was just ready to invite Bessie in to see the interior when tragedy descended in the form of two piping crows, also from the antipodes. The crows are bad neighbors; they proved it by tearing up poor Bert's little playhouse and caw-laughing at him.

"It's too bad," said Assistant Zoo Director Robert Bean, "but Bert will succeed eventually. Before long we'll give him and Bessie an outside cage all of their own; then they can have as fine a love nest as they like."

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and his bride, the former Mary Lee Epling Hartford.

Hollywood, Cal., April 22.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr., film actor and magazine writer, married Mrs. Mary Lee Epling Hartford, comely divorcée of West Virginia, New York City, and Florida, today.

The ceremony, at the Methodist Episcopal church in nearby Westwood, was attended by about twenty relatives and close friends of the couple.

Douglas Fairbanks Sr. served as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Giles Thomas Epling of Bluefield, W. Va. The Rev. Gordon C. Chapman performed the ceremony.

Young Fairbanks is the former husband of Joan Crawford, screen star who recently divorced her second husband, Actor Franchot Tone.

Mrs. Hartford a few weeks ago was divorced from G. Huntington Hartford, Palm Beach, Fla., sportsman and writer.

The newlyweds met some eighteen months ago at Actress Merle Oberon's home.

For her bridal gown Mrs. Hartford chose a creation of rose beige silk with a full circular skirt, shirred bodice, and V shaped, draped neckline.

2 Indianans Electrocuted at Work on Phone Lines

Evansville, Ind., April 22.—[Special.]—Herman C. Horn, 47 years old, and Alvin Korff, 16 years old, were electrocuted today while working at Inglefield on lines of the Inglefield Telephone company. Horn, who was president of the company, was atop a pole. Apparently he tried to toss a coil of wire to another pole, but missed, and the coil struck a high tension wire. William Elpers, another workman, suffered a burned hand.

DENTIST IS JUST A PAIN AT THIS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Attorney Lloyd G. Kirkland was pretty sad about it all as he described his birthday party yesterday for Judge Mason S. Sullivan in Racine avenue court. There he was, he said, 80 years old Friday and expecting a nice, quiet little party when he got home to 7445 Sheridan road. What did he find but Dr. Robert J. Samuels, 43, of 11139 Michigan avenue, a dentist, who scolded him for being late.

At dinner, he said, Dr. Samuels criticized his manners, grabbing a spoon from him and saying, "That's no way to eat soup!" Attorney Kirkland ordered him out—but twenty minutes later a cement rabbit crashed through the window. Police arrested Dr. Samuels.

The dentist told the court he couldn't remember the incident. He was drunk, he said, and so sorry now. He turned over $35 for the window and the judge dismissed the charge.

Spring Gets in a Bandit's Blood, but Victims Sulk

A bandit who talked about the weather and the spring sunshine held up the attendants at three filling stations yesterday and took a total of $88. The places robbed were at 341 West Grand avenue, 3257 Southport avenue, and 1600 Addison street.

FATHER AND 5 OF 10 CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

Ottumwa, Ia., April 22.—[U. P.]—A father and five of his ten children were burned to death today in a fire at their small house here. The dead were: Charles Helmick, 41 years old, a truck driver; Lola and Leota, 12 year old twins; Donald, 8; Helen, 7, and Darrell, 4. Three other children—Joe, 10; Charles Jr., 11, and Max, 1 month old—were injured. Joe and Max are near death. Mrs. Helmick and two other sons, William 20, and Wayne, 17, escaped unhurt.

The five children were asleep upstairs when the fire broke out after a kerosene explosion. The flames spread rapidly through the house. Firemen were called to the scene but were handicapped because of the long distance from an adequate water supply.

The father died when he went upstairs to try and rescue the children.

ASSAIL CORRUPT DEMOCRATS IN PARTY AND OFFICE

2 N. Y. Leaders Demand House Cleaning.

New York, April 22.—[Special.]—More than 1,000 Democrats tonight heard two Democratic leaders assail corruption and irregularities among Democrats in party and public positions. The occasion was a Jefferson day dinner of the National Democratic club.

The unscheduled note was introduced by John J. Bennett Jr., attorney general of New York, and United States Attorney John T. Cahill, both stanch Democrats, whose mention of "the unclean and criminal elements in our party" was made in the presence of James A. Farley, postmaster general and national Democratic chairman; Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and other party stalwarts from all parts of the state and adjacent areas.

Deplore Dereliction of Few.

Bennett and Cahill made obvious reference to the conviction of James J. Hines, Tammany district leader, to the recent indictments obtained by Special Assistant Attorney General John H. Amen, in the campaign to clean up political corruption in Democratic controlled Brooklyn, and to the indictment of former United States Circuit Court Judge Martin T. Manton. It was unfortunate, said these two speakers, that the dereliction of a few should mar the record of the Democratic party.

Attorney General Bennett declared that men whose sole object in life was to line their own pockets should not be allowed to remain members of the Democratic party. In calling upon the Democrats to drive out these "unclean and criminal elements in our party," he warned that "if we don't remedy these conditions, the voters will!"

In his address on equality before the law, Cahill declared there must be the same brand of justice for rich and poor alike and that there must be men on the bench who won't "sully the ermine of their high calling."

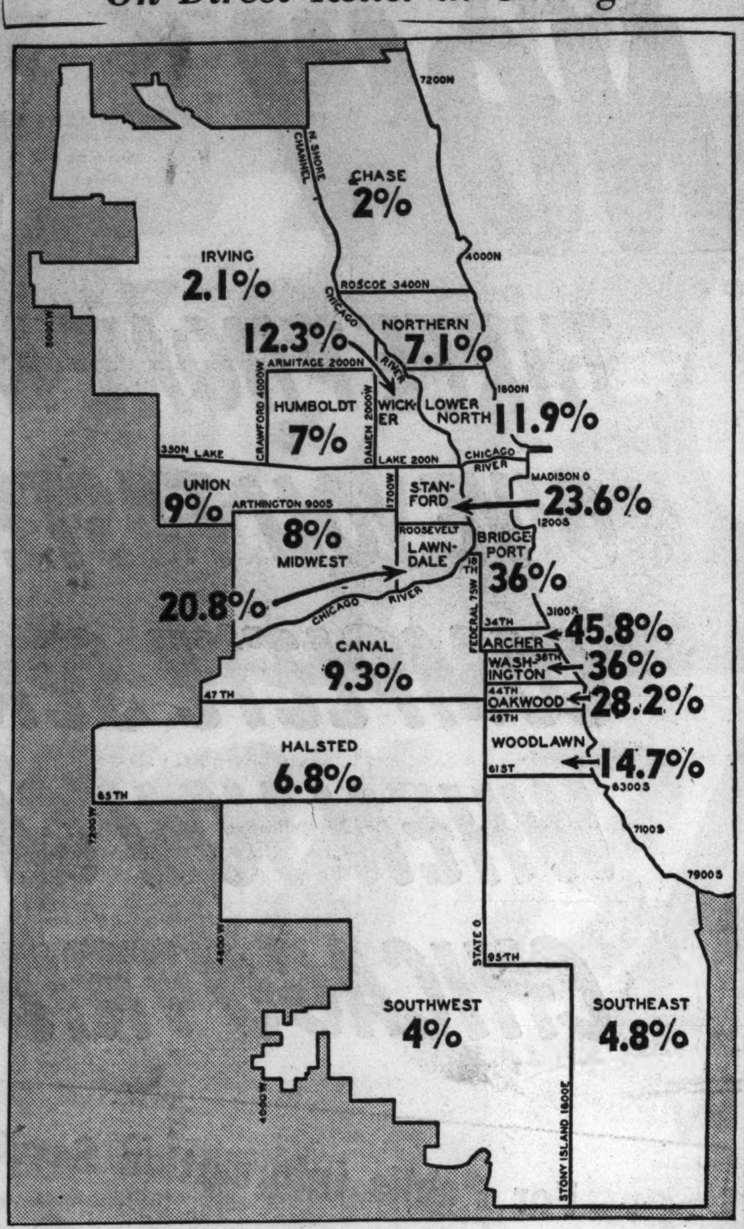
Demands Honest Judges.

"It does seem to me that to command the respect of the public at large one who has been elevated to the high post of judge should spend all his time and attention being a judge," Cahill continued. "When he accepts this high calling he should forsake all interests other than those of his judicial office."

Secretary Wallace chose the occasion to praise President Roosevelt as "a symbol of peace and prosperity" and the greatest progressive Democrat of the century.

Wallace also talked shop to the extent of declaring that, with the Supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the marketing provision of the agricultural adjustment act, the farmers of the nation for the first time since the world war had in Washington a sympathetic congress, President, and Supreme court.

On Direct Relief in Chicago



The percentage of the population reeciving direct relief in March in each of the Chicago Relief administration's nineteen districts. Figures used in the map were prepared by E. E. Ferebee, chief statistician of the CRA.

E. E. Ferebee, Chicago Relief administration statistician, reported yesterday that 277,551 persons, or 8.5 per cent of the people in Chicago, were supported on the direct relief rolls during March. In March, 1938, there were 262,010 persons on relief in Chicago, according to the report. Ferebee's tabulations did not include WPA workers, recipients of old age assistance, or those receiving blind pensions or mother's pensions.

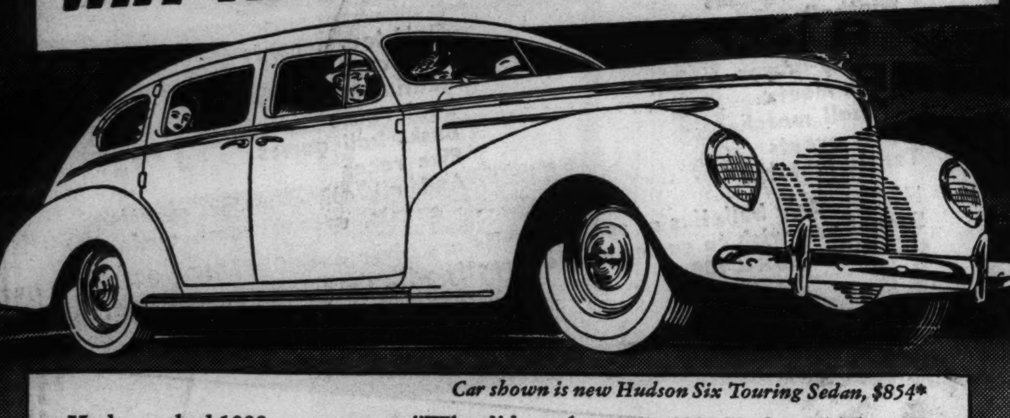
It was estimated that inclusion of the latter types of relief would show that nearly 17 per cent of Chicago's population is being supported by some form of public assistance. Ferebee's statistics showed how many direct reliefers there were in each of the CRA's nineteen districts, but he said that this breakdown cannot be made for the other types of assistance.

The population of each relief district and the percentage of persons on direct relief follow:

District—	Population.	Pct. on Relief.
Archer	22,702	45.8
Bridgeport	34,922	36
Canal	169,329	9.3
Chase	359,210	2
Halsted	246,628	6.8
Humboldt	182,282	7
Irving	611,891	2.1
Lawndale	52,811	20.8
Lower North	99,327	11.9
Midwest	219,919	8
Northern	134,578	7.1
Oakwood	53,108	28.2
Southeast	311,777	4.8
Southwest	296,819	4
Stanford	50,915	23.6
Union	163,370	9
Washington	42,962	36
Wicker	108,001	12.3
Woodlawn	107,977	14.7

The Archer district, on the southern edge of the loop, was high with 45.8 per cent of its population on relief, and the Chase district, on the far north side, was low with only 2 per cent.

LET 1000 OWNERS TELL YOU WHY THEY BOUGHT HUDSONS



*Car shown is new Hudson Six Touring Sedan, $854

Hudson asked 1000 new owners: "Why did you buy your 1939 Hudson?" They all said: "We liked its looks!" The other most common answers are summed up below. They show why you too will get "more car for your money" in a Hudson.

"SAFEST"

Extra protection not found in any other car built today: Patented Double-Safe Hydraulics, Auto-Poise Control, Widest Windshield Vision, Dash-Locking Safety Hood and other important safety features.

"MOST ECONOMICAL"

Hudson gives remarkable gasoline economy. Owners of various models report 18 to 24 miles per gallon. And no oil added between regular changes.

"ROOMIEST"

More room all around for both luggage and passengers. Solid comfort for three in any seat, even in the lowest priced Hudsons. And the luxury of Airfoam seat cushions—of a revolutionary new material—in beautiful new Salon Interiors.

"BEST PERFORMANCE"

Top horsepower per pound of car weight. Smoothest performance on the road. Handy Shift at steering wheel. Flashing pick-up, and always plenty of power in reserve. Owners cover tremendous distances without tiring.

"LONGEST LIFE"

One of the most outstanding Hudson qualities. Hudsons go and keep on going. Owners report thousands on thousands of miles without mechanical trouble—and total upkeep costs that are almost negligible.

"BEST NEW FEATURES"

All the above—and many more great 1939 features make a Hudson not only a better car to drive now, but worth more to you at resale time.

THEY ALL AGREE HUDSON GIVES MORE CAR FOR YOUR MONEY ... AND WE'LL GIVE YOU MORE MONEY FOR YOUR CAR

BENCH SCANDALS IN N. Y. PROVOKE REFORM DEMAND

System Under Cloud of Growing Suspicion.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 22.—[Special.]—With the judiciary in New York City under the blackest cloud of suspicion since the days of the notorious Boss Tweed, demands are growing for a general overhauling of the judicial structure.

The demands arise from the revelations of bribery, corruption, and misconduct in recent months. Already two judges are under indictment, one has been removed from the bench and disbarred, while three others are under investigation. Federal, state, and city courts are represented in the group. Other judges are under inquiry.

One request for a sweeping revision of the judiciary system lying on the desk of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and legislative leaders comes from a group of prominent men and women. They ask appointment of a special commission to study the judiciary article of the state constitution and report to the legislature.

Stimson Among Proponents.

Among the proponents of this plan are Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state of the United States; Samuel Seabury, noted attorney; Arthur A. Ballantine, former undersecretary of the treasury, and C. H. Tuttle, former United States attorney.

Another demand for judicial reform has been voiced by Lawrence S. Mayers, foreman of the grand jury which indicted former Federal Judge Martin T. Manton. Mayers expressed his views in a letter sent to the city affairs committee, of which he is treasurer.

"At no time that I can recall has the public held our judiciary in lower esteem," asserted Mayers.

Inquiry into the affairs of Judge Manton, senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals since 1926 and a member of the court since his appointment by the late President Wilson in 1918, began in January. Then followed a series of sensational disclosures. Manton has been indicted three times on charges of bribery, corruption, and conspiracy. He will go to trial on May 22.

The curious nature of Manton's financial transactions was described by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in a letter to Hatton W. Sumners, chairman of the judiciary committee of the house of representatives. On the following day, Jan. 30, Manton resigned from the bench, thereby forestalling impeachment proceedings.

Another Under Investigation.

According to Dewey, Manton or corporations controled by him had received as loans more than $400,000 from persons or companies interested in matters handled by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

One of Manton's co-defendants, John H. Lotsch, has pleaded guilty. Manton allegedly accepted two $5,000 bribes in payment for his aid and judicial influence in clearing Lotsch of an extortion charge. The former jurist is also accused of accepting $67,000 for deciding a patent infringement suit in favor of Almon B. and L. C. Hall, brothers in the egg hatching business. He was further accused of influencing a decision on the Schick electric razor case.

Dovetailing into the Manton case is the investigation of another federal judge, Edwin S. Thomas of Connecticut. Thomas, who has frequently sat in court here in New York City, directed a jury to acquit Lotsch in a bribery case. The bribe was allegedly paid in connection with a patent infringement suit when Lotsch was a special master in the federal court in Brooklyn.

Also under scrutiny by a federal grand jury here in New York is Judge Thomas' appointment of receivers in the equity receivership proceedings against McKesson & Robbins, Inc. This is the drug concern which was headed by F. Donald Coster, who killed himself after being unmasked as an ex-convict, Philip Musica. Judge Thomas, like Manton, was an appointee of President Wilson.

Special Prosecutor Named.

Judge George W. Martin, Democratic politician who since 1920 has been on the County court of Brooklyn and now ranks as senior jurist, was indicted ten days ago on a charge of taking a bribe of $1,000 to dismiss an abortion case.

The Martin indictment was obtained by John Harlan Amen, appointed a special assistant attorney general last November to investigate official corruption in Brooklyn.

The judge removed from the bench was Magistrate Mark Rudich, an appointee of Mayor Jimmy Walker in 1929. Five judges of the Appellate division of the Supreme court removed Rudich three weeks ago as unfit. The ruling was based on charges Rudich had taken bribes from a confessed "fixer" whose clientele included persons arrested for prostitution, extortion, vagrancy, and other offenses.

Yesterday Rudich was disbarred by the unanimous decision of the Appellate division. The judges held the ousted magistrate had been "guilty of conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice."

Shirley's Birthday

Shirley Temple as she was about to begin her career in the movies.

Shirley, established as a film star, celebrating her seventh birthday.

Shirley today, still a favorite with world's motion picture fans.

Hollywood, Cal., April 22.—(AP)—The focal point of attention after a recent preview was the star of the picture—Shirley Temple—who will be 10 years old tomorrow. Hundreds wanted to see her close up.

As usual, a flying wedge escorted the child to her motor while a throng was held back by officers and ropes.

A boy of about 10 shouted, "Hi, Shirley! How you been?"

Shirley stopped, to the embarrassment of her escorts, turned to the boy and, with as little concern as if they'd met at an ice cream cart, began to talk. He had been a playmate at a resort where Shirley had vacationed. She liked the young man, was glad to see him and thought it perfectly proper to talk to him.

Shirley's biggest birthday present will be a miniature roller coaster from Harry Revel.

Her favorite plaything at the moment is an electric merry-go-round which revolves in a twelve foot circle.

"It goes whizz," laughed Shirley. "The kids like it, but big folks can't ride on it. It makes them seasick."

SENATOR WANTS IOWA PROBE INTO LOBBYISTS' WORK

Seeks to Find How They Spend Their Money.

Des Moines, Ia., April 22.—[Special.]—Both houses of the Iowa legislature today cracked down on lobbyists who appear at the state house here to exert pressure for various bills.

In the senate, Winfred Mighell [D., Holstein] filed a demand for an investigation of lobbyists to determine their salaries and commissions and what they do with the money.

Mighell seeks an inquiry into the legislative process and the control and activities of "all three houses," the third house being the lobbyists.

His resolution would be extended to "the salaries and commissions of all members of the 'third house,' and whether such system of control lends itself readily to a possible split or payoff system to a member or members in key positions, also to what extent it interferes with the normal democratic processes of government and allows timid or scheming members to work behind a screen of secrecy and deceive their constituents as to their responsibility."

The house barred all lobbyists from the chamber for the second consecutive day, and passed a resolution praising a representative who had rapped pressure groups for what he called unfair and unjust tactics.

DAIRY WINS PLEA TO CITE USERS OF PAPER BOTTLES

Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., won the right yesterday to take depositions that paper milk containers are used in New York and Philadelphia and in Chicago suburbs. The dairy company is trying to force the city to permit the use of paper containers here. Walter Schaefer, assistant corporation counsel, asked Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward to exclude from the case depositions regarding the use of paper containers elsewhere. Judge Woodward denied Schaefer's motion yesterday.

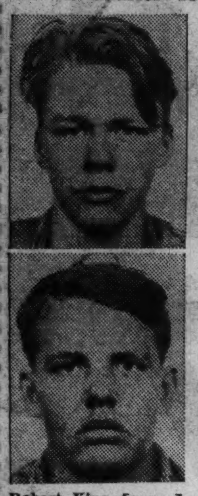
3 ST. CHARLES FUGITIVES TAKEN BACK TO SCHOOL

Face Loss of Privileges After Escape.

Two inmates who escaped from the St. Charles Training School for Boys Friday night were back in the unwalled institution last night. Capt. W. T. Harmon, school manager, said they would be placed in disciplinary cottages and deprived of their privileges.



Robert King [upper] and Richard Glissman.

The two are Robert King, 19 years old, of Rockford, and Richard Glissman, 16, of Elgin. They were captured yesterday near Harding.

A third inmate, Walter Van Dyke, 16, of Mattoon, who escaped Tuesday, was seized in Mattoon yesterday and held there for his return to the school.

The three escapes brought to thirty-nine the total since Jan. 1.

Woman Brings About Capture.

Mrs. Herman Brannon, a telephone operator in Harding, brought about the capture of King and Glissman. She became suspicious of the two when she saw them walking in a road to Harding and telephoned Sherif Edmund J. Welter in Ottawa.

Welter caught the fugitives in a cornfield near Harding.

In their ten hour flight the two stole an automobile and an overcoat and were planning to rob a clothing store in an effort to reach Milwaukee, where relatives of Glissman live.

Two Tell of Stealing Car.

The fugitives said they walked to Geneva after escaping from the school. There they stole the overcoat from an automobile and started for Ottawa in a car stolen from Earl J. Roberts of Geneva. The car broke down near Harding.

Van Dyke was found hiding in the home of his mother, Mrs. Rose Van Dyke. He was sent to St. Charles in June, 1936, for burglary. King was sent there in November, 1936, on the same charge. He was placed in a foster home in 1938, but was returned last September for burglary. Glissman was sent to the school in June, 1936, as a delinquent and was paroled last September. He ran away from home soon afterward and was returned to St. Charles.

PAROLES SOLD IN TENNESSEE, OFFICIAL TOLD

Nashville, Tenn., April 22.—(AP)—State Institutions Commissioner Andrew T. Taylor heard today from a former convict a story of how inmates of the Tennessee penitentiary purchased premature paroles after their records had been altered with an ink eradicator.

Taylor said his investigation disclosed evidence that ten or twelve prisoners had paid guards and trusties under the preceding administration on the promise they would be released.

He said Thomas Smith, Nashville, who served a term for highway robbery, admitted paying $50 to a former guard to have stricken from his record the fact that he twice had escaped from the penitentiary. Smith, paroled several months prematurely, was questioned by the commissioner after he appeared before District Attorney General J. Carlton Loser.

PRISON BOARD DENIES KNOWING PAROLE 'FIXER'

Fleeced Convicts' Families on Fake Pledge of Aid.

Parole authorities yesterday labeled Frank Cirafici, fake parole fixer, a liar as well as a racketeer. Cirafici, who is 44 years old and lives at 4752 Barry avenue, has confessed defrauding relatives of convicts of $1,300 on his promises to get the convicts out of prison.

The liar label was hurled by three members of the parole board whose names, addresses and telephone numbers were found in his possession. Police pointed out his possession of the data was meaningless since any one could get them out of the telephone book as he had done.

Never Heard of "Fixer."

Parole officials said they had never heard of Cirafici, had never talked with him and had never had any dealings with him. Cirafici admitted he didn't know the officials. He admitted further he had no political connections. His game was a pure racket, he said, in which he preyed on gullible women whose sons are in prison.

Cirafici was arrested Thursday by Policemen Walter Till and James Lynch. Also seized was Mrs. Marie Kozlowski, 45, of 4056 Belmont avenue, who acted as interpreter in one of Cirafici's enterprises.

Made Pretense of Aid.

Victims of his racket were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kroll, 1622 North Washtenaw avenue; Mrs. Josephine Orlando, 444 Goethe street, and Mrs. Rose Morreale, 451 Oak street, who paid him large sums of money to get their respective sons out of prison.

Cirafici made a pretense of doing something for the Kroll and Orlando families. He wrote to the parole board in the Kroll case and called in person at the parole offices in Springfield. He appeared before the parole board committee in the Orlando case. He made no effort in behalf of the Morreales. In all instances his promised help was negative.

Cirafici is head of a shoemakers' protective association through which he offered to sell protection to cobblers in Chicago. He is to be arraigned in the Felony court tomorrow on several charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Mrs. Kozlowski will be arraigned on a similar charge.

CLEVELAND GROCERS DEMAND PAYMENT ON BILL FOR RELIEF FOOD

Cleveland, O., April 22.—(AP)—Cleveland grocery dealers, to whom the city owes $1,320,000 for food furnished relief clients, formally notified Mayor Harold H. Burton today they will refuse to accept further municipal orders unless a $500,000 payment is made within sixty days. The city has purchased relief supplies on credit for more than a year. Its operating fund has only sufficint money to meet current expenses.

These attractive apartments were described recently in Tribune rental want ads. They are typical of the apartment values you will find in the rental want ad columns of the Tribune every day.

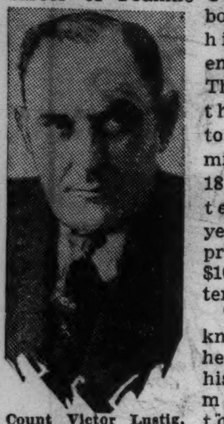
When you consult Tribune rental want ads you are far more likely to find the apartment you want because the Tribune prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined.

With May first only one week away, you will find the Tribune's larger number of rental want ads a big help in finding the apartment which has the right number of rooms, the right location, and the conveniences you want at the rent you want to pay.

2 YEAR SENTENCE ENDS ERA IN LIFE OF FRANK PARKER

Bogus Money Trips Once Wealthy Alky King.

Another epoch in the fantastic career of Frankie Parker, airplane bootlegger of prohibition days, ended yesterday. The man said by the underworld to have made 30 million dollars in 18 years was sentenced to two years in federal prison and fined $10,000 on a counterfeiting charge.



Count Victor Lustig, in prison for making millions of dollars worth of bogus money.

Those who know Parker say he is broke. How his millions have melted away, they do not know. But they do know this: Parker, whose income was once rated at $40,000 a day, was convicted of conspiracy to possess the comparatively insignificant sum of $17,880 in counterfeit $20 bills.

Trapped Through Letters.

Government agents trapped him by intercepting letters in which the cache was discussed. They dug up the money, with the aid of a secret map, on the Tam o' Shanter golf course at Niles. The bogus money was buried in fruit jars.

A federal court jury found Parker guilty on April 14. His co-defendant, August Englehardt, was found guilty on the same charge and on an additional charge of possessing counterfeit money. Englehardt, now serving a sentence at the Terminal Island federal prison in California, was sentenced yesterday to eight and one-half years.

Judge Charles E. Woodward imposed maximum sentences on both men. He canceled Parker's $5,000 bond despite Parker's assertion that he would appeal. Parker was locked up in the county jail by Joseph Tobin, first deputy United States marshal.

Put Under Federal Guard.

As a result, Parker will be under federal guard during the remainder of his state trial in Criminal court on a charge of conspiracy to forge. He is on trial before Judge James F. Fardy in connection with a plot to pass $500,000 in forged American Express travelers' checks. He and his co-defendant, George [Bugs] Moran, were freed at their first trial on a similar charge last Jan. 20.

The counterfeit money involved in the federal case was part of the millions in spurious bills manufactured by the international raffles known as Count Victor Lustig. He was sent to prison in 1935. Because the government's star witness, Arnold Becker, vanished, the government during the trial was unable to connect Parker and Lustig as clearly as they were linked at the sentencing yesterday. A. Bradley Eben, first assistant United States district attorney, told Judge Woodward that Parker brought $100,000 of this counterfeit money here in 1936.

Harry Schaetzel, a secret service agent who trailed Parker three years, added:

"Parker, Lustig, and a man named Blackenheimer secreted more than $500,000 of the counterfeit bills at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., before Lustig's arrest. Parker, Englehardt, and Becker disposed of large amounts of it at Louisville, Ky."

487 Persons Convicted.

Schaetzel gave some idea as to the size of Lustig's counterfeiting operations when he disclosed that the government has now accounted for $3,500,000 in the bills the pretended count manufactured. Four hundred and eighty-seven persons have been convicted for their connection with the fraud.

Parker, whose first name is Francis, was in Joliet penitentiary as the head of a gang of automobile thieves when the prohibition era began. He was paroled in 1921 and later pardoned.

Soon he was living in a magnificently furnished apartment on York [now Surf] street, lolling in silk pajamas and conducting a tremendous alcohol business by telephone in a plant disguised as a paint factory.

In the front office of the five story plant, 45 girls, unaware of the hoax, kept careful records of mythical business transactions. The records were destroyed by their bosses each evening.

Denaturant Removed.

The office was maintained to give an air of legitimacy to the plant's true business—removing the denaturant which the government required in commercial alcohol. With the denaturant removed the 60 cents a gallon liquid became beverage alcohol, which Parker sold at $6 to $20 a gallon. It was from this business that Parker was credited with earning $40,000 a day.

After this plant was raided, Parker made more millions by needling beer—squirting alcohol into near beer by a needle process. He was the first to manufacture synthetic champagne and gin. By selling wort, the unfermented essence of beer, he made more money legitimately. Purchasers added yeast and had beer they could sell at $55 a barrel.

Driven out at last by more powerful gangs, Parker bought distilleries in Canada and sent his liquor back by airplane. Hence his title—the airplane bootlegger.

HITS WOMAN IN FACE; TAKES $533.

Miss Lillian Prahin was entering the Brower Paper company at 329 North Racine avenue yesterday with $533 she had withdrawn from a bank for the pay roll when a robber hit her in the face, seized the money, and fled. Miss Prahin, the company cashier, lives at 1309 Albion avenue.

WOMAN BURIES SELF IN PRISON TO AID RIVAL IN LOVE

Refuses to Tell Name or Whence She Came.

Paducah, Ky., April 22.—[Special.]—A blonde mystery woman today calmly accepted a prison sentence of ten years as her strange debt of love.

On the court records she is listed as Miss Barbara Williams, 23 years old. That, she says, is not her real name. Her home is listed as "some northern city," believed to be near Chicago. The charge against her was assault with intent to rob.

According to Miss Williams' story, she deliberately turned to crime so she would be sent to prison for a long time. Her purpose, she said, was to eliminate herself from a love triangle involving a man whom she loved but who loved another woman.

"I wanted to get out of their way for their own happiness," she said.

Miss Williams arrived in Paducah from Chicago by bus Tuesday morning. That afternoon she went to the Columbia motion picture theater. There, in a waiting room, she drew a toy pistol from her purse and pointed it at two women patrons—Mrs. Ray Parke and Mrs. Paul Jones, both of Barlow—and demanded their purses.

The women defied her. Miss Williams went to the manager's office, where she surrendered, explaining she had attempted a holdup. She gave her name as Barbara Williams, at the same time saying it was fictitious. She said she was from a northern city, but denied it was Chicago. She declared the robbery attempt was for love, not profit.

"I came down here," she told police, "to commit a crime so I'd be sent to prison for a long time. I wanted to get out of the way of a man I love and a woman he loves. That's all there is to it."

Arraigned today before Judge Joe L. Price, Miss Williams pleaded guilty. She refused to divulge her true name or give any other but the love motive for her crime. When Judge Price imposed the ten year sentence, she remarked, "That's what I wanted."

Commonwealth Attorney Holland Bryan, County Attorney John Kirksey, and Detective Chief Kelly Franklin tried to get her to tell more, but she refused. Even the lure of probation failed to shake her. Officials, expressing regret at having to send her to prison, said they were thoroughly puzzled. They are holding her in jail, having for the time canceled plans to send her to La Grange prison farm for women. They hope soon to solve the mystery of her actions.

BURY WOMAN, 84, TODAY.

Taylorville, Ill., April 22.—[Special.]—Funeral services will be held here Sunday for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Oyler, 84 years old, widow of James M. Oyler. She had lived in this community all her life. She leaves five children.

Washington's Advice

An excerpt from the Farewell Address of George Washington to the American people on Sept. 17, 1796:

Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, I conjure you to believe me, fellow citizens, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake, since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of Republican Government. But that jealousy to be useful must be impartial; else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defence against it. Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike of another, cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favourite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests.

TELL IT TO THE STOCKHOLDERS.

Information about the operations and the year end condition of leading corporations has been raining on stockholders in recent weeks. The annual reports, running in some instances to as many as fifty pages, have been arriving. These elaborate booklets tell much to those with the patience and equipment to analyze them. Much easier to understand is the information the government has released about the companies.

The government through the SEC has been making public the salaries of officers and directors of corporations with securities listed on the stock exchanges. Using the data filed by corporations in their income tax returns, the government has just revealed large salaries paid by corporations, whether their securities are listed or not.

Thus, while the corporations as a rule have been reporting data in a form which cannot as a rule readily be understood by the ordinary garden variety of stockholder, the government with its salary statistics has succeeded in getting over the idea that the officers and directors of many corporations are getting more than they are entitled to. They are reminded that the information is supplied by the government, which is ever solicitous of the stockholders' best interests. Congressmen are quoted as saying that congress ought to do something about the big salaries.

What the congressmen neglect to say is that they have already done too much, and the more they look after the stockholder's interest the poorer he is. The fact is that governments now take the lion's share of corporate earnings. By comparison the remuneration of those responsible for the success of enterprise now under criticism is a pittance.

A comparison of the amounts paid to the officers and directors of corporations with the amounts paid to the government is available in the financial reports of the automobile industry. This is a fair example, because the automobile companies are always found at the top of salary lists. They have attracted some of the best managerial skill available, and they pay well to hold it. The aggregate remuneration of all the officers and directors of seven leading automobile manufacturers in 1937 was $3,166,604. For this they directed the production and sale of 2½ billion dollars' worth of cars. In the same year these companies paid taxes in the amount of 149 million 462 thousand dollars. Thus the tax bill which these companies paid was nearly fifty times as much as the salaries of their officers and directors. Put in another way, the automobile companies directly paid 152 millions to the people who make the enterprise successful and to the politicians. Of this amount 149 millions went to the politicians and 3 millions to those who by their knowledge and ability made it possible to earn enough to pay these huge taxes, besides meeting the obligations to other claimants, such as employés and stockholders. Nor is this all the politicians take, for a large part of the 3 millions paid to the officers and directors was in turn paid by them to the government as taxes.

The same situation exists in varying degree in every industry. The 12 leading steel producers paid 149 million dollars to politicians and 7¼ million to the officers and directors who managed the 3 billion dollar business done in 1937. The five leading meat packers paid 21 millions to the government and 2¼ millions to those who managed the businesses. The officials who managed the production and sale by fourteen companies of 784 million dollars' worth of tires in 1937 were paid 2¼ millions, while the politicians collected 43½ millions from the companies.

Facts of this nature can be abstracted from corporation reports, but they are buried. They are not set out clearly, as a rule, in an accompanying letter. Very few of the body of 20 million security holders in American corporations are aware of the fact that the government is taking the bulk of the earnings of their invested capital. They have not been told that the very politicians who cry out about large salary payments to officers and directors are extorting from the corporations as taxes fifty times as much as the salaries of all the officers and directors amount to. The criticism which can be made of these officers and directors is that they have not made their stockholders fully aware of what the politicians in the name of taxes are getting away with.

TRYING TO KEEP OUT OF WAR.

The submarine in warfare created many new problems for neutral shipping and gave the United States its specific, although far from conclusive, reason for adopting the side of the allies. Sea operations underwent an immediate change when the Germans asserted the right to destroy merchantmen without abiding by the rules requiring that the vessel be stopped and boarded, and, if carrying contraband, be seized as a prize or sunk with due regard for the safety of the crew. What we regarded as submarine outrages against ships which hitherto had been protected by the laws of naval warfare, raised new issues and projected new dangers for the peace of all nations trying to remain neutral and at the same time carry on overseas trade.

These problems have not been settled. They have been carried into much legislative discussion and into some American enactments. In them are involved the American desire to avoid participation in every European war and to carry on trade without giving offense. Attempts at legislation have not been satisfactory. Neutrality in any circumstances has always been a difficult thing to maintain.

Belligerent nations try to get needed supplies wherever they can. None finds itself self-sufficient. Each tries to prevent its enemy from obtaining the materials of war. In the neutral countries the private enterprisers, seeking the profits obtainable in the war markets, are tempted to take all manner of risks knowing that they can sustain great losses and still make great gains. Definitions of contraband become arbitrary, and commerce raiders pay little attention to the rights of the carriers. Necessity rules everywhere and controversies arise with every seizure or destruction of a merchant vessel.

After war there are usually huge claims for damages to be adjusted between nations and years are spent in diplomatic negotiations, sometimes themselves involving the threat of war, as between the United States and Great Britain after 1865.

American neutrality is again in search of a formula which will protect the country. Thus far it has been found by test that preconceived ideas of what would be neutrality have worked out with discrimination for or against nations at war. One of the present proposals is that the President should be given the power to decide which of the nations in conflict was the aggressor and to embargo the sales to that nation. That, it has been pointed out, has nothing to do with neutrality. It is merely a way of taking sides in any fight that might be started. Taking sides is making war. There is another theory that nations should be permitted to buy American products if they can send for them and pay cash. That predetermines that the belligerent who commands the sea will get supplies and the others can't. It also supposes that American ships will not be entering the war zones, and consequently will not be exposed to attack.

None of the neutrality formulas holds out any prospect of fitting the particular situation which may arise. It necessarily is of unknown elements which cannot be perceived in advance. Nothing can be gained by trying to envisage now a thing that cannot be known until it has taken shape. Without any predeclarations of the specific things the United States will do in a war elsewhere the country would be free to adopt measures best calculated, in view of all that becomes known, to preserve its neutrality. It must be taken into consideration that as soon as profitable markets are opened the pressure within the country to take advantage of them will become almost irrepressible. The enterprisers who want to use their opportunities are not chiefly the producers of war materials but of foodstuffs and many materials not directly used as munitions. The producers of what are known as commodities of peaceful trade, such as wheat, fabrics, meats, and other foodstuffs, are numerous and politically powerful. They will very likely break through any prearranged plan of neutrality if it affects their interests seriously.

The United States has been able to steer its course through many a European war by relying upon the common understanding of the rights of neutrals, what is called international law, and by the diplomatic adjustment of the controversies. America didn't want to do that in the world war because the real intent of the American government under Mr. Wilson was to prevent the collapse of France and Great Britain. If the friendship of the American people had gone naturally to Germany our position as a neutral would not have been shaken by the specific controversies which arose. There would have been a diplomatic arrangement.

The fate of the United States in the next European war will not be determined by acts that may now be passed by congress but by the intentions of the American government. If peaceable people can control the government there will be peace. If the government can do as it pleases it will make its own decisions when a war is started.

RELATIONS WITH JAPAN.

The United States cruiser Astoria has arrived in Yokohama with the ashes of Hirosi Saito, former Japanese ambassador to the United States. The Japanese people accepted the courtesy as a demonstration of improved relations and as a token of the friendliness of the American people which once had been regarded as sincere and natural. The feeling of the Japanese people was probably naive but it was hopeful.

Friendly relations with Japan are difficult, but nevertheless so far as our government is concerned would have every diplomatic justification. The American people have been friends of the Japanese people. At the present moment the majority of Americans feel that the Japanese aggression in China cannot be justified, that it is not only a violation of treaty but that it creates an impossible situation full of danger for the far east. It is no doubt true that there is a very dim understanding in this country of the Japanese national feeling and, maybe, of national needs.

The cruiser Astoria, however, did not carry the real message of the United States to Japan. That was expressed in the sudden order cutting short the stay of the fleet in the Atlantic and sending it back into the Pacific.

IRELAND'S SHIFTING POPULATION

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—Official digests of the population returns taken in the 1936 census of Ireland are now being published. They disclose many interesting facts regarding the continuous fall in the numbers of the people, their conjugal conditions, marriage and birth rates, the fertility of the women, and effects of emigration.

The details in regard to the distribution of the various religions reveal a continuous rise in the proportion of Roman Catholics to the total population. In the previous census there were 92.6 per cent Catholics. Now it is 93.4. Of the present population of 2,968,420 the Catholics total 2,773,920. While the population fell 3,572 in ten years, the number of Catholics rose by 22,651. In the same period all other religious groups declined by 26,223.

This table shows at a glance the position held by the Catholic church in relation to the other religious bodies:

Catholics	2,773,920
Protestant Episcopalians	145,030
Presbyterians	28,067
Methodists	9,649
Jews	3,749
Baptists	715
	2,968,420

The fall in the Episcopalians, Presbyterians, and Methodists, respectively, was 11, 13, and 9 per cent in the ten years since the last census. Comparison with the period of 1901 shows there has been a decline all around, that of the Catholics being 3.6 per cent. All other religions fell by more than 40 per cent.

Catholics Increase in Dublin.

In Dublin City Catholics increased by 19.6 per cent, while others decreased 5.6 per cent. The largest concentration of Episcopalians is in the city of Dublin, while it is a remarkable fact that nearly one-third of the Presbyterians are located in the predominantly Catholic county of Donegal. Monaghan is the next important Presbyterian area.

The figures in regard to the Jews probably have changed considerably since the census was taken, as there undoubtedly has been a great influx of Jews since the beginning of the persecutions in Germany. In 1861 there were only 341 Jews in Ireland. In 1936 there were 3,749. Of these 3,288 are concentrated in Dublin. Seven of the twenty-six counties have no Jews.

The returns concerning marital status are interesting. One of every four women in the country remains single. At the age of 25 to 29 82 per cent of the men are unmarried. Although the population declined but slightly between censuses, the number of children under 15 years old fell by 47,000 and the population under 21 by 65,000.

Decline in Rural Areas.

The official statisticians are not satisfied that the fall in the number of young children is due to any decline in the fertility of women at the reproductive ages. They suggest that some other cause must be found.

It is a curious fact that the fall is more marked in the rural areas than in the towns. Population in the country areas fell by only 5.7 per cent, but the number of children fell by 13.2 per cent.

While marriages are more fertile in Ireland than elsewhere, they are fewer and later in life, with the result that the proportion of children in the population is about normal. Comparisons with other countries as to the number of children under 15 years old for each 100 persons of 15 to 64 years old are of interest. Of twenty-five countries cited, Poland with 55.8 is the highest and Sweden with 32.3 is the lowest. Ireland with 44.1 stands midway between these extremes. Canada has 50.4; the United States, 45.1; Northern Ireland, 42.4; Germany, 35.2, and England and Wales, 34.7.

Numerous Elderly People.

Another comparison is made of the number of persons 15 to 64 years old in each 100 of the total population. In this class Belgium is highest with 69.4 and Poland lowest with 61.4. The United States has 65.2 and Ireland is fourth lowest with 62.7.

Ireland has the largest proportion of persons 65 years old and over for each 100 persons. The Irish figure is 15.4 and the lowest is South Africa with 6.8. England and Wales have 10.8; Canada, 8.8; the United States, 8.3, and Poland, 8.0. It is pointed out that since the middle of the nineteenth century the population of Ireland has been decreasing, while the populations of all other countries for which statistics are available have been increasing.

A high proportion of elderly persons might be expected in a population which has been declining in the past. Such persons are survivors from a period when births were much more numerous than at present and the ratio of old to young should be relatively large. In this connection the incidence of emigration is a complicating factor.

Heavy Pension Burden.

Countries which have been recruited to a large extent by immigration, such as Australia, New Zealand, Canada, the United States, and South Africa, will, the statisticians point out, naturally have relatively small numbers of persons at the late ages. With such a high percentage of elderly persons as there is here, an old age pension scheme is a proportionately heavier burden. The number of persons in Ireland of 70 years and over is 173,683. Of these, 129,554, or 75 per cent, are in receipt of old age pensions.

An interesting calculation as to the expectancy of life shows that, as compared with a dozen other countries for which figures are available, Ireland is highest. Thus a man who reaches 80 can hope for a further six years, while the next highest is Norway, where the expectation is 5.9 years. For women at 80 in Ireland the expectation is 6.5 years. The next highest is Norway with 6.3.

FAMILY NAMES.

[Des Moines Register.]

The old order does not always change, yielding place to new. Sometimes the old and new orders dwell side by side. For instance, social security laws in the United States obviously belong to the new order, but in the 40 million names listed by the social security board the old order remains.

First in order come the Smiths with more than 480,000 names. Next are the Johnsons with almost 360,000 names, the Browns and the Williamses with approximately 250,000 each, and the Millers and Joneses not far behind.

America's six "leading families" are very much what they have been for a long time. They are still Smith, Johnson, Brown, Williams, Miller, and Jones. Lest it be thought that the social security board roster is not complete, it may be mentioned that the list covers names as short as "E" and as long as Xenogianokopopulos.

The members of our six "leading families" comprise about one and a half million out of 40 million names on the social security board rolls. This means that about 96 out of every 100 Americans have some other name.

Still we refer to the representative anonymous American as Mr. Smith or Mrs. Jones. We are not likely to ask rhetorically what John "E" thinks of the new taxes. And no one ordinarily would speak of "keeping up with the Xenogianokopopuloses."

"I DIDN'T CLOSE MY EYES LAST NIGHT."

FOR centuries poets have praised the benison of sleep—"the surcease of sorrows." In Don Quixote we read:

"Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap, and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even."

In most instances insomnia—unless it is temporary—may be traced to either physical distress or some mental upset. Almost every one has a slumber pattern of his own which will be disturbed more or less by internal factors [such as diseases and worries] or external influences [noises, lights, etc.]. If the individual is aroused a dozen times a night because of the necessity of emptying the bladder, if there is a rapid heart action because of the presence of a toxic goiter, a constant cough from a chronic bronchitis, or severe itching—persistent and insistent—repose will be banished. There may be business or household problems. I have known men facing the most calamitous financial crises to surrender to unconsciousness without the slightest effort, awaking refreshed and unperturbed. On the other hand, a family tiff of the mildest character may cause a husband or wife to stare wide-eyed at the ceiling all night long. The difference lies in the ability to shelve—at least for a time—bothersome thoughts.

Much depends upon the disposition, the constitution, or the general makeup of the patient. Given a comfortable bed, an even temperature, not too much food in the digestive tract, and a quiet nervous system—and "nature's soft nurse" should minister to most of us.

There are those who work themselves into an extremely excitable state because they cannot "drop off" at once. Sometimes this cycle can be broken by assuring them that occasional attacks of this sort need not be antagonistic to health; that when the nerves require rest they will take it. Lying in bed quietly, even reading, may be sufficiently refreshing to enable the circulation to carry on adequately for the coming day.

To attempt to force oneself by sheer will power to become insensible is to defeat the end desired. To say, "I will, I am bound, I am determined to sleep," has merely the effect of speeding up cerebration.

In our hunt for the origin we may look to the "wiring" of the body and, particularly, to the circulation. If the blood pressure is abnormally high the brain is receiving so much stimulation that the thinking centers are not allowed to quiet down. This may be aided by more rest—reclining after each meal—and better elimination via the skin, the kidneys, and the bowel. As a last resort, certain chemicals may be tried whereby pressure levels will be reduced slightly.

There is nothing which will promote relaxation of nerves and blood vessels quite as effectively as tub baths, tepid to warm, in which the patient can lie comfortably with a head support, a good light, and even an interesting book. Gentle massage while in the bath may be helpful.

There may come a time after a period of wakefulness when oblivion will be demanded and the rôle of drugs is one of careful adjustment. Rather than allow a jittery man or woman to toss about too long, some sufficiently potent sedative may be employed. The simplest and safest of all these remedies is chloral hydrate. Then come the barbiturates, many of which are far too powerful to be used except under the watchful eye of the family doctor. We should recall that these preparations are not pain-killers—merely sedatives—and if the cause of insomnia is discomfort of some sort, relief must be found by other means.

There is probably no more puzzling problem presented to the physician. I have seen the opening of what may be termed certain escape valves solve the dilemma entirely. I refer to such procedures as a twenty to thirty minute walk in the open air before bedtime, light massage of the head and neck prior to retiring, hot packs to the abdomen, a hot foot bath—each of which appeared to ease tension just enough to induce somnolence. But no one of these measures will be successful if anxiety continues or if the blood pressure hovers around 200.

P. writes: Does epilepsy come from syphilis?

REPLY.

Syphilis is caused by a parasite which can be destroyed with proper drugs, particularly if attacked early. The cause of epilepsy [falling sickness] is unknown. They are not related in the slightest degree.

THEY ARE ASSETS.

Miss M. H. writes: Is there anything that will slenderize the muscles in the calves of the legs?

REPLY.

There is nothing that need or can be done. Well developed muscles are health assets to be envied rather than ashamed of.

VOMITING.

M. H. writes: What causes periodic vomiting in an adult who is otherwise well?

REPLY.

Intestinal or gastric upsets due to infection, dietary indiscretions, or allergy. In some individuals nervous conditions may be a factor.

PILLOW IS UNNECESSARY.

R. M. writes: What type of pillow may a child with hay fever sleep upon?

REPLY.

Ordinarily a child does not need a pillow. If he is sensitive to feathers, one stuffed with kapok may be used.

DIET CONTROL HELPS.

Mrs. B. writes: Can an infected gall bladder be cured by diet?

REPLY.

Many cases are controled by diet; occasionally, however, surgery may be necessary.

LICORICE FOR COLDS.

R. K. writes: We use pure licorice for coughs and colds. Is this harmful to the system?

REPLY.

No, it has a slight laxative effect.

ESTATE FEES.

Chicago, April 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If an estate is valued at $100,000, what is the maximum attorney's fee?

2. What is a reasonable attorney's fee?

3. What would be an adequate administrator's fee [there being two administrators]?

4. What would be a reasonable fee for an accountant making out the income tax and other taxes for above estate?

If one signed a joint note with an heir of an estate for funeral expenses for a person who is not a direct relative [5] should the funeral expenses have been paid before the administrator's fee and lawyer's fee? Is a note on a house [which has been torn down this year] of over twenty-five years' standing valid? Can it be collected before funeral expenses? M. G.

1. The Illinois statute says not over 6 per cent of the personal property as the fee of the executor. The division of this allowance between the attorney and the executor would demand on how the work is divided.

2. Depends on facts not before us.

3. See preceding answers.

4. Depends on facts that are not before us.

5. Funeral expenses and costs of administration are grouped together by the statute and given priority over all other claims. There would be no priority as between these two.

BILL OF SALE.

Chicago, April 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to sell a device to a party and said party wants some kind of paper to show he is the rightful owner after it is sold to him. If I make out a paper similar to the following, would it be legal and binding?

1. "F. A. hereby agrees to sell and convey to A. H. device No. .... for the sum of $200, to be paid in cash."

2. In other words, the buyer wants some sort of paper so that some one cannot come along and tie up the device for any outstanding debts that seller might have. J. A.

1. If you intend a present sale rather than an agreement for future sale you should use wording to make that intention more clear. The nature of the subject matter is not clear to us.

2. If the subject matter is a business enterprise it might be subject to the bulk sales law which requires five days' notice to creditors in case of a sale of all of the assets of a business. It also may be advisable for you to check up on chattel mortgage records and inquire of the original seller or manufacturer as to whether there is an outstanding conditional sale contract.

ASSETS OF ESTATE.

Chicago, April 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The property at this address is in Probate court and has been there since last September.

1. The administrator has a note against this property.

2. The tenants in the lower apartment have a note against this property. He is fixing up the place inside and outside as if it was already his.

3. Has he a right to do this?

4. Has the property owner a word to say about this? Has the administrator a right to let the tenant do this? J. O.

1. and 2. A note in itself does not have anything to do with "property." It is not clear whether you mean an unsecured note, a note upon which judgment is taken which could be a lien on the real estate, or a trust deed.

3. We see no reason why you should object. If he is making improvements without first acquiring rights in the property he is doing it at his own risk.

4. The first step would be to ascertain the facts.

JACKSON PARK.

Chicago, April 17.—Jackson park is putting on its spring finery. It looks just like a pretty school girl in a crisp green gingham dress. Soon the golf course, tennis courts, and beaches will be filled with players, young and old, of every nationality, having a good time. In spring we like to pack a hot supper in a basket and go over and eat under the trees. The food is kept hot in airtight containers—hot creamed chicken on hot biscuit, and steaming coffee, with a crisp salad on the side is a good combination. We have a little secluded corner over there behind the bushes that slopes down to the water's edge, and we are forty miles from civilization. Quiet sailboats come in and out of the harbor, and a little family of ducks come up to the bank for a "handout." After supper the boys play handball while dad and I read the evening papers. Later in the summer there will be picnic suppers with sandwiches and stuffed eggs—but try one of those hot spring suppers under the trees and see how fine they are. Jackson park is my favorite of all the beauty spots in Chicago because it hasn't been spoiled by too much landscaping, and it makes such a happy playground for people of all ages.

ANNE JESTY ROGERS.

HE SAYS JUDGES LOAF.

Chicago, April 18.—May I congratulate THE TRIBUNE on the editorial entitled "Tax Raids at Springfield," particularly that portion thereof pertaining to our judges. Every lawyer knows there is no necessity for creating additional judges. Many of the judges now serving are seldom found on the bench. Two or three of them do not occupy the bench more than a half hour a day. If a complaint is made they say that they have taken care of their calendar. The truth of the matter is no cases are put on their calendars that mean anything or take any time, and those that do are shoved aside and disposed of without trial. Some one ought to introduce a bill at Springfield decreasing the number of our judges by 50 per cent and then seeing to it that they earn their salary. Very soon now the ball games will commence and you won't find any judges on the bench at all. That's the service the taxpayers are getting for their money.

I have practiced law for over thirty-seven years and am obliged to appear before some of these public servants, and, knowing their state of mind against those that criticize them, am signing my name as PRACTICING LAWYER.

A DRASTIC REMEDY.

Wilmette, Ill., April 14.—Why take the stand you do in regard to Roosevelt getting us into war? Didn't Mr. Wilson successfully get us out of his depression with his war?

That war cost us 125,000 lives and a lot of money, but not nearly as many lives as Roosevelt's depression has cost in suicides, heart failures, etc., and not nearly so much money as has been wasted to date, and with no results.

Wilson's war really did the trick. It put the Democrats out of power for twelve years, during which time we had a chance to pay off half the debt they had got us into and get on our feet again during those prosperous times. If a war would clean up the situation as well now, I am for it. M. H. W.

THE TITLE "DOCTOR."

Chicago, April 14.—The recent letter of George C. Custer which criticized Antoinette Donnelly's recent review of "O Doctor! My Feet!" calls attention to the deplorable lack of educational and professional standards in Illinois.

The assumption of the title "doctor" by chiropodists and optometrists constitutes a palpable attempt to mislead the public into the belief that holders of the "D. S. C." and "O. D." degrees possess a training which at least in some respects is comparable to that of the physician. Foot ailments may be divided into two classes, i. e., those caused by ill fitting shoes and those due to organic disturbances. The first of these will correct themselves when the foot sufferer provides himself with properly fitted shoes: the second class of foot ailments require for their proper treatment the services of a regular physician or surgeon.

There is no more reason why the chiropodist or optometrist should be permitted to masquerade under the title of "doctor" than that a doctorate be conferred upon graduate nurses or pharmacists. At the present time it is possible for any one to secure from the state of Illinois for the sum of ten dollars a charter authorizing him to confer the degree of "doctor."

The absurdity of granting a doctorate to chiropodists and optometrists upon the basis of less actual work than is required for graduation from one of our junior colleges is recognized by the practice of the three large universities which offer a four years' course in optometry—Columbia, Ohio State, and Southern California. Each of these grant the degree of bachelor upon the completion of a four years' course in optometry, while the privately conducted schools, on the basis of two years' work, grant a doctorate.

The situation in Illinois can be corrected by legislation similar to that adopted by other states which limits the power to issue "degrees" to institutions maintaining adequate educational standards and which would confine the use of the title "doctor" or "Dr." in connection with any of the healing arts to those who possess a standard medical training. The use of the title of doctor by those who are not morally entitled to the same constitutes a fraud upon the public as well as an injustice to the medical profession.

FREDERICK JUCHHOFF.

NOW WE'RE BOLSHEVIKS.

Chicago, April 18.—No matter what your editorials are, your stand in support of aggressor nations is an invitation to abolish property rights. If a large nation is excused in robbing its neighbors, one more human should be prompted to rob his neighbors, if he can make better use of the property. THE TRIBUNE is ultrabolshevist.

G. ALEXANDER.

EMERGENCY POWERS.

Western Springs, Ill., April 15.—Congressman Sumner and Senators George, Reynolds, Vandenburg, and Borah are to be commended in reminding congress that emergency authority delegated to the President is being used to provoke emergencies. It is high time for congress to recall authority that maintains proper checks and balances in America's ideal government.

JUDGE ASSAILS IMMORALITY OF SEPARATION LAW

Racket and Worse, He Says; Demands Change.

[The following article is the fourth in a series on separate maintenance. Three bills to abolish this evil are before the Illinois legislature.]

BY MARCIA WINN.

Illinois is badly in need of a law to curb the abuse of separate maintenance, Superior Judge Oscar F. Nelson said yesterday. The present antiquated law, he believes, gives unscrupulous women too strong an advantage in bargaining for alimony.

Speaking from his experiences on the divorce bench Judge Nelson asserted that the average separate maintenance suit is filed merely for bargaining. In few instances, he said, is it anything except a prelude to an attack on the husband's purse strings. And in few instances does it fail to work.

Points Out Evils.

Bargaining is one of the three evils which Judge Nelson sees in separate maintenance. The second evil is that permanent separate maintenance sought by a vindictive wife means a life enthrallment to alimony for a man permitted neither to live with the wife he supports nor to marry another. The third evil is immorality.

This last objection, he believes, is probably the most serious as well as the least considered of the three.

"If there is going to be a legal separation," Judge Nelson said emphatically, "it ought to be definite and clear so that the status of the parties will be free and independent.

"It is unnatural in the first place to compel two persons to live separate and apart and not be able to get married again. It results in immorality; that is the real reason there should be a change in the law.

Called Bid to Immorality.

"You take people in their twenties, thirties, or forties. It goes without saying that a decree of separate maintenance is an invitation to immorality for them. Such a decree is neither fair nor just."

This evil, as well as the two others, would be corrected by the legislative measures now under consideration. Drafted as amendments to the husband and wife act and the divorce act, they would grant a divorce to couples who have lived separate and apart for two years without cohabitation. Dower rights would not be affected, nor would responsibility for the care of children be lessened.

By limiting the payment of separate maintenance to two years, such situations as the Adolf W. Manz case, which Judge Nelson recently sought to correct, would never arise.

Mr. Manz, now 62, has been separated from his wife, Adelaide, now 46, for twenty years. In 1919 she started suit for separate maintenance, charging he had deserted her for another woman. He was ordered to pay $350 a month temporary support for her and their daughter, Olive.

Pays for Twenty Years.

In October, 1919, when she was granted her separate maintenance decree, he was ordered to pay $300 a month as permanent support. This he did without complaint or remonstrance until Feb. 1, 1939, when he came before Judge Nelson to plead for a reduction in alimony.

In the intervening 20 years, he told the court, he had paid his wife a total of $72,750. His daughter was in school in Tallahassee, Fla., but he was still supporting her, a woman of 23. His income, he said, has been curtailed greatly.

Judge Nelson, indicating his amazement at this story, immediately reduced the payments to $150 a month, and regretted that he could not terminate the payment completely.

"That was all the law permitted me to do," the judge said, "but I did grant him that much relief. Mr. Manz could have had relief in this court long ago if he had asked for it. Such generosity and promptness as his deserves consideration."

Used for Bargaining.

And another great abuse of the separate maintenance law, Judge Nelson says, is use of it for bargaining. Four of every ten divorce suits filed in Cook county start as suits for separate maintenance. Nine of every ten of these suits end in divorce. In the interim comes the bargaining for alimony.

Few of the cases are spectacular enough to attract attention and subsequent notoriety. A recent case in Judge Nelson's court was that of a woman with five children who filed suit for divorce in 1937, but constantly had the trial put off. Meanwhile her husband was paying a substantial temporary alimony.

This year she suddenly appeared, asking that her suit be changed to one of separate maintenance. Her husband, hoping to force her to drop the divorce action, had filed a cross complaint charging cruelty. As this seemed to imperil her chances of mulcting him, she changed to the older, more certain tactics.

Describes Typical Case.

Judge Nelson denied her plea and ordered her to proceed with her divorce case. She then dropped the suit, forcing her husband to proceed with his cross bill. He testified to two threats against his life, for neither of which he had corroboration. His divorce plea was denied.

"Now she will file a new suit for separate maintenance," the judge said wearily. "It's a threat, as usual, but probably it will be effective. If the proposed law were in effect, all this might be avoided."

In the meantime, the husband is still paying.

Scooter for Dog

Blackberry, Portland, Ore., dachshund, with device that enables him to get around while a leg fracture heals.

Portland, Ore., April 22.—[Special.]—Despite the fact that he got in front of an automobile and suffered a fracture of a foreleg, Blackberry, a dachshund, 3 months old, is a lucky dog. To make sure that the bone will heal, Dr. J. D. Finlay, a dentist and owner of Blackberry, had both forelegs encased in plaster. And to make sure that Blackberry's period of recovery would not be boresome, Dr. Finlay rigged up a roller, attached to the plaster splints by wires. Blackberry goes where he pleases without much difficulty.

PUSHCART JOE SPURNS RELIEF AND PUSHES ON

He Can Make Up to $3 a Week—if He's Lucky.

[This is another in a series of stories about persons whose pride and enterprise have kept them off relief.]

Joe Petoskey, who finds the going tough but never has been on relief, says there are probably 5,000 men in Chicago hunting for the same things he is—old paper, rags, bottles, auto tires, and other salable junk. He doesn't know about the others, but he can make up to $3 a week, if he's lucky.

Joe starts work at 7 or 8 o'clock in the morning. He takes a two wheel wooden cart, supplied by the dealer who later will buy what he finds, and starts out. Up and down he goes, peering hopefully into every alley. By 4 in the afternoon, when he has walked ten or fifteen miles, he may have a full load. Then he must hurry back to the junk yard, because the dealer closes at 5 p. m.

10 Cents for 100 Pounds.

Mixed paper brings Joe a dime a hundred pounds. Cardboard and newspapers are worth 18 cents a hundred pounds. For mixed rags he gets 50 cents; for clean ones, 75 cents. Beer, milk, and wine bottles are worth a third of a cent. Auto tires bring 3 cents. Soda bottles, with no names on them, are worth a penny each.

Joe's luckiest days are when some one asks him to clean a basement, lets him take what he wants, and gives him 50 cents or so for his work. His worst days are rainy ones. Wet paper brings a lower price.

Joe, who is 59 years old, used to be a sailor. He lost his job about eight years ago and found work baling paper fo rthe same dealer who hires him now. When he bales papers he gets from 75 cents to $1 a day.

Relief? Not for Joe!

He never has been on the relief rolls and says he doesn't expect to get there.

Joe is one of ten men who work out of the same yard. The men are unmarried, and they sleep in quarters supplied by the dealer. Everything Joe has on his back, he says, grinning, he found. Most of his fellow workers find all their clothes, including shoes.

"We can't get other work," says Joe. "But at least we can make enough so we don't have to beg or steal."

And he rolled himself a cigaret and glanced anxiously at the sky. It looked like rain.

BABY'S CUSTODY WAITS ON CABLED WORD OF FATHER

Mixup Is Expected to Be Settled Tomorrow.

An agreement in the dispute over custody of Josephine Amelia Jacobs, 1 year old, who is aboard the United States army transport President Grant in San Francisco harbor, is expected tomorrow. Replies to two cablegrams sent to the child's father, Joseph Jacobs, in Manila are awaited to straighten out the tangle.

When the President Grant docked Friday in San Francisco Miss Evelyn Oquist, an employé of the United Air Lines' Chicago office, was waiting with letters from the child's father which authorized her to take the child to Joliet to be placed in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rakoski, 431 Liberty street. Mrs. Rakoski is a cousin of Jacobs.

When Miss Oquist sought to take charge of the child she was prevented by First Sergeant Charles Warner of the United States army and his wife, who brought the child from Manila to San Francisco. Warner is en route to Fort Slocum, N. Y., to complete two more years of service making him eligible to retire when 64 years old.

No Conflict in Papers.

Miss Oquist returned to Chicago yesterday afternoon. She said Warner had papers which gave him custody of the child from Manila to San Francisco, and that she had papers, sent from the Manila Red Cross, authorizing her to take the child from San Francisco to Joliet.

Both documents, according to Miss Oquist, were signed by the same witnesses and notarized by the same official. There was no conflict in the papers, she said, but Warner refused to leave the transport and civil authorities in San Francisco were powerless to help her.

It was Jacobs' suggestion that his cousin, the mother of a 7 year old daughter, take his child and rear her in the United States. Red Cross officials in Manila, San Francisco, and Joliet made arrangements for her transport.

Joliet Home Still Open.

Mr. and Mrs. Rakoski said yesterday they are willing to give the child a home, but that they want to abide by the father's wishes.

The Joliet Red Cross office has a letter from the Manila office, dated April 5, in which Joliet officials were advised that the child had started for the United States and that Jacobs, a former United States sailor, expressed willingness to send money to Mrs. Rakowski for the child's support.

Sergt. Warner has not left the transport since Friday. He declares no one is going to take the child from him and his wife.

"Our agreement," he said, "is that when Jacobs wants the baby back—when he is able to care for her—she is to go to him. In other words, she remains his daughter now and always. Jacobs has had plenty of time to change his mind if he did not want us to keep the baby."

In correspondence with Red Cross officials, Mrs. Warner is reported to have said she would bring the child to Chicago if her train fare from San Francisco to New York were paid.

Twins Get Identical Marks; Will Be Co-Valedictorians

Milford, Conn., April 22.—(AP)—Muriel Korach will begin the valedictory address at Milford High school's graduation in June, but Malcolm Korach will finish it. They're twins and for four years have received the same marks—all A's. Consequently, school officials made them co-valedictorians.

Crib Awaits Disputed Baby

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rakoski and their daughter, Le Ette, 7 years old, beside the bed they have prepared in home at Joliet for Josephine Amelia Jacobs, 1 year old, detained at San Francisco, Cal., by disagreement over her custody.

Miss Evelyn Oquist, air line stewardess, who was refused the child by army sergeant and his wife who had brought her from the Philippines. Back in Chicago, Miss Oquist is shown with a cake prepared by the Rakoskis for Josephine's first birthday, which was yesterday.

CHICAGO COUPLE FIGHTS TO STAVE OFF DEPORTATION

Because the law takes precedence over human sympathy Stanislaw and Agnes Boraca found themselves a step nearer deportation to their native Poland yesterday. Judge Charles E. Woodward declined to free them from the grip of immigration authorities on habeas corpus proceedings, explaining that the law must be followed however great his sympathy for the couple might be.

Posing as her American born sister, Mrs. Boraca married Boraca in British Columbia in 1927. They entered this country representing themselves as American citizens and came to Chicago to live at 2611 Rice street. They have a son 8 years old. A. Bradley Eben, assistant United States attorney, explained to the court that the couple entered the country illegally. They won a delay by taking an appeal after the judge ruled against them.

FOUND DEAD OF GAS IN ROOM.

Anthony Jordan, 50 years old, was found dead yesterday in his room at 1641 Adams street. Death was caused by gas escaping from two open jets in the room.

BABY LOSES HIS PENNY; AN X-RAY PHOTO FINDS IT

Weehawken, N. J., April 22.—[Special.]—Edward Nelson, 3 years old, was fretful. His resourceful mother gave him a penny—bright, shiny, and new—which took his mind off his troubles. But after he had fallen asleep Mamma Nelson was unable to find the penny. She looked high and low—under the bed, on the bed, and in the baby's pocket. Fearful lest something dire happen to her offspring, she rushed little Edward to a hospital, where an X-ray photograph revealed the whereabouts of the penny—it was in Edward's tummy. And, while Edward felt all right today, he still is mystified by the disappearance of the bright, shiny object he admired so much.

Edward Nelson.

WINS PROBATION IN CAR THEFT.

Carl Ernst Brucks, 34 years old, 1224 South Clinton avenue, Berwyn, who was arrested April 5 in a stolen automobile, was placed on probation yesterday by Justice of the Peace Rudolph Basta of Berwyn.

TROTZKYS WILL LEAVE RIVERA'S HOME IN 2 WEEKS

COYOCAN, Mexico, April 22.—[U. P.]—Leon Trotzky, exiled bolshevik leader, will move from Diego Rivera's house within a fortnight, it was reported tonight.

Relations between Trotzky and Rivera, noted painter, became strained last week. Trotzky and his wife have spent more than two years at the Mexican muralist's home.

The Trotzkys will move into a one story home as soon as improvements are made. The house will be under constant police protection.

★ THE NEW Mercury 8

OWNERS SAY "It's Swell!"

Read why these experienced car owners bought the Mercury 8

$894 is the price of this Sedan (delivered in Detroit, taxes extra)

We asked a number of people who formerly owned other cars in the medium-price field why they switched to the Mercury 8.

Read their answers at the right. Add them together and you see why this brand-new, grand-new car is an outstanding value.

Here's the important point . . .

Mercury owners liked the car before they bought it. They liked it even better after they got it. Owning it and driving it brought out four additional features.

"MAKE IT A MERCURY" FOR A NEW THRILL IN MOTORING

BEFORE they bought the car we asked—

"What features influenced you most in choosing a Mercury over the car you owned previously?"

APPEARANCE The beauty of the Mercury was stressed in more than 84% of the interviews.

ROOMINESS More than 70% included the Mercury's spaciousness as one of the big reasons for buying.

QUALITY Materials and fine workmanship influenced a majority.

POWER AND SMOOTHNESS Power of the 95-hp. Mercury engine and smoothness of eight cylinders.

LOW PRICE influenced many. A price backed by the Ford Motor Company's reputation for good value.

AFTER they bought the car we asked—

"From your experience with the Mercury 8, what additional features do you like now?"

PERFORMANCE This was mentioned most prominently by all.

ECONOMY Low fuel and oil consumption was the next most popular feature. Owners reported up to 20 miles per gallon.

HANDLING Ease of steering and parking were third on the list of preferred features. Hydraulic brakes are another Mercury feature.

EASE OF RIDE Owners were so impressed with the advantages of Triple-Cushioned Comfort that they mentioned this among the first four outstanding features.

USE WPA FUNDS FOR GOLD MINING IN N. CAROLINA

New Deal Appropriates $200,000 for Project.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Charlotte, N. C., April 22.—[Special.]—North Carolina's gold mining industry, abandoned after the civil war as unprofitable and revived in 1935 by the New Deal $35 revaluation price, is being expanded—with WPA money.

Once the only state in the Union which produced gold, North Carolina, through the state department of conservation and development, and with the aid of federal government funds, is trying to regain her place as a minerals producer. Labor for the gold quest project is to be supplied by the WPA and paid out of an allotment of $200,000.

President Roosevelt has approved the gold hunting project and the $200,000 soon will be available. When minerals are found by WPA workers on private lands the owners or leaseholders will have to pay for the drilling or shafts needed to take out the gold, but the government will not be repaid for the expense of exploration.

Raises Request for $200,000.

Herman J. Bryson, state geologist, sponsored the gold hunting project. At first only $100,000 was asked for WPA labor. Then it was learned other states were getting upwards of half a million dollars for natural resources development and North Carolina raised the request to $200,000.

From sources within the state conservation department it was learned that the gold hunt was being conducted with the idea of inducing private capital to develop whatever resources were found and thereby supply jobs in private industry to take the relief load off the government. In other words, the $200,000 of public money is being spent to hunt the nest of the goose that lays the golden egg, according to state officials.

T. P. Richardson, WPA engineer in charge of the Charlotte area, embracing nine counties, said WPA laborers already are at work hunting gold and other minerals in Rutherford and McDowell counties. The workers are being paid out of the state funds which will be restored when the federal allotment is made available. Prospecting in Mecklenburg county, of which Charlotte is the county seat, will be started in thirty days.

Analysis and assay of all mineral deposits will be made by laboratories of the state geological department.

Find 17 Pound Nugget.

In 1804 North Carolina was the only gold producing state in the Union. Other minerals also were found in the Appalachian mountain ranges in the western part of the state and in the Piedmont plateau. The first big gold strike had been made a few years earlier in Cabarrus county, just north of Charlotte. A nugget weighing 17 pounds was found.

The largest nugget ever found in the state was picked up by children in 1803 and was used by their parents to prop a door open for several years before some one recognized it was gold.

From 1831 to 1857 gold production was so high and it was so difficult to ship it to the Philadelphia mint that C. Bechtler of Rutherford county made gold coins. The government also established a branch mint in Charlotte in 1837.

Gold mining in North Carolina was stopped during the civil war and after 1866 carried on in desultory fashion. The ore was low grade and each year saw the industry becoming less profitable. By 1902 production in the state had declined to $71,000.

Duke Interests Capitalists.

Many years ago the late James B. Duke, founder of the Duke Power company and developer of several tobacco companies, interested Canadian capitalists in North Carolina gold properties. These Canadians also were associated with Duke in Canadian power developments.

In January, 1934, President Roosevelt reduced the gold content of the dollar and fixed the price of raw gold at $35 an ounce. North Carolina ore previously not worth taking out of the ground suddenly became valuable even though it assayed only from $15 to $20 a ton.

Canadian owners of the Capps Hill mines, a few miles from Charlotte, modernized their mill and production was resumed. Their lead was followed by other companies in North and South Carolina.

Dozen Mines in Operation.

Today, besides the Capps Hill mine, which has produced 80,000 tons of $15 to $20 ore in the last two years, a half dozen or more mines are in operation, none so extensive as the Capps Hill.

Among the better mines are the Southern Golds, a recently discovered deposit from which $15,000 worth of gold has been processed at the Capps mile; the Mint Street mine in Charlotte, the Condor, four miles from Waxhaw, the birthplace of Andrew Jackson, in Union county; Long Creek mine, near Dallas, in Gaston county; Gold Hill, in Stanly county, which contains the highest grade ore in the state, and the Haile mine in Kershaw county, South Carolina, where under Canadian operation gold worth $1,500 is being mined daily, and the Smyrna, near Blacksburg, Cherokee county, S. C.

A gold brick worth $5,033 recently was shipped from the Smyrna mine to the United States mint. The brick weighed fourteen pounds and was 85 per cent pure.

CRUSHED TO DEATH ON TRUCK.

Charles McGuire Jr., 34 years old, a state highway worker, was killed yesterday when the body of a dump truck descended and pinned him against the chassis, in Woodstock. He lived in Hartland township, McHenry county.

HOLLAND TO DON WOODEN SHOES, SCRUB STREETS

Tends 3 Million Tulips as Festival Nears.

Holland, Mich., April 22.—[Special.]—Proud Hollanders are tending with great care their three million tulips which will be placed on parade the middle of May in an annual celebration patterned after old world custom.

Over half a million visitors viewed the riotous rainbow of flowers which last year were massed in parks, on lawns, and on bordering miles of city thoroughfares. Preparations are being made to entertain comparable crowds this year when the tulips reach full bloom.

The festival, which annually opens on the Saturday nearest the middle of May, will begin May 13 and continue for a week. A program of varied exhibits has been arranged for each day of the celebration.

Becomes Garden Paradise.

The annual display of the spring flower, started ten years ago, has transformed this manufacturing town of 15,000 population into a garden paradise. All the colorful pageantry of old Netherlands has been incorporated in the festival to make it an attraction that brings visitors from all parts of the United States.

Hundreds of resident children and adults are practicing the parts they will take in reproducing old world customs in colorful ceremonies. They will scrub the streets and dance in their wooden shoes as their ancestors did centuries ago.

The idea which has "placed this town on the map" was suggested in 1927 by Miss Lida Rogers, a biology instructor in the local high school. She said it would prove an interesting experiment if a city-wide movement were launched to plant one kind of flower.

Idea Ten Years Old.

Inasmuch as 90 per cent of this city's inhabitants are of Dutch descent, it was natural that they chose the tulip. But it was not until 1929 that the gap between the idea and action was bridged. In that year the common council of the town voted an appropriation to buy 100,000 tulip bulbs.

The bulbs, imported from the Netherlands, were planted along street curbs. The following year tulip time was announced to the world. The public response was so far beyond expectations that the town decided to make the festival an annual event.

It was then suggested that citiezns don Dutch custumes, wooden shoes and all. The revival of old Netherlands customs and traditions naturally followed, the bright hues of old country dress being added to the tulip colors.

An old wooden shoe carver was found and was soon established in the year around business of cutting his clumsy looking product from poplar logs. Children were taught street dances and the clickety-clack of hundreds of wooden shoes on pavements proved of compelling interest to festival visitors.

CHILEANS KEEPING ANTI-NAZI POT AT BOILING POINT

Fight to Prevent Alien Minority Drives.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 22.—Virtually the whole press of Chile has joined in a campaign against antidemocratic propaganda and alien advocacy of minority rights.

Baron W. von Schoen, the German ambassador, was given a special audience by President Pedro Aguirree, to whom he protested against the anti-German tone of Chilean publications.

It was the second recent ambassadorial complaint following the bombing of the German embassy, which the police department is still investigating. The first complaint was addressed to the foreign office, where it is understood the authorities reminded Von Schoen that Chile is a democratic country and that freedom of the press cannot be restricted.

Films Draw Protest.

The ambassador said the incidents against which he complained were consequences of an uncontroled campaign against his country. He was bitter against the release of anti-German films by the screen censorship and against what he termed public insults to Germans.

This furor was increased by German anger at Chile's declaration of neutrality in the case of the annexation of Czecho-Slovakia. This neutrality is actually a refusal to assist the embassy to take over the local Czecho-Slovakian legation. The Czech minister intends to maintain the post until he receives instructions from his own free government.

The anti-Nazi pot has been kept boiling by a military incident involving one of the German Condor syndicate air mail planes. It was detained at Los Cerrillos port, near Santiago, just before it was to take off on a flight to Buenos Aires.

The government charged that the plane had flown without permission for a considerable time at a low altitude over the naval base at Quintero. Ambassador von Schoen intervened and the plane was allowed to depart. The investigation was continued.

Foreign Schools Face Check.

The large German-Chilean colony in southern Chile was affected by Education Minister Rudecindo Ortega's announcement of impending measures to end political propaganda and anti-democratic teaching in foreign schools.

The minister stated that of 480 teachers serving thirty-five foreign secondary schools, only 220 were of Chilean nationality. The law calls for 85 per cent.

In many of these schools, Ortega declared, pupils were taught that a certain race is superior. This teaching was a contradiction of science and a violation of the Chilean constitution, he said.

La Nacion, a newspaper partly owned by the Chilean government, printed an editorial on foreign activities in South America. It suggested that the present was a good opportunity for the United States to make a second attempt to organize a defensive system in the Americas.

It insisted that the Americas must give thought to the menace implied by continued emphasis on the rights of minorities of foreign communities.

Spanish Nationalists Curbed.

Spanish Nationalists have received strong hints that they should restrain their enthusiasm over the victory of Gen. Franco in Spain.

Chile was the last South American government to recognize the Franco régime. Almost at the same time it wrote a eulogistic testimonial for the retiring Republican ambassador, who was praised for his services to democracy.

Leftist crowds violently reacted to the hoisting of the Nationalist colors at the Spanish embassy here and at Spanish stores and homes.

Enrique Valenzuela Quezada, 16, Chilean, was shot dead by members of the Spanish Falange when he attempted to lower the Nationalist flag in La Paz street. Police rescued the aggressors when the crowd yelled to lynch them. Two arrests were made.

Auguste Mauvais, Famed St. Louis Hotel Chef, Dies

St. Louis, Mo., April 22.—(AP)—Auguste Mauvais, 98 years old, famed chef of the old Southern hotels in their days of glory here, died tonight at his home. Mauvais was chef at the Southern, the center of fashion and commerce for this area, when it was destroyed by fire in 1877. A "New Southern" opened in 1881 and closed in 1912.

Beats School!

The grand march begins, with a spangled equestrienne leading the parade.

The sun was shining brightly, and the schools' spring vacation had started. Spring was in the air, and sawdust was on the floor of the Chicago Stadium. So to it, and the Greater European Olympia circus showing therein, raced the school children of Chicago yesterday to watch the elephants dance, the beautiful ladies riding bareback on beautiful horses, and a "death defying human projectile" hurled out of the mouth of a cannon. The circus will continue through April 30.

H. H. ROCKWELL DIES; EX-OFFICER OF TRUST FIRM

Harold H. Rockwell, who retired Dec. 31 as vice president and secretary of the Northern Trust company, died yesterday at the age of 70 in the Presbyterian hospital. He had spent forty-eight years in the company's service and was nationally known as a trust officer.

Harold H. Rockwell.

Mr. Rockwell was a trustee of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. and the First Congregational Church of Oak Park and was trustee and treasurer of the Chicago Foundlings' home. He was a former treasurer of the Children's Memorial hospital and a former trustee of the village of Oak Park. His home was at 629 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Anna Schlapp Rockwell; a daughter, Caroline, and a son, John H. Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Oak Park First Congregational church.

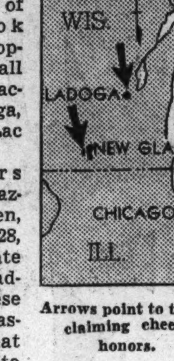
BADGER CHEESE MAKING NOW IN ITS 75TH YEAR

Wisconsin to Celebrate at Ladoga April 28.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., April 22.—[Special.]—Nearly seventy-five years ago a new industry, destined to make Wisconsin the dairyland of America, took foot with the opening of a small frame cheese factory at Ladoga, in Fond du Lac county.



Arrows point to towns claiming cheese honors.

Neighbors called it "Hazen's folly" then, but on April 28, Wisconsin's state officials and leaders in the cheese industry will assemble on that site and celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the day that youthful Chester Hazen opened his little factory to make cheese for his neighbors.

The program will be broadcast over the NBC network during the national farm and home hour from 11:30 a. m. to noon. Gov. Julius P. Heil, who recently issued a proclamation calling for a statewide celebration of the 75th birthday of Wisconsin's cheese industry, will be the principal speaker.

Hazen's Niece to Speak.

Others scheduled to speak on the program are Miss Ella Hazen of Ripon, 84 years old, a niece of the cheese factory pioneer; Earl Writing of Gillett, president of the Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association, and Wilbur G. Carlson, director of the Wisconsin agricultural authority.

Ralph E. Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture and markets, and other state officials also will take part in the program.

Owned and operated by Chester Hazen, young Fond du Lac county settler, Wisconsin's first cheese factory was opened in 1864. Farmers laughed at the idea and a whole week passed before the first dairyman brought milk to the factory, but by the end of the first year milk from 300 cows was being made into cheese.

From this pioneer enterprise a Wisconsin industry has grown which now manufactures about 324 million pounds of cheese annually, or one-half of the nation's production. More than 2,100 cheese factories now dot Wisconsin's landscape.

Dispute Ladoga's Claim.

New Glarus, Wis., April 22.—[Special.]—The claim that Wisconsin's first cheese factory was built at Ladoga in Fond du Lac county is disputed here. Residents assert that New Glarus is entitled to that distinction.

A cheese factory was operating here as early as 1855, nine years before the one at Ladoga was constructed, it was contended. In 1863 a commercial cheese factory was established two miles north of here by Nick Gerber, who had come from Switzerland.

Fridolin Streiff, in whose home the first cheese factory here was built, was said to have been one of the agents who selected New Glarus in 1845 as the site for a Swiss settlement. Swiss immigrants arrived here in that year and soon turned to cheese making.

OBITUARIES

John Bartlett MacLean.

John Bartlett MacLean, 24 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Haddon MacLean, died yesterday of pneumonia in the Evanston hospital. MacLean lived at 1128 Ridge avenue, Evanston, and was a senior in the University of Chicago. His father is a vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, which was founded by his father-in-law, the late Norman Wait Harris. Young MacLean had traveled widely in North and South America and had done mountain climbing in Mexico and California. In a month he planned to accompany a brother, Gordon Gale MacLean, and friends on a two year world cruise on a schooner. Surviving are his parents and another brother, Haddon Harris MacLean. Funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. tomorrow in his home, with burial in Rosehill cemetery.

Henry Brayton Gardner.

Providence, R. I., April 22.—(AP)—Henry Brayton Gardner, 76 years old, founder of the economics department at Brown university and a member of Brown's faculty for fifty years prior to his retirement in 1928, died here today.

Mrs. Addie Bannister.

Funeral services will be held in Woodstock today for Mrs. Addie Bannister, 74 years old, who died there Friday. She was the widow of Judson H. Bannister.

Senator Charles Dumont.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 22.—Senator Charles Dumont, several times a cabinet minister, died today at 72.

Sergt. John J. Manion.

Sergt. John J. Manion of the Stockyards police died yesterday in the Evangelical hospital. Sergt. Manion worked Friday as usual. He went to the hospital yesterday and it was discovered that he was in a critical condition with an internal disorder. He died a short time later. Sergt. Manion, who was 40 years old, joined the police department ten years ago. He became a sergeant last July. Surviving are an aunt, Mrs. Sabina Hastings of 6718 Throop street, in whose home he lived, and two other aunts. He was unmarried. Services will be in St. Brendan's Catholic church, 67th street and Racine avenue, at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Anna C. Koenig.

Mrs. Anna C. Koenig, a resident of Oak Park for twenty-five years, died yesterday. She was 68 years old and lived at 800 South Taylor avenue in the suburb. She was the wife of Frederick W. Koenig, a retired business man. Surviving, in addition to Mr. Koenig, are four daughters and two sons, including Dr. Otto M. Koenig of St. Louis, Mo. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 124 Madison street, Oak Park, with burial in Oakridge cemetery.

Alexis Delbert Shortt.

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 22.—(AP)—Alexis Delbert Shortt, 67 years old, millionaire philanthropist and world traveler, died at his ranch home near here tonight after a long illness. Before his retirement about ten years ago he was active in financial and business enterprises in the east, south, and middle west.

RICHARD WAGNER DIES IN FLORIDA; RETIRED TRADER

Richard Wagner, who in 1879 was the youngest member of the Chicago Board of Trade, died yesterday in Key West, Fla., according to word received here by his son, R. L. Wagner of Evanston. He was 81 years old.

Born in 1858, Mr. Wagner came to Chicago as a child, was here during the 1871 fire, and eight years later joined the Board of Trade. He retired in 1910 and since then had been living quietly on the north side, spending the summers in his cottage at Lake Delavan, Wis.

Surviving, in addition to his son, are his widow, Lottie; two daughters, Mrs. E. B. Melcher of 4400 North Winchester avenue, with whom he made his home here, and Mrs. R. R. Ricketts, whom he was visiting in Key West. Funeral services will be held Tuesday in Miami.

CREATE EDUCATIONAL FUND IN HONOR OF CHEMICAL CO. FOUNDER

St. Louis, Mo., April 22.—(AP)—Edgar M. Queeny, president of the Monsanto Chemical company, announced tonight he and his sister, Mrs. Thomas P. Berington of London, had established an educational foundation for the benefit of employés of the company.

The foundation, a memorial to their father and mother, John F. and Olga Queeny, will supply loans without interest. These are to provide schooling in sciences for young employés of the company or its subsidiaries and for children of Monsanto workers.

It will be financed with shares in the company having a current market value of $300,000.

3,000 RED CROSS WORKERS OF U. S. MEET TOMORROW

Perpetuate Idea Born on Battlefield in 1859.

Arrow locates Solferino, site of battle.

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[Special.]—When 3,000 delegates to the annual American Red Cross convention meet on Monday in Washington, D. C., it will be as a direct result of a battle fought on the plains of Lombardy in Italy eighty years ago. President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull will address the convention, which will last for four days.

At Solferino on that Lombardy plain in 1859, the Austrians under Emperor Francis Joseph faced troops of France and Sardinia under Emperor Napoleon III. Before dawn on June 24, the French and Italians commenced an assault on heights held by the Austrians. All through a hot day the fighting raged. When it ended 91,243 men were dead or wounded.

Henri Dunant, a Swiss tourist, witnessed part of the fighting and saw men dying on the fields without attention of any kind. Stirred to action, he gathered peasants around him and started searching out the wounded, getting them into shelters, and providing them with water and food. He asked Napoleon to release Austrian physicians held as prisoners so that they might lend medical assistance. The unprecedented request was granted instantly.

Asks Friends for Aid.

Laboring through the day, Dunant spent long hours at night writing friends in France and Switzerland for supplies of tobacco, clothing, food, and medicines. Response was encouraging.

At the first opportunity after this battle Dunant published in pamphlet form an account of his experiences. The booklet caused comment. Victor Hugo wrote him: "You arm humanity and serve liberty."

Moved to action by Dunant's book, the Geneva Society of Public Utility, a philanthropic and humane group, invited representatives of European countries to meet informally for a discussion of measures to ease suffering of soldiers. Fourteen countries responded. Their findings were communicated to governments of all nations. A year later, in 1864, the Swiss government invited the governments to send diplomatic representatives to Geneva to discuss definite measures for formulating a treaty providing humanitarian treatment for wounded soldiers and prisoners of war.

The American government, occupied by the civil war and fearful of foreign entanglements, refused to take active part in the discussions, but the American minister to Switzerland was asked to attend as an observer.

Treaty Signed by 12 Nations.

Twelve nations signed the treaty worked out by this convention. In deciding upon an identifying insignia to protect workers on battlefields, the Swiss flag, reversed, was adopted. Thus the red cross on a white field, became a definite symbol. The permanent organization in Geneva became known as the International Red Cross committee. National societies were designed to be active arms of a world-wide movement.

Seventeen years were to intervene between the first gathering in Geneva and American recognition of the organization.

Clara Barton, a New England school teacher and during the civil war a volunteer worker among the war wounded, organized the Association of the American Red Cross, of which she was elected president. When, on March 1, 1882, President Arthur finally proclaimed the treaty after it was ratified by the senate, the organization was ready to begin its work in the United States.

The Red Cross was reorganized in 1905. In granting a new charter, congress named the society as the official agency of the American people "to continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and to apply the same in mitigating the suffering caused by pestilence, famine, fires, floods, and other national emergencies, and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same." At the same time, the organization was recognized as a volunteer source of assistance for men in the military forces of the country and their families.

Inspired Red Cross

Henri Dunant, Swiss banker, who wrote a booklet describing horrors of war. The work resulted in formation of International Red Cross committee.

Carter H. Harrison, 79 Today, Will See a Movie

Carter H. Harrison, United States collector of internal revenue and five times mayor of Chicago, will celebrate his seventy-ninth birthday today. He has no particular plans, Mr. Harrison said, but probably will buy himself a birthday present of a movie ticket in the afternoon.

ARTS CLUB OPENS GAY SHOWING OF MEMBERS' WORK

Public Is to Be Admitted Starting Tomorrow.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club's annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by professional members will be opened today to members, and tomorrow it will be on public view. The exhibiton is unusually fine. It is gay and colorful; movement and enthusiasm pulse through it.

For highlights there are Rudolph Ingerle's "Kiki," the most bewitching Siamese cat in the country painted as even we did not know Ingerle could paint, a magnificent piece of work; the lovely portrait of an English girl, "Miss Sheila Wyndham," by Charles Sneed Williams, an exquisite portrait in a delightful setting; the "Weekly Paper," by Gerald Frank, an intriguing painting of an old lady seated in her window which glows with a window box of geraniums and petunias; the charming "Alice Gerstenberg," by Harriet Blackstone, and Ivan Le Lorraine Albright's surrealist exercise with the impressive title, "Wherefore Now Ariseth the Illusion of a Third Dimension."

"Four Horsemen" Praised.

Anna Lynch is showing her superb still life, "The Four Horsemen." The texture of the Spanish shawl is something to write home about. Alice Mason contributes "Denise," an enchanting portrait of a little girl in blue with a tight little red ribbon in her hair, seated on a kitchen chair and clutching a slender branch of apple blossoms in a hot palm.

One of the several charming decorative still lifes is the interior with window, books, and lilies, "Decoration," by Yvonne L. D. Pryor. Macena Barton gives us "Sophie," a spectacular nude with a large expanse of back looming up from the cerise folds of a dashing robe. Frances Badger has gone into the past for her theme and presents us with an engaging modern version of "Michigan Avenue at Madison Street in 1861." The place would never know itself in its 1939 guise.

"Trailer" Beautifully Modeled.

"Trailer," by Amy Irwin McCormick, is a study of a hound lying on the grass. The head is beautifully modeled. Elizabeth Boynton Millard has a delicate and cool color scheme in her "Study." A curious portrait is that of Mr. Hugh Norton by Stokely Webster. "Happy Reminiscences," by Violet Beatrice Wenner suggests Ethel Barrymore as she was last seen here in "Jalna." Charles P. Killgore gives us a stunning mountain painting, "The High Sierras."

There is little sculpture in the exhibit, but mention must be made of the charming "Portrait, Dorothy Holabird," by Sylvia Shaw Judson, and "Franja," by Maude Phelps Hutchins.

The exhibiton will continue to May 13 and is well worth seeing.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In a review yesterday of the Blackfriars' musical comedy at the University of Chicago reference was made to the "financial gifts" of John Pratt, costume designer. This was a typographical error. The phrase should have read "fanciful gifts."

Floods Maroon Hundreds in Canadian Lowlands

MONTREAL, Que., April 22.—(AP)—The Yamaska and Chaudiere rivers, swollen to flood peak by a spring thaw, filled the streets of half a dozen St. Hyacinthe and Beauce county towns today. More than 100 families were forced from their homes.

Washington Man Is Killed When His Plane Crashes

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—A two passenger sport plane crashed in a Washington suburb today, killing its lone male occupant. The pilot was identified from papers on his body as Thomas H. Latham of Washington. The plane came down in Bethesda, Md., shortly after refueling at the congressional airport near Rockville, Md.

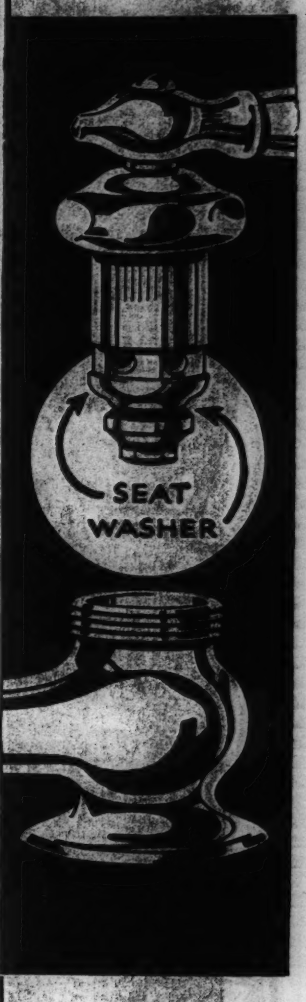
CHICAGO FAUCETS
Will Give You Lifetime Service

They Last as Long as the Building

The reason for the long service life of Chicago Faucets is graphically shown at the right. They operate by means of a working unit, as illustrated. This unit contains all functioning parts, including the renewable seat, and is removable without disturbing the faucet proper. It is standardized and interchangeable. There is no wear whatever on the body of the faucet, hence everlasting. From the day you install Chicago Faucets you are through with faucet trouble and expense. Thousands have been in service for 10, 15 and 20 years, generally with no further attention than an occasional washer or seat renewal.



Your Plumber

will gladly show you Chicago Faucets for every type of service. Or, see downtown display, 213 N. La Salle St.—sidewalk level. Phone BELmont 0300 for name of nearest dealer.

The First Sale of Its Kind In Goldblatt's State St. Store!

STATE ST. DAY

Planned Especially for Our State Street Store Customers

After months and months of careful planning GOLDBLATT BROS. are happy to announce the first in a series of STATE STREET DAYS. Planned and conceived by the men pictured at the right, who are familiar with the needs of our STATE STREET STORE CUSTOMERS and who are desirous of establishing a new sales record and value-giving precedent—all worked together to make this the greatest event on STATE STREET.

Our staff of 250 expertly trained Buyers have searched the markets to bring back for this event the most unusual values ever offered. Our STATE STREET STORE EXECUTIVES and 2500 EMPLOYEES have worked hand in hand to select the items that you would appreciate most. Our 10 magnificent floors, with their up-to-the-minute departments, are abrim with glowing new arrivals of fashion-approved merchandise for the thrifty shopper. Be sure to read every one of our 13 pages packed with sensational values and you will be convinced that these are the greatest values ever offered by OUR STATE STREET STORE.

One Day Only, Monday, April 24th.

Our State St. Store Open Until 9 p.m.

EUROPE NAMES BOXERS TONIGHT TO FIGHT CHICAGO

POLAND PLACES FOUR IN TITLE ROUND BATTLES

Winners Will Sail on Wednesday.

The Survivors

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 22.—The number of boxers each nation has left in the final round of the all-European amateur boxing tournament, which ends tomorrow night, follows:

Poland	4	Estonia	2
Italy	3	Sweden	2
Germany	2	Hungary	1
Ireland	2

BY STEWART OWEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 22.—Europe's amateur boxing champions, who will meet Chicago's Golden Gloves champions in the eighth annual international match in Chicago Stadium on May 12, will be decided tomorrow night.

Poland led the way into the championship round with four strong representatives as the battling continued tonight in the Irish National stadium. Each of the Polish fighters appears to have an excellent chance to win a title. Italy qualified three men for the finals, and Germany, Ireland, Estonia, and Sweden each has two. Hungary placed only one in the final round, Miholy Bondi, the clever bantamweight who fought in Chicago last year.

Pairings for Title Bouts.

The pairings in the title bouts follow:

112 POUND DIVISION.
Jimmy Ingle, Ireland, vs. Nicholas Obermauer, Germany.

118 POUND DIVISION.
Ulderico Sergo, Italy, vs. Miholy Bondi, Hungary.

126 POUND DIVISION.
Pat Dowdall, Ireland, vs. Anthony Czortek, Poland.

135 POUND DIVISION.
H. Kenepi, Estonia, vs. Herbert Nurnberg, Germany.

147 POUND DIVISION.
Anthony Kolczynski, Poland, vs. Eric Agren, Sweden.

160 POUND DIVISION.
Josef Pisarski, Poland, vs. E. Raedik, Estonia.

175 POUND DIVISION.
Franciszek Szymura, Poland, vs. Luigi Musina, Italy.

HEAVYWEIGHT DIVISION.
Oscar Tandberg, Sweden, vs. Nemeno Lazzari, Italy.

The personnel of the squad which will invade Chicago will be chosen immediately after the bouts tomorrow night. The squad and officials of the International Amateur Boxing federation will sail on the Normandie from Southampton on Wednesday.

Poland's quartet of great battlers includes Anthony Kolczynski, welterweight; Anthony Czortek, featherweight; Josef Pisarski, middleweight, and Franciszek Szymura, light heavyweight. Czortek advanced to the finals last night and Kolczynski, Pisarski, and Szymura went into the title bouts with brilliant triumphs on tonight's program.

Kolczynski tonight appeared to be the same hard punching boxer who stunned the huge crowd in Chicago Stadium a year ago when he stopped Chicago's Jimmy O'Malley with devastating punches in the first round. Kolczynski's victim in the semi-finals was Charley Evenden of Ireland.

Floors Foe in First Round.

Kolczynski swarmed all over Evenden from the bell, flooring the Irishman for a one count in the first round and knocking him into the ropes several times. The battered Irishman was down for a six count in the second round and the referee stopped the bout in the middle of the round

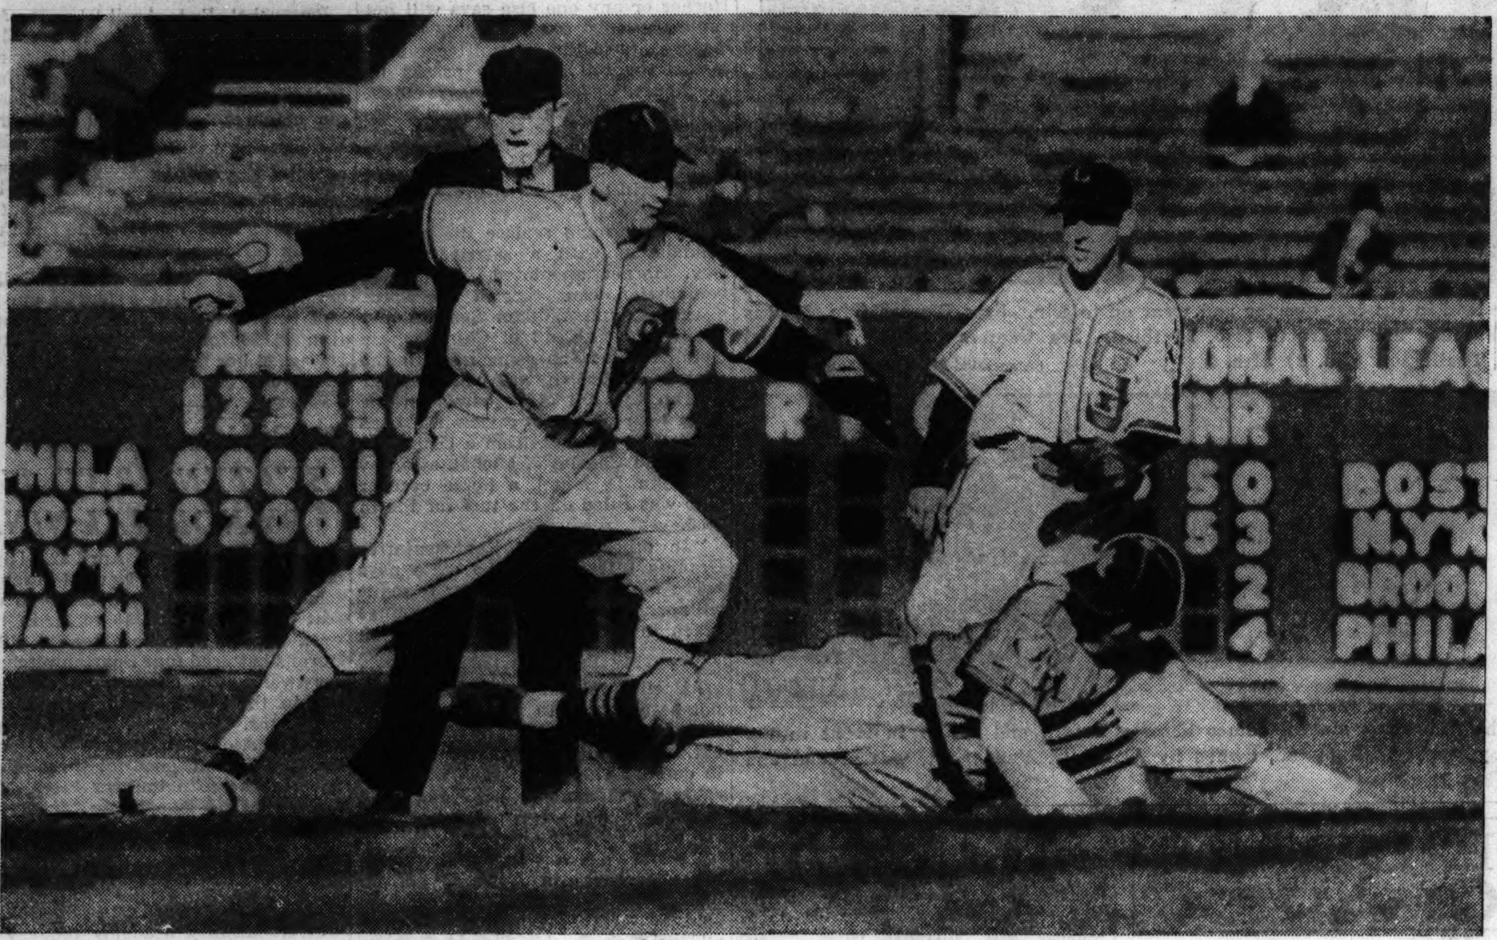
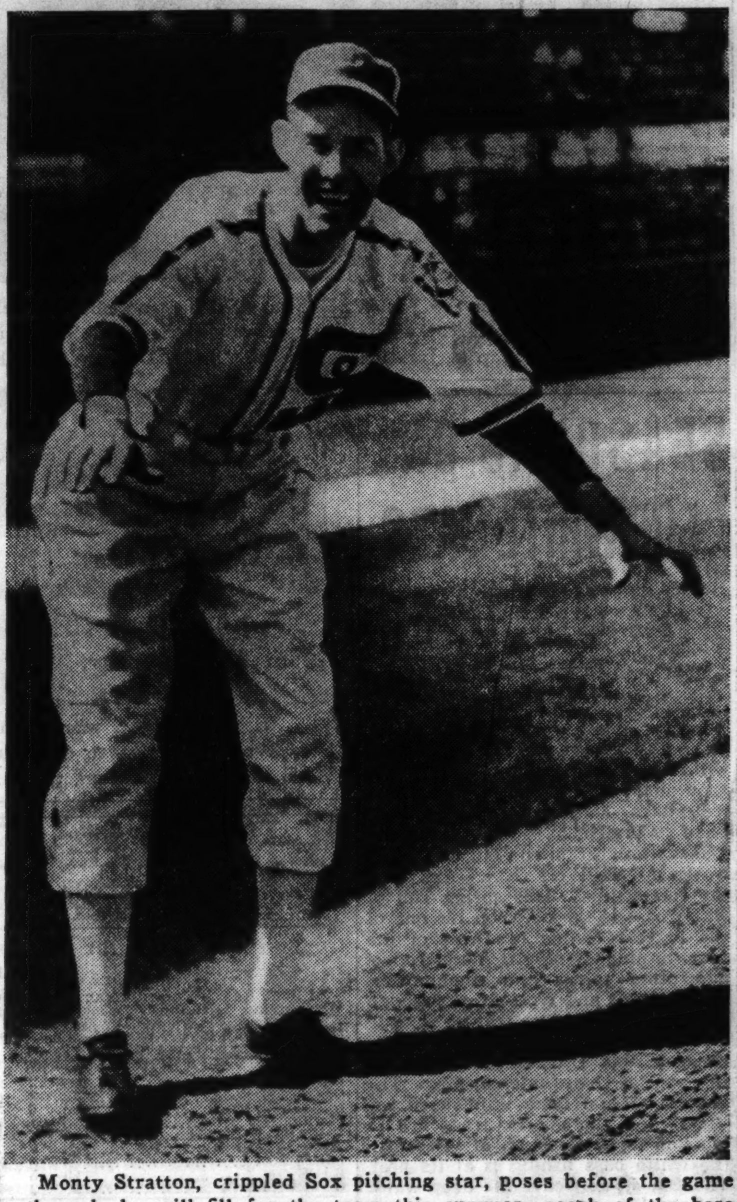
ONLY ONE THING WAS WRONG—THE WHITE SOX LOST



Although the Browns whipped the White Sox, 5 to 1, in Chicago's first major league game of the year in Comiskey park yesterday, Luke Appling made sure in the fourth inning that John Berardino would not score. Luke has just taken a throw from Ted Lyons to force Berardino. His try for a double play failed. Eric McNair backed up the play. The umpire is Joe Rue.



Monty Stratton, crippled Sox pitching star, poses before the game in the role he will fill for the team this summer—coach of the base runners.

Gilded Knight Beats Impound in Havre Stake

Havre de Grace, Md., April 22.—(AP)—Gilded Knight from the Wheatley stable definitly established himself today as the outstanding 3 year old of the moment by whipping Kentucky Derby and Preakness eligibles in the $15,000 added Chesapeake stakes.

Displaying the same driving speed that carried him to a victory a week ago over El Chico, winter book favorite for the Derby, the bay son of Sir Gallahad III. and Gold Brick, scored a length and half triumph over Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Impound before 20,000.

W. L. Brann's Maryland bred Challedon, the favorite in the twentieth running of the mile and sixteenth test, finished third, a length and a half behind Impound and two lengths in front of W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite.

Victory Worth $12,000.

Trailing in order were Millsdale stable's Sun Lover, Saratoga stable's Volitant, Greentree stable's Day Off, Belair Stud's Challenge, and Hugh W. Jackson's Ariel Toy.

Gilded Knight's time was 1:45 3-5 over a fairly fast track. The Preakness candidate, not eligible for the Derby, won $12,800 and paid $11.10, $6.20, and $4. His time was two seconds off Cavalcade's track record.

The field got away fast after being held up at the post by Volitant. As they swung by the stands Ariel Toy was a neck in front, with Gilded Knight and Porter's Mite on his heels. Porter's Mite showed in front briefly at the half way mark, but Jockey Ruperto Donoso pressed Gilded Knight into the lead as the field swung into the stretch. Driving hard, the Wheatley colt held off Impound's rush as the Vanderbilt horse raced past Porter's Mite.

Stotler Is Hurt.

Challedon, triple Futurity winner who whipped both Gilded Knight and Impound last year, was making his first start since November and showed the lack of a tightening race, but still revealed enough in the stretch to come from far back and pick up Porter's Mite.

The stretch running Impound, Van-

KRUGER AND WHITES WIN OVER DE CORREVONT AND PURPLE, 13-12

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The White half of Northwestern's football squad defeated the Purple team, 13 to 12, yesterday in Dyche stadium before a crowd of 5,000 attracted principally by the two year ballyhoo given Bill De Correvont, former nationally known prep star from Austin High school, who will be eligible for the Wildcat varsity in the fall.

De Correvont played approximately three-fourths of the sixty minutes, and, while his personal statistics were quite impressive, as a member of the Purple eleven, he was on the losing side. He also yielded his position as the most promising freshman back on display to young Don Kruger of the White squad, who as a star at Fenwick High school had met De Correvont long before yesterday.

De Correvont handled the ball 27 times, running 19 times for a total of 110 yards. Five of his eight passes were completed, one for a touchdown, for a total of 55 yards. Two passes were incomplete and one was intercepted.

The Ball Was Hot.

De Correvont had difficulty in holding on to the ball, particularly early in the game, but in this he was far from being the sole offender. There were enough fumbles to last an entire conference season.

Kruger kicked splendidly. One of his fourth period punts was downed after a trip of 74 yards, and he also was easily the best passer on either team. He completed five passes in as many attempts for 65 yards. Kruger was very accurate, his touchdown pass to Ted Anastos being exceptionally fine. De Correvont, from his safety position on defense, booted one kick badly when he made an ill-advised effort to field it on the bounce. He was handicapped somewhat, however, because he had to do most of his punting against the south wind. His best defensive maneuver was to drag down Red Hahnenstein, although stiff-armed, when failure probably would have permitted a touchdown.

Among the other freshmen who performed well yesterday were Ira Kepford, half back; Don Clawson, full back from Kankakee, Ill., and Dick Erdlitz, quarter back from Oshkosh, Wis., starting members of the White back field with Hahnenstein; Floyd Chambers, Salt Lake City, half back, and George Benson, Hammond, Ind., full back, who with De Correvont and Dick Richards, varsity quarter back, formed the starting Purple lineup.

Bauman Stands Out.

Then there was William Swigert, Evanston freshman end, who caught a touchdown pass; Jim Furlong, half back from Roosevelt High school, Chicago, who twice broke away for sizable runs, and Alf Bauman, giant freshman tackle, who, like De Correvont, comes from Austin High.

Because of participation in other varsity sports, Jack Ryan, Nick Conteas, and John Haman, regulars, did not play yesterday. Bob Daly, Nick Cutlich, who have been injured, and George McGurn were other varsity men out of yesterday's preview.

An obvious report, based on yesterday's game, is that the Wildcats will have better back field material next fall than it will have line replacements. Progress in developing a second line and in securing competent workmen at the flanks undoubtedly will determine the success or failure in the fall campaign.

Bill Passes to Score.

Clawson provided the White team with the winning point when he successfully place-kicked after Kruger's pass to Anastos for eight yards on fourth down had scored the first touchdown of the game in the second period. Later in the same quarter Kepford's fumble, recovered by Paul Hiemenz, varsity center, set up the scoring opportunity for the Purple eleven.

On the first play, with the ball on the White 12 yard line, De Correvont passed to Swigert for the touchdown. He had begun in the first period with successive runs of fifteen and twenty-three yards after handicapping his average by two fumbles.

Benson's place kick for the point sailed to the left of the goal posts. This was the score: White, 7; Purple, 6 when the squad left the field for the intermission.

Just before the end of the third

Three Kansas Relay Records Are Lowered

Lawrence, Kas., April 22.—[Special.]—Three records were broken and one tied as the Kansas relays were run today before 12,000.

Records were broken in the shot put, pole vault, and college distance medley relay, and the mark in the university sprint medley relay was tied.

The shot put mark was broken when Elmer Hackney of Kansas State tossed the weight 52½ feet 1⅛ inches to break the record of 51 feet 6 inches held by Sam Francis of Nebraska. In the pole vault, Beefus Bryan of Texas broke his record of last year when he went over the bar at 14 feet 2 inches.

Rideouts Help Set Record.

The Rideout twins of North Texas State helped shatter the only mark that fell on the track when they took over the last two legs of the distance medley relay team to lower the record held by Wichita university by seventeen seconds. The time was 10:06.9. The same twins were the factors in bringing a victory to North Texas State in the one mile college relay.

The Rice quartet of Turney, Jones, Moser, and Bell, tied the mark Rice set last year in the university sprint medley relay.

A double winner, besides North Texas State, was the University of Oklahoma. In the quarter mile university relay, the Sooner team of Coogan, Trueblood, Koettel and Toribio, won in :41.4. The same foursome, running in different order, also won the half mile relay in 1:26.6.

Cunningham Beats Fenske.

Glenn Cunningham came up in the stretch to defeat Chuck Fenske, Wisconsin star, by two yards in a special mile race. The time, 4:29.2, was disappointing. It was Cunningham's first victory at his alma mater since 1936, Archie San Romani having defeated him in 1937 and 1938.

E. Lee Todd of Imperial, Neb., competing unattached, won the decathlon with 6,557 points. Clarence Odell, Oklahoma A. and M. star, won the javelin and finished ahead of Todd in the 1,500 meter run, the last two events, but fell short in the final competition by five points. W. L. Clapham, Oklahoma A. and M., who led at the end of five events yesterday, finished fifth.

DECATHLON.

DECATHLON TOTALS—E. Lee Todd, unattached, Imperial, Neb., 6,557 points; Clarence Odell, Oklahoma A. and M., 6,552; Alex Cain, Arkansas City Junior college, 6,418; Bob Seymour, University of Oklahoma, 6,310; W. L. Clapham, Oklahoma A. and M., 6,255; Eric Friesen, Bethel college, 6,164; Vern Sumner, unattached, Emporia, Kas., 6,144; Leroy Floyd, unattached, Stillwater, Okla., 5,921; Forrest A. Todd, unattached, Grant, Neb., 5,874; Allen Scisco, Tuskegee institute, 4,752; Kenneth Cole, unattached, Norris City, Ill., 4,123.

SPECIAL EVENTS.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Wolcott, Rice; Cope, Colorado, second; Wright, Oklahoma A. and M., third. Time—:14.3.

100 YARD DASH—Won by Ellerbee, Tuskegee institute; Greer, Michigan State, second; Piker, Northwestern, third. Time—:09.5.

SHOT PUT—Won by Hackney, Kansas State; Lohkamp, Emporia Teachers, second; Dillon, Drake, third; Friedland, Kansas, fourth. Distance, 52 feet 11⅛ inches. New record. Old record, 51 feet, 6 inches, set by Francis, Nebraska, 1937.

WARNEKE HOLDS CUBS TO FOUR HITS; CARDS POUND FRENCH, ROOT

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 22.—Lon Warneke, entering his third season as a refugee from the Cubs' X-ray parlor, was the St. Louis Cardinals' main man, defensively and offensively, today in the Cards' cruel, 9 to 0 conquest of the Cubs.

The ol' Ozark beagle trainer and guitar virtuoso held the Cubs to four hits, two before the ninth inning, as he breezed along in the comforting atmosphere provided when he drove in three runs by doubling off Larry French with the bases loaded and two out in the second inning. Lon also contributed a single and a run to a superfluous six run attack on Charley Root in the eighth.

Lil' Dickie Gets One.

The only hits the Cubs made prior to the obviously futile ninth were a single by Stan Hack at the start of the game and a double with which Dickie Bartell opened the third. During the long pitching pause while the Cards were making six runs in the eighth, Lon cooled off a bit. With one out in the ninth, Bill Herman singled for the fourth Cub hit and became the second Cub to get as far as third when Jim Gleeson singled to right. These two hits, half of the Cub total, were wiped out when Hank Leiber sealed the shutout by hitting into a double play.

The triumph today was perhaps the most satisfactory Warneke has enjoyed since he was traded to the Cardinals in 1936 for Leroy Parmelee and Rip Collins, after the Cub X-ray lantern and other diagnosis had adjudged him pretty well washed up because of an injury suffered in the 1935 world series.

He Mows 'Em Down.

The personable hillbilly from down Arkansas way had everything. He allowed only one walk, to French in the third. This probably was a sympathetic gesture resulting from his double with the bases full a few moments before. Only three Cubs faced Lon in each of five innings. The two gents who got to third, Bartell and Herman, never got home because of double plays resulting from perfect pitches schemed with just that intent.

French, who lived all winter in the shadow of nineteen defeats suffered last season, was a pretty good workman during his seven innings of endeavor. His only grievous lapse was the double he pitched to Warneke. And that was grievous, for even when the mistake occurred it was apparent that three runs were a heap to spot Lon.

French Is Very Busy.

Larry seemed to be wading out of trouble before he ran into Warneke's bat in that big second inning. Medwick opened the session with a single to left and Mize walked. Moore bunted toward third and French picked up the ball and started to make a play at third but found Hack beside him. Moore was credited with a hit and the bases were loaded with none out. Owen tapped to French, and as Larry fielded the ball his feet slipped from under him. With his heels in the air, Larry tossed to Mancuso in time to force Medwick at the plate. Myers also tapped to French, who again threw to Mancuso, forcing Mize at

NEWSOM FANS TEN IN VICTORY OVER TED LYONS

Clift's Homer Opens St. Louis Attack.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

What was announced as a White Sox homecoming yesterday turned out to be a party designed for spreading the fame of the large sized, boastful Louis Norman Newsom, better known as Buck. The South Carolinian, who, strangely enough, pitches up to the standard of his conversation—as witness his twenty victories last season for the seventh place St. Louis Browns—personally turned it into that kind of an exhibition. He kept the Sox groggy, principally by applying strikes, the Browns meanwhile fashioning enough runs to register a 5 to 1 triumph before 10,000 in Comiskey park.

The fellow who felt the scarcity of runs in support of his cause and who at the same time felt the sting of enemy bats was the 38 year old Ted Lyons. Age caught up with him sooner than expected. For three innings he gave up only one hit—but it was a homer. With those three innings out of the way, he melted down to the Browns' size and they settled everything by swarming on him for three hits and as many runs in the fourth. Despite this jousting, he remained a bit longer without being scored on, and Clint Brown finished with a two inning stretch in which one more Brown sneaked home.

The Slump's Still On.

The 10,000 who came out for first hand information on the product of Jim Dykes' master minding during six weeks of training saw the same slump which was so painfully present while the Sox were assimilating two beatings in their opening series in Detroit. The outfielders, who are supposed to carry the hitting load, found Newsom so baffling it was embarrassing. The other members of the cast also failed to make much of an impression on their pitching opponent until after Newsom felt a hit or two couldn't harm him. Six of the Sox's seven hits came after two were out, one of them driving in a run.

The strikes thrown by Newsom were so numerous that he compiled a list of ten strikeout victims. He had six of them recorded in the first three innings, two of them being hung on Marvin Owen, two on Mike Kreevich, who has forgotten when he made his last hit, and one each on Luke Appling and Ken Silvestri. Later on Appling and Silvestri repeated and the name of Larry Rosenthal, batting for Lyons, was added in the seventh. But Newsom couldn't get Gerald Walker and avenge the hit with which the ex-Tiger drove in the Sox lone run.

Lyons Starts Wrong.

Lyons didn't start like a fellow who has been known for years for his unerring aim. He walked Almada, the first Brown to face him, but none of the next three could slap the ball past the infield. Then Newsom went to work to show he is as good as he claims. He fanned Owen to open the Sox first and nailed both Kuhel and Walker on grounders to Berardino.

Lyons encountered his first jolt early in the second inning. He got into a 2 and 1 count on Clift and figured he could slip one past him for a strike. It was a strike until Clift hit it into the lower left field pavilion. The next three Browns were easy. The Sox also got a man to first base in their half of the second but he went no farther. After Appling and Kreevich had fanned, Steinbacher drew a pass. He was forced on McNair's poke to Berardino.

Teddy Gets Good.

Lyons fanned two of the three fellows facing him in the third, whereupon the Sox pushed Newsom into a tight spot but couldn't hold him

JOHARIE WINS IN DERBY TEST AT KEENELAND

Beats 4 Other Eligibles; Returns $25.40.

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., April 22.—Ten Kentucky Derby eligibles, a group of handicap horses, some high class 2 year olds and perfect weather drew Keeneland's largest crowd to the track this afternoon.

Joharie, the bay colt A. G. Tarn bought from William Woodward, came galloping home a length and a half ahead of his nearest rival in the Buck Pond purse, a six furlong sprint which brought out four other Derby eligibles.

The others made a sorry showing, the Riedinger brothers' Detector running fourth, J. C. Milam's Decatur seventh, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Rule All eighth, and the Nash Brothers' Syracuse last in the field of nine.

Unsuccessful in Florida.

Joharie had been originally nominated for the Derby by Woodward's Belair stud, but when he proved unsuccessful during a Florida campaign, he was sold to Tarn. This was only the second race he had won this year, so he went to the post as an 11 to 1 shot, paying off at $25.40 for his winning effort.

Jockey Nunzio Pariso held Joharie under restraint for the first quarter of a mile while Detector and Syracuse were setting the pace. Pariso began moving up on the turn and hustled Joharie along until he landed in front at the sixteenth pole. It was just a breeze the rest of the way in. Morcarine was second and Doc Jock third.

Burning Star Wins.

The Nash Brothers sent out their good performer, Burning Star, to win the $2,500 Ben Ali handicap, feature event of the afternoon. Under a masterful ride by Warren Yarberry Burning Star saved ground all the way during the mile and a sixteenth run. Although he was restrained off the early pace he had to go around only one horse and that was the pace setter, Arabs Arrow.

Yarberry had ceased worrying about Arabs Arrow by that time, however. It was on the lower bend that he moved Burning Star into the lead, shook him up once to keep him from loafing and landed him at the winning post half a length ahead of Birthday. The tiring Arabs Arrow was third.

Burning Star was so heavily backed that he paid only $3.60 to win.

Smart Crack Beats Derby Hopes.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Derby eligibles, On Location and No Competition, and Connie Smythe's nominee, Sir Marlboro, tested their speed in the seventh race, at six furlongs. All of them finished far behind the speedy filly, Smart Crack, from E. E. Fogelson's stable. On Location ran fourth, No Competition sixth, and Sir Marlboro seventh.

Scotch Trap, G. W. Peak's Kentucky Derby eligible, won handily when Jockey Joe Rosen brought him up in the stretch after laying off the early pace in the six furlong third race. He finished three lengths ahead of Epidor, which led Wise Decision by a head.

Temulac Fails Again.

Temulac, Calumet farm Derby nominee, failed again, finishing in sixth place. This colt, which was purchased as a yearling for $26,000, has won only one race in his career.

Scotch Trap covered the six furlongs in 1:14 3-5 over a dull track. His Derby prospects are taken lightly, as this is only the second race he ever has won.

Following the race Frank Kearns, trainer for Warren Wright, announced neither Temulac nor Easy Mon had measured up to Derby caliber and he reluctantly had decided to withdraw them.

The pair will be included in the main Calumet string which Kearns is transferring to Maryland next week. Bull Lea will head the unit and is scheduled to start in the Dixie handicap.

Kearns reported Bull Lea in excellent condition and ready to try to duplicate his Widener cup performance in which he defeated Maxwell Howard's Stagehand.

Campaigns Secondary String.

Jack Hodgins, Louisville horseman who has served at several meetings around the country in recent years as starter, is to be given a secondary Calumet division for campaigning in Kentucky and Illinois.

A group of 2 year olds, most of them Kentucky bred, went to the post in the fourth race, a sprint over the Headley course. Rapid Way, Queen's Advice, and Ambuscade, all of which had won their only previous starts, divided most of the betting support among them.

Johnny Oros rated Rapid Way in fourth position during the first quarter while Joe Greenock, Ambuscade, and Queen's Advice were fighting for the lead. Oros brought Rapid Way up in the stretch and sent him across the finish line two lengths ahead of Queen's Advice. Ambuscade was third.

Morton Junior Quartet Wins Iowa Teachers' Relay

Cedar Falls, Ia., April 22.—[Special.]—The Morton Junior college track team of Cicero, Ill., won the 440 yard relay event in the junior college and freshman division of the Iowa State Teachers college relays today. Morton set a new record of 45 seconds. Grinnell placed second and Iowa Teachers third. Morton was second to Iowa Teachers in the medley relay in the same division.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE that Bill De Correvont had starred for Austin High school against Fenwick in the city championship football game in 1937. Austin and Leo High were the participants in that year.

MAKING THEIR RIVALS LIKE IT!

T. M. Dorsett from the Joe W. Brown stables establishes himself as a Kentucky Derby threat as he drives through the stretch to win the Stuyvesant handicap at Jamaica yesterday. T. M. Dorsett took the lead in the last quarter and went on to win. Star Runner (No. 3) was second and Entracte (No. 2) third. Sea Captain finished fourth and Thellusson (No. 9) fifth. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Gilded Knight, star from the Wheatley stable, comes home a length and a half in front in the $15,000 stakes at Havre de Grace yesterday. Impound, owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, was second and W. L. Brann's Challedon, third.

SEASON IS ON FOR WHITE BASS IN WISCONSIN

BY BOB BECKER.

In just a few weeks a fresh water game fish known as the white bass will cause considerable unrest among thousands of fishermen in the central states. This species, abundant in Lake Winnebago, Wis., annually makes a migration run out of the big water up the Wolf river. And then the fun begins. This spring run of white bass is the occasion for one of the biggest fishing carnivals of the year around Oshkosh, Winneconne, and other towns and communities near the Fox and Wolf rivers through which the white bass travel.

Although we have caught white bass on May 1 the best fishing for this species comes later in May. The anglers around Lake Winnebago say that when the cherry trees are in blossom in that section of Wisconsin the white bass fishing is at its best. The fish do not leave the deep water of Lake Winnebago and swim up the Wolf river until the water has warmed up a little, so the migration run depends on our spring weather. If we have an early spring the bass start their migration fairly early in May. If the season is late the best fishing naturally is delayed.

Honor Fishing License Early.

This year nonresident fishermen doubtless will pick up a few white bass earlier than they ever have caught them before due to the fact that Wisconsin will honor a 1939 fishing license in the Lake Winnebago-Wolf river waters right now. In former years any fishermen living outside of Wisconsin had to wait for May 1. This year it's possible for an angler to buy his Wisconsin nonresident license and start fishing for wall-eyes, pickerel, white bass, perch and bluegills this week for the season in Lake Winnebago and the Wolf river country [only] already has opened.

Fly Rod Recommended.

We recommend a fly rod for white bass fishing. They're not big fish, so they're more fun when hooked and played on a fly rod tackle. Fishermen who are puzzled about fly rod equipment for any kind of fresh water game fish from trout to bass, and also would like tips on bait casting lures will find THE TRIBUNE'S fishing book, "Which Lures and Where" a big help. This 84 page handbook shows hundreds of different kinds of plug, spoon, surface, and under water lures, and trout and bass fly patterns. "Which Lures and Where", now in its second edition, is sold by the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. It costs only 30 cents by mail.

SUBCOMMITTEE HEARS PLEAS FOR LANTZ RACE BILL

Granata Denies Measure Already Is Doomed.

Reports that the Lantz bill to abolish the Illinois racing commission has been sentenced to die in the house miscellany sub-committee were denied yesterday by Representative Peter C. Granata, chairman of the group. He made his statement at a public hearing on the measure in the council chambers in the city hall.

"I want to state that anything Gov. Horner or any one else says will not influence this committee," Granata declared. "If this committee recommends the bill and it is passed by the house, Gov. Horner may veto it, but the legislature may override his veto.

Bill Provides for Board.

"We will be guided entirely by this hearing."

The bill would replace the present commission with a salaried board. Gov. Horner appointed the payless commission, consisting of Leo Spitz, chairman, and William Schlake and Walter Peacock, all of Chicago. He could appoint the same men to the proposed board, it was pointed out.

"But the bill gives horsemen the right to have courts review the facts as well as the law, from a board ruling," said Charles J. Michal, attorney for John D. Mikel, a horse breeder who was ruled off the turf for life in 1935.

"In other words," Representative Granata interjected," the state pays board members $5,000 a year to make rulings, only to have these rulings taken into court to be changed."

My Bane Started It.

Attorney Michal said cases would not be appealed to the courts if the reason for a board ruling were clear cut. He told about the Mikel case in detail. The commission acted because two members believed Mikel had raced a 3 year old horse, My Bane, in a 2 year old race.

"Mikel, one of the best known horse breeders in America, got an un-American hearing," the lawyer said. "With sole power to judge all cases, the racing commission has run riot in displaying its authority, without rhyme or reason.

"And unless there is proper compensation for the members, you can't expect the degree of service obtained from men who are paid. With $5,000 salaries, the board members would expect to live up to the requirements of a real job."

The witness was bitter in his condemnation of Christopher J. FitzGerald, steward of the commission at $15,000 a year, whom he blamed for causing Mikel's suspension. Chairman Granata asked Michal whether the Lantz bill might not be unnecessary if FitzGerald were replaced.

"We would still need the change," Michal replied, "if we want to give the public protection against the ruthlessness of such rulings."

Lantz Has a Sale.

Michal was the only advocate of the bill heard yesterday. Senator Simon E. Lantz [R., Congerville], veteran leader of the agricultural bloc who got the senate to pass the measure 44 to 1, was not present. He was having a sale of prize stock on his large farm near Mikel's at Carlock, Ill.

Opponents will be heard by the subcommittee at a place and time to be announced later. With Chairman Granata were Representatives Arthur T. Broche, Stanley Martynowski, also Chicago Republicans, and Edward J. Petlak, Chicago Democrat.

derbilt's hope in the Derby and the Preakness, and, like Challedon, a Maryland bred horse, picked up his field quickly after Jockey Leo Fallon made his move from fifth position at the half mile mark, but he didn't have enough to catch Gilded Knight.

Impound's trainer, J. H. [Bud] Stotler, was not there to see the dark bay colt's courageous effort. Stotler was injured in an automobile accident early today and left for his Baltimore home after giving Fallon instructions for the race.

BE BLUE WINS

Pawtucket, R. I., April 22.—(AP)—An upset triumph by the Texas filly Be Blue in the $5,000 added Spring handicap today marked the opening of New England's 172 day racing season before a 35,000 crowd in Narragansett Park.

The daughter of Blue Larkspur, owned by T. H. Heard Jr., scored by a neck over Felix Spatola's stoutly supported Wise Prince while running the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5.

Don Meade was up on Early Delivery, which finished a length and a half behind Wise Prince. While netting $4,650 for her owner, Be Blue rewarded her few backers with $49.70, $16.80 and $7.90 across the board.

MICHIGAN STATE BEATEN, 13 TO 11, BY NORMAL NINE

East Lansing, Mich., April 22.—[Special.]—The Michigan Normal baseball team came from behind today to defeat Michigan State, 13 to 11, in the opening game for both teams. The Hurons battered four Spartan pitchers for twelve hits, climaxing their scoring in the eighth by driving across four runs. The Spartans drove out seven hits, one a home run by George Owen of Detroit good for three of six runs in the fifth inning.

Culver Track Teams Win Twice from Horace Mann

Culver, Ind., April 22.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy today won both divisions of a dual track meet with Horace Mann High of Gary. Culver won the A division meet, 83 to 35, and the B division meet, 74 to 38. Capt. MacIntyre of Culver led the scoring with 23 points gathered in the two hurdle races, the broad jump, the high jump and the pole vault.

T. M. DORSETT WINS JAMAICA $5,325 PURSE

Beats Two Other Derby Eligibles in Stuyvesant.

New York, April 22.—[Special.]—A Kentucky Derby dark horse was a sprint winner before Jamaica's 15,000 patrons today when T. M. Dorsett, a son of Cohort and owned by Joe W. Brown of New Orleans, was first in the $5,325 Stuyvesant handicap. Two other Derby candidates, Thellusson and Our Mat, were far behind him in a field of eight from which El Chico was missing.

William Ziegler Jr.'s erstwhile future book favorite was withdrawn because it was feared track conditions would be muddy. However, the sun and wind dried the strip out until it was rated fast. Over that sort of a surface T. M. Dorsett was up to win in the last couple of jumps in 1:12 1-5 for the six furlongs.

Star Runner Is Second.

Second at the wire and leader for almost all of the race was William H. Berri's Star Runner. He was beaten a half a length after faltering in the last furlong. About the same distance farther back, in third position, was Entracte, carrying the A. G. C. Sage colors.

It was a keenly run three-quarters of a mile, with the winner the favorite in the betting and shouldering the top weight of 116 pounds. Leon [Buddy] Haas rode the winner, which earned $3,925.

Matt Brady, trainer of El Chico, in commenting upon the withdrawal of his charge, said:

"I really intended to run him, but when I was out this morning about 5:30 o'clock it was pouring rain and I didn't want to start my horse in a big field in that kind of going."

Hasn't Weakened on El Chico.

Brady has not weakened on El Chico and intends to send him west to Kentucky regardless of his showing in the Wood Memorial next Saturday, but he expects that showing to be a good one.

El Chico suffered his first defeat last Saturday from Gilded Knight, a Wheatley stable color bearer, and it was from the Wheatley stable that the first two winners came today. Merry Knight captured the opening race by six lengths at 9 to 20, and Black Legion took the second by the same margin at odds of 11 to 20.

LEONARD YIELDS 6 HITS; SENATORS BEAT YANKS, 3-1

Washington Gets Its Runs in One Inning.

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—The Washington Senators halted the New York Yankees today, bunching three of their four hits in the third inning for a 3 to 1 victory.

Two veterans, Emil [Dutch] Leonard, the Senators knuckleball expert, and Oral Hilderbrand, obtained by the Yankees during the winter from the St. Louis Browns, were principals in the sparkling pitching duel.

Leonard kept half a dozen hits scattered to achieve his triumph. He had trouble, however, with Tommy Henrich, who tripled in the third to score Red Rolfe. The latter reached first by forcing Frank Crosetti, who had walked. Henrich also had a double and a base on balls.

Hildebrand was even more flashy than his opponent except for the disastrous third frame which Rick Ferrell opened by singling. Leonard advanced him with a sacrifice and George Case was walked. Then Sam West doubled Ferrell home and Big Taft Wright tripled against the fence in right center, scoring Case and West. Score:

INDIANS BEAT TIGERS.

Cleveland, O., April 22.—(AP)—The veteran Willis Hudlin got the credit, but young Johnny Humphries snatched the glory, as the Indians defeated Detroit, 2 to 1, today for their second consecutive victory.

Hudlin, starting his twelfth full season with the Indians, faltered in the eighth inning after making a strong bid for a shutout. Humphries came to his rescue and left three Tigers on the bases by retiring Rudy York and Pete Fox on popups.

Hudlin gave up eight hits in all and ran into trouble in the eighth when Barney McCosky doubled and scored on Fred Walker's single. Jeff Heath's double in the first, scoring Skeeter Webb and Ben Chapman, who had walked, brought the Indians their runs off Vern Kennedy. Score:

Phillies Wait Until 9th for First Victory

Philadelphia, Pa., April 22.—(AP)—The Phillies finally won their first game of the National league season today, squeezing past the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5 to 4, with three runs in the ninth.

It took a balk by Rookie Russ Evans with the bases loaded and two out to force in the winning run, but the other two scores were achieved by bona fide hits—two singles followed by Emmett Mueller's pinch double.

Freddy Fitzsimmons held the Phils to two runs and five hits for eight innings, but when the first two batters singled in the ninth he was replaced by Evans, who was charged with the loss. Score:

ILLINOIS BEATS IOWA, 8 TO 0, TO SQUARE SERIES

Champaign, Ill., April 22.—[Special.]—Illinois evened the Iowa series today when the Illini, fielding faultlessly behind Roger Zeller's pitching, shut out the Hawkeyes, 8 to 0. Zeller yielded three singles, did not give a base on balls and struck out two. His double in the third inning scored two runners. Cavallo doubled in the seventh to score Ziemba. Reid, Iowa pitcher, retired after seven innings. Score:

GOPHERS SCORE DOUBLE VICTORY OVER WILDCATS

Minnesota's baseball team opened the Western conference season by winning a double header from Northwestern yesterday, 8 to 3 and 8 to 4, on Roycemore field. The Gophers scored five runs in the first inning of the first game off John Goldak. A triple by Kundla featured the Minnesota attack in this inning. Two singles, a walk and a passed ball accounted for Northwestern's three runs in the second.

The Gophers jumped into a 5 to 0 lead in the second game by scoring two runs in the second inning and three in the third. Scores:

PURDUE TAKES DOUBLE-HEADER FROM MAROONS

Lafayette, Ind., April 22.—[Special.]—Purdue continued to set the pace in the Big Ten baseball race this afternoon as it added a double-header victory over Chicago to its opening triumph against Iowa of last Tuesday.

Two brilliant mound performances were largely responsible for the victories. The Boilermakers took the first game, 8 to 3, behind the three hit pitching of Sophomore Bob Bailey, and the second, 2 to 1, as Dick Wargo, another newcomer on the hurling staff, held the Maroons to three hits.

A big second inning clinched the first game for Purdue as the Boilermakers combined three singles, a pair of walks, and an error to score five runs.

In the second game Wargo not only limited the Maroons to three hits, but accounted for the first hit off Reynolds to lead off the fifth inning, scored the first and tying run, and then drove in the winning run in the seventh when he singled after Thompson had doubled.

Scores by innings:

quarter the Purple went into the lead, 12 to 7, when De Correvont and Benson smashed the ball seven yards in three plays. Frank Young, varsity tackle on the Purple team, created the opportunity when he broke through to block Hahnenstein's kick. Joe Lokanc, sophomore guard, on the Purple team, recovered the ball on the White 7 yard line. De Correvont hit the line for two yards, Benson cracked center for three, and then plunged over on his next try. Al Butherus, end, missed the attempt for extra point.

The White team received and marched from its own 42 yard line to the Purple 30 yard line as the third period ended. On the first play of the last quarter Iggy Mesec, who will be a senior next fall, raced around the right end of the Purple line and down the west side line for twenty-nine yards, being forced out of bounds. Clawson plunged for the touchdown on the next play. Clawson's try for the point failed.

WARNEKE STOPS CUBS; CARDINALS TRIUMPH, 9 TO 0

Yields Only 4 Hits; Bats In Three Runs.

the plate. Nice wading, Cub partisans thought. All French had to do to get out was take care of Warneke. But Lon lined a double to the wall in left center, scoring Moore, Owen, and Myers.

Bartell led off the Cub third with a double and French walked. Hack popped a short fly to Medwick, after which Bartell stole third. Herman then hit into a double play, Myers to Brown to Mize.

Larry Gets Another Scare.

French had to struggle some more in the home third. Gutteridge opened with a single to right. Slaughter struck out, but Medwick, an avowed candidate for the 1939 batting championship, drew credit for a single when his grounder went between Bartell's heels. Gutteridge reached third on the activity. French then made Mize foul to Herman and Moore line to Cavarretta.

In the second three inning span French had a much easier time. In the fourth, fifth, and sixth he held the Cards to infield scratch singles by Myers and Owen.

But he had another big sweat in the seventh, his final inning. Brown was safe when Herman fumbled his grounder. Gutteridge attempted to sacrifice, but popped to Mancuso. Slaughter singled to center, putting Brown on third and Medwick walked, filling the bases. Mize then popped to Herman and Moore flied to Gleeson.

That Big Eighth.

French gave way in the eighth to allow Augie Galan to pinch bat and Root took over. Owen, first batsman to face Root, knocked a homer into the left field bleachers. Gleeson misjudged Myers' fly and let it fall for a double. Warneke singled to right, Myers stopping at third. The bases were loaded on singles by Brown and Gutteridge, after which Slaughter fanned for the first out. Medwick's sacrifice fly to Marty scored Warneke and Mize walked for the third time in the game, again filling the bases. Moore doubled to center, scoring Brown, Gutteridge and Mize. Higbe replaced Root and Owen, up the second time in the inning, walked. Myers fanned.

down long enough to frisk him for more than the tying run. Silvestri led off with three strikes and Lyons flied to deep left but Bell couldn't locate the ball until he heard it drop for a double. Owen fanned for the second time and Kuhel walked. Walker spanked a single through short to score Lyons. Newsom apparently had no desire to pitch to Appling and Luke ignored bad pitches, the result being a pass, filling the bases. But Buck again summoned his strikeout wizardry and made Kreevich a two time victim.

Complications came quickly for Lyons in the fourth. McQuinn singled to center and Bell walked before anybody was retired. Clift struck out as Lyons threw him curves, but Hoag followed with a double to the left field scoreboard, McQuinn scoring and Bell stopping at third. Berardino slipped a single between Kuhel and McNair, sending Bell and Hoag home. Sullivan then forced Berardino on a tap to Lyons and McNair tossed out Newsom.

Buck Is Just Too Good.

The Sox had no fun whatever in the fourth and only a little in the next two innings. A fumble by Heffner put Kuhel on after two were out in the fifth and then Walker flied to Bell. Newsom slipped a pass to Appling to open the sixth, but nothing happened. The seventh produced a couple of Sox hits, but they were ineffective. For the first two outs Newsom fanned Silvestri again, as well as Pinch Batter Rosenthal. Owen and Kuhel then singled. This put opportunity in front of Walker, but the best he could do was a fly to Bell.

Lyons surrendered one hit to an inning without being scored on in his last three sessions of work, but Brown gave up only one safety in the eighth and it grew into a run. The hit was a double by McQuinn, who also had doubled against Lyons but failed to get around to the plate. This time he moved to third while McNair was throwing out Bell and scored on Clift's fly to Kreevich.

The Sox turned up again with two hits in the eighth, but also after two were out. Steinbacher singled to center and McNair to left, after which Silvestri tapped to Newsom. Kuhel got the last hit on a scratch to Clift in the ninth, but there were two gone again, and Walker rolled to Berardino.

St. John's Rally in Ninth Beats Kelvyn Park, 9 to 8

Delafield, Wis., April 22.—[Special.]—A ninth inning rally gave the St. John's Military academy baseball team a victory over Kelvyn Park High school of Chicago this afternoon, 9 to 8, in the opening game for St. John's. Kelvyn Park led, 8 to 6, as the game went into the last half of the ninth.

Rigney Opposes Browns Today for White Sox

The second game of the season in Comiskey park will see John Rigney, River Forest's own, pitch for the White Sox against Johnny Marcum of the Browns today.

The moth eaten opening day ceremonies, such as a dignitary throwing out the first ball, etc., were omitted from yesterday's program. The only extra features were the flag raising and some tooting by a hired band.

Among those present were William Harridge, president of the American league; K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, and Don Barnes, president of the Browns.

The park was all dolled up in fresh paint, the walls a gay green and the box seat chairs a deep red. There should have been some flowers for the ground keeper. He presented the athletes with an infield so perfect it looked like a putting green.

Vic Frasier, the Sox pitcher who suffered a fractured skull when hit by a thrown ball prior to the game with the Pittsburgh Pirates in Los Angeles March 22, must wait another week before getting the doctor's permission to put on a uniform. Vic has been doing a lot of walking to get his legs in shape and thinks that about five days of throwing will fit him for his return to the mound.

After today's game the Sox will move to Cleveland, where they hope to play three games in three days.

SAN DIEGO ENDS ANGELS' STRING AT 19 STRAIGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., April 22.—[U. P.]—The Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast league, a team which tied one of the greatest records of modern times last night when it won its nineteenth game in a row, today was beaten by San Diego, 12 to 6.

Before a crowd of more than 10,000 in Wrigley field last night the Angels tied the 36 year old Pacific Coast league nineteen games' record made by Seattle. The major league record is twenty-six consecutive victories.

BRYANT OPPOSES PAUL DEAN TODAY IN SERIES FINAL

Whitehill to Open Chicago Season Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 22.—Clay Bryant, he of nineteen victories in 1938, will pitch for the Cubs in the final game of the series with the Cardinals. He will be opposed by Dizzy Dean's little brother, Paul.

Earl Whitehill, the reformed American leaguer, will pitch the National league opener for the Cubs against the Pirates in Wrigley field Monday, unless he has to relieve here, according to Manager Gabby Hartnett's announcement before today's game. Gabby figures Earl will fool the Pirates with his back to the plate style. The only National leaguer who resembles Earl is a right hander, Freddie Fitzsimmons.

Perfect weather smiled on the Cubs and Cards today. Most folks fetched overcoats but shed them upon getting settled.

Matthew Gleeson, Jim's papa, came over from Kansas City to watch his boy play left field for the Cubs this afternoon.

Some fiend plastered Dizzy Dean's auto with red birds, the Cardinals' insignia, last night.

The attendance was announced as 14,172, of which 5,260 were cash customers, 2,610 ladies, 1,332 girls, and 4,970 boys.

MICHIGAN EVENS SERIES WITH OHIO STATE, 4-2

Columbus, O., April 22.—[Special.]—Michigan evened up the baseball series with Ohio State here today by defeating the Buckeyes, 4 to 2.

After scoring in the second and fourth innings the Ohioans were unable to solve Danny Smick and the Wolverines won in the seventh when Seppon hit a home run with one on.

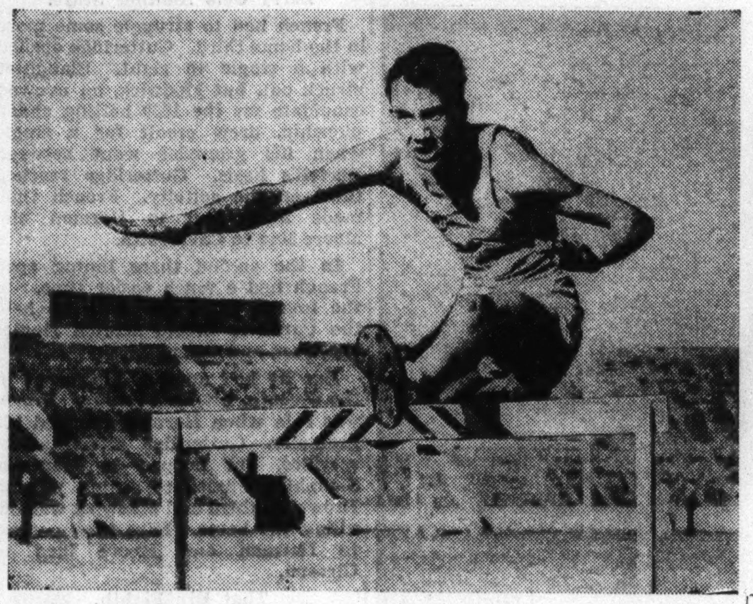
DRAKE RELAYS TITLES GOAL OF TRACK STARS FRIDAY

The field for the 30th annual Drake relays in Des Moines Friday and Saturday will rival that of the older Penn relays carded on the same days. Among the outstanding track men to compete is Fred Wolcott of Rice, who broke the high hurdle mark last year. He also anchored the Rice quarter mile team which tied the meet record of 41 5-10 seconds.

Bob Diefenthaler, captain of the Illinois track team, is the defending champion in the high jump at Drake. He will be out to beat the record of 6 feet 6 inches, set in 1922 by Harold Osborne, also of Illinois. It is the oldest record in the Drake books.



Boyce Gatewood, Texas university hurdler, is the only man in the country who holds a victory over Wolcott. They meet again at Drake in the 120 yard high hurdles.

Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, great two miler, will represent the Badgers at Drake.

John Davenport of Chicago, Big Ten 100 yard dash champion, is another star in the field for the Drake carnival.

Watson Sets Records in Shot, Discus.

Champaign, Ill., April 22.—[Special.]—Capt. Bill Watson established new meet records in the shot and discus today as Michigan defeated Illinois in track, 88 to 38.

The Michigan star threw the shot 54 feet 1¾ inches to exceed his own meet record of 50 feet made here two years ago. The throw was also better than his own Big Ten record of 50 feet 10⅝ inches. Four of his seven throws today bettered the meet record.

Watson hurled the discus 158 feet to break his own meet record of 152 feet 8½ inches. When Watson was certain of second place in the broad jump, Coach Charley Hoyt suggested he drop out in order to run no risks with an ankle.

The Wolverines won all events with the exception of the 100 yard dash, the high and low hurdles, and the high jump. Bob Ashley beat Allen Smith in the dash after a brisk race. Capt. Bob Diefenthaler of Illinois took the jump with a leap of 6 feet 2 inches. Dick Reising defeated Stan Kelley of Michigan in both barrier events. Summaries:

NEW HIGH SEEN FOR COMPETITION IN DRAKE RELAYS

The thirtieth annual Drake university relays, which will be held Friday and Saturday in Des Moines, are expected to set a new high in competition and spectator interest according to F. P. [Pitch] Johnson, director of the meet. Ticket sales indicate one of the largest Saturday crowds in the history of the meet. Competitively none may question the preëminence of the relays.

Although not as old as the University of Pennsylvania relays, which are held annually on the same dates, Des Moines attracts the track and field stars of the central states, south, and far west. The Pennsylvania event is restricted geographically to the east. Beginning with the Texas relays, then opening in the central states with the Kansas relays, which were held yesterday, Drake completes the early track and field schedule before the usual program of dual meets gets under way.

Compares Well with Penn.

The Drake relays are not truly national in scope but they have more than held their own in comparison of performances with those at Pennsylvania.

The important factor in this year's Drake meeting according to Johnson is the number of schools entering the relays for the first time. Two weeks before the meet more than fifty colleges and universities had filed entries and in this group, which eventually will be eighty or more, are Howard Payne, East Texas Teachers college, Albion, Mich., college, George Pepperdine of Los Angeles, and Nebraska Wesleyan. None of these ever has sent its athletes to Des Moines before.

Wolcott Leads Field.

Probably the greatest individual athlete in the meet will be Fred Wolcott of Rice institute, who broke the high hurdle record last year. He also anchored Rice's quarter mile relay team which tied the meet record of 41 5-10 seconds set in the preliminaries by the University of Texas.

Furnishing competition for Wolcott this year will be such hurdlers as Gatewood, Texas; Gutting of Purdue, and Wright, Oklahoma A. & M. Milt Padway of Wisconsin will defend his pole vault title and Walter Mehl, a great two miler, is another Badger who will return to Des Moines. Mozelle Ellerbee of Tuskegee institute, will defend his 100 yard sprint championship which he won in 9 6-10 seconds last spring. Greg Rice, Notre Dame; E. Y. Steakley, Rice; Don Bird, Kansas, and Beefus Bryan, Jud Atchison, and Gilliam Graham of Texas are other outstanding athletes already entered in the games.

Mile Relay Mark May Fall.

The universtly mile relay record of 3:15.4 which was established by the University of Iowa last year may again be smashed this year, weather permitting. The greatest list of mile relay teams in history will be brought together with Washington State the present favorite. Washington State has five quarter milers who can run 440 yards under 49 seconds. Their ace, Lee Orr, has done 46 7-10 seconds. Orr is the Canadian Olympic man. Either Washington State or Iowa may break 3:15 for the mile relay.

Monarchs Bowl 3,185 to Take Windy City Lead

The Monarch Beers of the Classic league totaled 3,185 on games of 1,028, 1,161, and 996 last night to take the lead in the Windy City tournament, which ends next Wednesday night in the Windy City Recreation. Bill Flesch led the individual scores with 672, followed by Matt Faetz Jr., 669; Leo Faetz, 636; Dick Winsberg, 629, and Bill Lenzen, 579.

Lawson Y. M. C. A. Wins Central Volleyball Title

The Lawson Y. M. C. A. won the central states open volleyball tournament last night in the Larrabee branch. Larrabee was second and Greensburg, Ind., third.

Europe Will Name Boxing Team Tonight

when the Pole staggered Evenden with numerous rights to the head.

Pisarski qualified for the middleweight finals by eliminating Oscar Agren of Sweden, who moved up into this division when his brother Eric took his place in the welterweight class. Pisarski and Oscar boxed cleverly on even terms in the first round, then began putting weight behind their punches in the second. The third round was a slugging bee, both frequently landing with rights to the head at the same time.

Szymura Beats Briton.

Szymura entered the light heavyweight finals by defeating Bruce Woodcock of Great Britain, who was reinstated in the tournament this morning when the International Amateur Boxing federation's jury of appeals reversed the decision of the Briton's bout with Hans Koppers of Germany last night. Szymura ripped into Woodcock in the second round and the Polish boxer's harder blows finally wore Woodcock down.

Italy's three title aspirants are Ulderico Sergo, Olympic and international bantamweight champion; Luigi Musina, light heavyweight, and Nemeno Lazzari, heavyweight. Sergo, who lost a thrilling bout to Frank Kainrath in Chicago last year, triumphed last night. Musina and Lazzari advanced by winning in tonight's bouts.

Musina defeated L. Sbygeti, 36 year old Hungarian. The Italian had difficulty getting to his opponent in the early minutes, but began to find the range in the second round, connecting with head and body blows.

Lazzari Wears Down Briton.

Lazzari triumphed over Arthur Porter of Great Britain in the last bout on tonight's program. Porter started out in the usual British fashion, outboxing Lazzari for the first round. Porter was willing to mix it in the second, but the Italian drove home harder blows. The third round was furiously fought, Porter staying with Lazzari until the bell.

Sweden's representatives in the final round are Oscar Tandberg, present heavyweight champion of Europe, and Eric Agren. Tandberg's victim was Herbert Runge of Germany, who met his customary fate at the hands of the Swede. Tandberg, who has beaten Runge every time except once that they have met, maintained his mastery with a strong finish after the German had given signs early in the fight of ending Tandberg's reign.

Eric Agren defeated Dick Thomas of Great Britain, overcoming the Briton's greater boxing skill with rushing tactics. Thomas outboxed Agren in the first round and although the blows lacked the steam of the Swede's, the Briton staggered him several times.

The other semi-final match on tonight's program saw E. Raedik of Estonia triumph over Ossie Davies of Great Britain. Raedik connected with terrific wallops and gave the Briton a thorough beating for three rounds. Davies spent the first round backpedaling away from the Estonian's dangerous right. Raedik, however, kept boring in and floored his opponent for a three count.

MISHAWAKA WINS IN TRIANGULAR TRACK EVENT

South Bend, Ind., April 22.—[Special.]—Mishawaka scored 48 points to retain its triangular track title over South Bend Central and Riley today. Central was second with 44 points and Riley third with 26. Central and Mishawaka were tied with 43 points each with only the half-mile relay remaining on the card. Mishawaka's quartet won the event handily, with Central finishing third.

Bill Nicholson, son of John P. Nicholson, Notre Dame's track coach, was high point man. Competing for Central, Nicholson won the 120 yard high hurdles, the broad jump, and tied in the high jump at 5 feet 11 inches for 14 points.

Bill Conors, Central, won his fourth half mile run of the season to remain undefeated in his specialty. Ora Spaid, Riley miler, handed Bill Heintzberger, Mishawaka, his first mile defeat of the season, Spaid winning by three yards for his fourth triumph of the season.

WESTERN STATE IS BEATEN, 5 TO 0, BY NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., April 22.—[Special.]—Norvall Hunthausen shut out Western State Teachers of Kalamazoo today, 5 to 0, for Notre Dame's second victory in three starts. Hunthausen yielded eight hits, walked one man, and struck out the last two men with runners on second and third in the first and second innings. Score:

Simmons Ends Drill Today for Rankin Battle

Marty Simmons, chunky fighter of Saginaw, Mich., who has not done serious training since he held Middleweight Champion Solly Krieger to a draw in Milwaukee last June 2, today will conclude one of his hardest conditioning periods for a ten round bout with Oscar Rankin in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. The last workout will be held in Kid Howard's gymnasium at 73 West Randolph street.

The annual athletic show sponsored by the Jewish Men's club of Ravenswood will be held in the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall, 4432 North Kedzie avenue, tomorrow night.

Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight champion, and Battling Nelson, the old lightweight titleholder, will use 10 ounce gloves in their three round exhibition in the Coulon gymnasium out on the south side tomorrow. F. M.

U. S. IN FAVOR OF WOMEN OLYMPIC EXHIBITION RACES

Acceptance of the tentative proposal of Switzerland to add four women's speed skating events to the winter Olympic games program in St. Moritz next February is agreeable to the American Olympic speed skating committee only if such events are exhibitions, it was decided at a meeting of the group last night in the La Salle hotel.

Secretary Frank Kalteux was instructed to cable Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, who is now in Japan en route to the meeting of the international Olympic committee in London, to support the proposition only on that basis. It was pointed out that the United States would not be able to send a full team and partial representation would weaken the chances of this country in the quest for its first winter championship.

Maddy Horn of Beaver Dam, Wis., national indoor and outdoor speed skating champion, was recommended as the American representative for these exhibitions.

Full budget coverage was assured for the American team of eight men, which tentatively is scheduled to sail on Dec. 3. Charles Gevecker of St. Louis was named trainer of the team.

MOOSEHEART IN SEMI-FINALS OF JUNIOR SOCCER

Mooseheart reached the semi-final round in Illinois district play for the National Junior soccer cup yesterday by defeating Olympia, 2 to 1, in Olympia field. Mooseheart will meet the Vikings in the semi-final round. Today Swedish-Americans face the Maccabees at 1 o'clock on Kuppenhemer field in the other Illinois district semi-final match.

Ogden Park won the championship of the juvenile division of the International league yesterday, defeating the Workers' F. C., 6 to 0, in Ogden park.

No. 16815 Pitches a No-Hit Game for the Reformatory

Rahway, N. J., April 22.—(AP)—Inmate No. 16,185 turned in a no hit, no run performance today as his Rahway reformatory teammates scored a 1 to 0 victory over the Roselle High school baseball team. He drove in the game's only run on a long fly to center field to score a runner from third. Only two high school players reached first. They walked.

MARQUETTE WINS MILE RELAY AND BEATS WISCONSIN

Hilltoppers Triumph, 70-61, in Track.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 22.—[Special.]—A victory in the mile relay final event on the program, enabled the Marquette university track team to hand the University of Wisconsin its first dual meet defeat in five years before 2,000 today. The score was 70 to 61.

Closely contested all the way, the meet was featured by the triple victory of Walter Mehl of Wisconsin in the 880 yard, one mile, and two mile runs, and by the establishment of three new meet records.

Mehl accounted for one of the records when he won the mile run in 4:18.9. The others were turned in by John Dye, Marquette, with a heave of 144 feet 6⅝ inches in the discus, and by Marquette's one mile relay team which was clocked in 3:22.9.

Marquette won nine of the fifteen events. Charles Beaudry, a junior, captured both sprints. The major upset of the day occurred when George Foster, Marquette colored sophomore from Newark, N. J., beat Ed Smith, Wisconsin Negro, in the high hurdles.

Two Navy Crews Beat Princeton in First Races

Annapolis, Md., April 22.—(AP)—Navy displayed two smooth-stroking crews today in defense of its 1938 intercollegiate rowing championship, defeating Princeton varsity and junior varsity.

The varsity won by three-quarters of a length from a stubborn Princeton boatload that never let open water show between the shells throughout the mile and three-quarter contest.

The Navy jayvees held a half length lead over Princeton.

THERE'S MORE TO CADDYING THAN CARRYING BAGS

Hill of Westmoreland Makes It an Art.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

"Listen, laddie. There are only two things needed to make golf enjoyable. You can forget the clubhouse and all the trimmings that go with it. Take a well groomed course and a good caddy and you'll have all you want."

Those words were uttered years ago by the late Stewart Gardner, long time professional at Exmoor and Old Elm, to one of the kids who used to tote clubs for him. The kid has never forgotten that advice, with emphasis on the caddy angle. Today he is caddy master of the Westmoreland Country club and president of the Chicago District Caddy Masters' association. His name is Wendell Hill.

It is because of Hill that Westmoreland today boasts of one of the best caddy regiments in the country. They proved it again last September when their club was the scene of the women's national championship tournament.

He Becomes Boss.

Nine years ago the lanky Wendell was concentrating his energies on boy training, particularly in Boy Scout work. A native of Highland Park, he had caddied summers at Exmoor and Old Elm when he wasn't doing his stuff on the basketball and track teams for Deerfield-Shields High school. He had no idea he would return to golf until there came a hurried request for a new caddy master at Westmoreland.

The situation at Westmoreland was not a pretty one when Hill landed. The boys were getting out of hand, but Hill made his move early and quickly. He fired forty-three of the radicals his first day on the job, and for some weeks thereafter debated signing up a bodyguard going to and from the club.

Today there is not even a symptom of revolution or dictatorship in the Westmoreland caddy house, which, incidentally, is one of the spickest in the district. Approximately 450 boys, most of them high school students from the vicinity, who average about 15 years of age, are registered in Hill's roster through a season. During July and August they average about 1,100 rounds a week.

Here's the Manual.

What are the attributes of a good caddy?

Hill's demands include attentiveness, cleanliness, and courtesy. It doesn't matter to him whether a boy's clothes are old, as long as they are clean. Attentiveness is the uppermost quality. This covers all of those duties printed on a card in which every player at Westmoreland is asked to report on his caddy. It includes watching the ball, keeping up with the player, where to stand, cleaning the ball, duties at the traps and greens, knowledge of and interest in the game.

Hill, in addition to being the caddy master, has other duties, including supervision of parking and of Westmoreland's handicap ratings, arranging foursomes and speeding up play. He is assisted by Ivar Bolund, Gordon Refoy, and Reinard Nanzig. The last named is one of the prize Chick Evans caddy scholars at Northwestern university, and is now attending medical school on the McKinlock campus, having completed three years of premedic work.

The caddy staff at Westmoreland reports every day at 7:30 a. m. All of the previous day's tickets are checked and the caddy house is inspected and tidied up, if necessary. A 9 o'clock, Hill himself starts conducting class. This may be held with caddy manuals on the benches in front of the caddy house, or Hill may take a group of caddies, either inexperienced or those whom he wishes to promote from one class to another, out to one of the tees. He will hit several shots, asking his pupils their estimates of the remaining yardage to the green. He will hit several second shots, based on these estimates, to prove or disprove the need of a 4 iron where a student might have guessed yardage calling for a 6 iron.

He Totes a Bag, Too.

In the afternoon, Hill roves over the course himself. If he sees a caddy lax in his duties, he himself takes the bag and carries it for a full hole, explaining to the boy his faults. Practically all of last summer's instructions were devoted to preparations for the women's national. At this time Hill stressed the importance of a caddy's duties around the greens—how they were trapped, what lay back of them, the break of the green from the pin, and the speed or slowness of the putting surface.

By the time the national rolled around, the big question was who was to caddy for the favorites. Hill settled this by putting the names of the American and British Curtis cup team players in a hat, and allowed the boys to draw. Seventeen year old Eddie Fritsch, who lives across the road from the club, drew Patty Berg, the ultimate winner. Hill was uncertain whether Fritsch, because of his age, would make the grade with Patty, who confers constantly with her caddy, but Eddie passed with a perfect report card. The champion herself thought he was the best she ever had.

While waiting for assignments, Westmoreland caddies have plenty of diversion. There is a ping pong table, a radio, and Manager Tom Ream of the club subscribes to a number of boys' magazines during the season.

Others Use System.

Among Hill's colleagues in the district, most of whom follow the same pattern he does, are Jack Hansen of Medinah, Willard Hand of Glen View, Andy Anderson of Skokie, Roy Huntsman of North Shore, Fred Reger of Exmoor, Bob Keene of Flossmoor, Pete Thomas of Riverside, Pete Wilcox of Chicago Golf, Bill MacMorran of Indian Hill, Bob Bennett of Butterfield, and Fritz Hall of Ridge.

A CADDYMASTER HOLDS CLASS—RESULT: PERFECT CADDIES

Wendell Hill, who came up out of the ranks, takes a call for a caddy at Westmoreland Country club, where he is caddymaster.

Hill holds class for his caddies in front of the caddy house. Caddies no longer show up at a club, grab a member's bag and walk 18 holes to earn a bob. Present day caddies are subjected to supervised courses of instruction, take examinations and otherwise undergo training calculated to increase their efficiency.

Gills Take Bowling Title as Randolph Race Closes

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

One by one the bowling leagues are calling it a season. The Randolph league, one of the city's major organizations, held its finale on Thursday with the Joseph L. Gills being crowned champions.

The Gills, with a lineup that included Joe Puccinelli, Lloyd Strouse, Ray Leick, Bill Hargadon and Herb Freitag, protected their three game lead over the second place Budweisers by finishing with three victories. Their standing was 65 victories and 25 defeats. The Mineralites came in third with 57 won and 33 lost, five games behind the Budweisers.

Eli Maricich of the Nonebetter Ice Cream team won the individual title with an average of 211, beating out Paul Krumske, who also had 211, by only a few pins. George Theel was third with 210.

For most of the season the Budweisers were regarded as the team that would win. However, they cooled off a bit, just as they did in the Windy City Major league, which will end tomorrow night on the Windy City Recreation alleys.

The Budweisers will go into the final phase of the Cicero race one game behind the leading Whitecaps, who have 58 victories and 29 defeats. Both title aspirants have tough opposition, the Budweisers meeting the Burlington Zephyrs and the Whitecaps opposing Quality Wet Wash.

Krumske and Al Kowalski are fighting it out for the individual crown with 208 averages.

North End Traveling League.

The perfect game rolled last Monday by Leo Krisch, of the Birks in the North End Traveling league, was his fifth in twelve years. In 1935, Krisch rolled three perfect games, one in the North End, one in the Randolph and one in open play. Although being forced to miss the first two months of this season due to an operation, Leo gradually regained his strength and during the course of his training period, rolled another 300 game in open play on the Willow alleys. The Birk brothers, who are battling to retain their league title, took advantage of Krisch's 736 series and hammered out 3,378 to take three games from the Pepsi-Colas while the leading Fox De Luxes were losing one game to the Keeleys. The champions are now only three games behind their rivals, whom they meet on the Willow alleys tomorrow.

On South Side Alleys.

De Young Fuel drew out to a three game lead in the Stevenson Major league by sweeping its series with the Underhill Plumbers while De Young Insurance was suffering three setbacks at the hands of an inspired Gerwig-Nelson team which rolled 1,078, 1,037, and 1,033. This left the Edens only one game in front of the third place Budweisers, who dropped one of their three games with Krause Hardware. . . . Hank Kluge knocked off a 729 series to lead the Bruck Major league in a session marked by the Bleeker Brothers' 3,408 series. This included games of 1,181, 1,136, and 1,091. Trailing Kluge were: Len Straub, 682; Bill Harper, 676; Bob Hayes, 667; Marion Kruzich, 666; Herb Swanson, 662; Ad Plunge, 659; Tom Crowe, 657; George Strachan, 655, and Charles Wenzel, 653.

Classic League.

The Classic league will bowl a double-header tonight. The first series will be held in Marzano's Clearing Recreation, 5525 West 63d street, at 7 o'clock. Pairings are: Prager vs. Schlitz; Pabst vs. Baby Ruth; Power House vs. Thompson; Ambrosia vs. Monarch.

The second set of games will be held in the Milo Wiesner Recreation at 9:30. Pairings are: Monarch vs. Power House; Baby Ruth vs. Prager; Pabst vs. Schlitz; Ambrosia vs. Thompson.

STANDINGS.

	W.	L.	Av.		W.	L.	Av.
Monarch	.58	32	996	Thompson	.43	47	978
Schlitz	...57	33	993	Baby Ruth	.40	50	971
Pabst	...53	37	997	Ambrosia	.35	55	955
Pow'r H'se	.45	45	980	Prager	29	61	960

INDIVIDUAL AVERAGES.

Adolph Carlson, 206; Bill Flesch and Ed Zajac, 202; Bill Smith, Dick Winsberg, and Bill Lenzen, 201; Herb Freitag, Eli Maricich, Jack Bishop, Pete Petersen, and Les Fuller, 200.

North Side Alleys.

With one more week to go the Gold Coast Major league standing shows the Joseph L. Gills with 65 victories and 31 defeats; the Budweisers with 61-35; Triangle Shirts, 59-37; Neumann Tailors, 55-41, and the Jolly Jacks, 48-48. Joe Sinke rolled 723 for the Gills. Herb Freitag of the Williams Jewelers blasted out 653 and his average now is 218.85 for 87 games. . . . The Wallace Coals need only two more victories to clinch the Samuelson Major league title. With two more sessions remaining they lead the second place Samuelson Kids by five games. Ray Berg's 666 topped the last session. . . . Bennett's Arcade still is clinging to first place in the Greater Chicago Traveling league. Matt Matz of Idle Hour Recreation led the individuals with 650.

About the Women.

Nina Van Camp rolled a 600 series to beat out Ellen Johnson by one pin for high series in the Stevenson Major league. Ellen Johnson's 258 was high game. Other leaders: Lola Banash, 599; Vera Larson, 537; Matt Donne, 515; Harriett Miller, 512; Flo Waterman, 512; Ann Anderson, 506; Kate Biehler, 502, and Lillian Arthur, 501.

Here and There.

Transmission No. 5 won the Electro-Motive league championship with 59 victories and 22 defeats. . . . The Schlitz team of the Classic league tops the five man standing of the Windy City tournament with 3,132, one hundred two pins more than the Pabsts have. Other leaders:

Regular division — Doubles, A. Logan-C. Fischer, 1,289; singles, J. Rusnak, 680; all-events, J. Bishop, 1,940.

Boosters—Five man, Pabsts of Elgin, 2,939; doubles, W. Mague-S. Smith, 1,234; singles, J. Keefe, 654; all-events, E. Maxa, 1,810.

The National Italian-American tournament, now in progress on the Sportsman Recreation alleys, have these leaders: Jim's Town Tavern, 2,962; H. Lips-A. Schmartje, 1,228; J. Behrend and J. Crowley, 670 each.

CHICAGO PAIR BOWLS INTO 4TH IN WOMEN'S MEET

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 22.—[U. P.]—Marie Wermich and Sally Twyford of Chicago tonight moved into fourth place in the doubles of the women's international bowling congress tournament with a total of 1,113.

Miss Twyford totaled 607 in the doubles. Her 554 in the singles missed the first ten by eleven pins. High singles score thus far is 616, by Billy Simon, San Antonio, Tex.

Wabash Finally Proves It Can Beat Butler, 4 to 2

Crawfordsville, Ind., April 22.—[Special.]—Wabash college's baseball team defeated Butler, 4 to 2, today. Walter Davis held Butler to three hits while Wabash was getting eleven off the pitching of Braden and Swager. Wabash had lost this season to Illinois and Indiana and to Butler twice before this afternoon's victory.

SIX TEAMS SEEK STATE FENCING CROWN TODAY

The Illinois state team fencing tournament will be held this afternoon in the Lake Shore Athletic club. At least six teams will compete for the Eddy cup, Dr. Henry Zettelman, president of the Illinois division of the Amateur Fencers' League of America, said yesterday.

The Illinois state title will be awarded for the best three man team performance in three weapons—foil, epee, and saber. Entries have been made by the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, Hermanson Fencing academy, Northwest Fencing club, Wright Junior college, Edgewater Fencing club, and Lake Shore Athletic club.

Chicago Man Bowls Second in All-Events

Cleveland, O., April 22.—[Special.]—Stanley Rudcki, captain of the Power House team of Chicago, today shot 692 in the singles of the American Bowling Congress tournament and took second place in the all-events with a total of 2,002. He scored 669 in the five man event last night and 641 in the doubles today. Joe Wilman of Chicago leads the all-events with 2,028.

Rudcki opened his singles with a 266 game, slipped to 192 and then hammered out 234.

Clarence Garant, a teammate of Rudcki, opened with 268 and seemed headed for the singles leadership when he added 235. He started the last game with a spare and hung up three straight strikes, but after spares in the fifth and sixth frames he ran into the 6-7-10 split. His first ball in the eighth was high, and left the easy 3-6 spare. Garant picked off the 6 pin for a disastrous miss. He struck in the ninth, but in the tenth his first ball was too full and left another 6-7-10 railroad to cut him down to 181 and a 684 series.

Ambrosia Nectars of Chicago rolled 2,968, best total among the sixty-four teams scheduled in the five man competition. The South Side Traveling league team had games of 918, 1,052, and 998.

Mike Testa, Detroit brewery worker, shot into second place in the singles tonight with 266, 222, and 223 for 711. He finished three pins behind the leader, Carl Nagle of Gowanda, N. Y.

BOZEMAN WINS BILLIARD MATCH FROM CHAMACO

Jay Bozeman of Chicago yesterday maintained the same fine form that he has exhibited all week to deal Joe Chamaco of New York a decisive beating in their 600 point three cushion billiards match in the Bensinger Recreation.

Trailing, 440 to 500, as play started yesterday, Chamaco recovered 13 points in the afternoon, getting 63 points while Bozeman was running his total to 550. But last night Bozeman took command again, 50 to 23, to make the final score 600 to 526.

Bozeman collected $1,000 for his victory.

NALON, MACQUINN CHIEF RIVALS IN RACES TONIGHT

Duke Nalon, winner of three straight main events, and Harry MacQuinn, who won five consecutive features in mid-season, will put on a personal duel tonight during the midget auto races in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, where fifty drivers will face the starter. The time trials start at 7 o'clock with the first race at 8:30.

Tudy and Carl Marchese of Milwaukee, builders and owners of MacQuinn's No. 4, have been working on the car all week and announce it is in top shape.

Jimmy Snyder, Art Hartsfield, Ray Richards, Ted Duncan, Tony Willman, and Pete Nielson will be on hand also to enliven the competition. Any of these six chauffeurs and Cowboy O'Rourke, too, pilot machines fast enough to win the main event with a fair share of racing luck.

All the drivers will concentrate on the time trials, as the fastest one lap trial run gives that driver pole position in the main event. Four elimination races, in which the drivers line up inversely to the speed of their time runs, will qualify them for the 40 lap main grind.

Rates British Poloists Best to Play in U. S.

New York, April 22.—[Special.]—Charles Wrightsman, the Texas oil man and polo player who played in a number of games with the British international polo team on the Pacific coast, said today that the United States should win the June series with England, but it will be much closer than most people expect.

Wrightsman has had a close view of the British team. He says: "This is the best English outfit to come to America since the world war. Everybody is going to be surprised at the playing of young Bob Skene, No. 1. I think he comes close to being the most valuable player on the team.

Need Hitchcock and Smith.

"If either Tommy Hitchcock or Cecil Smith is lost to the American squad, we are going to have a tough time winning."

According to Wrightsman this is one of the best mounted outfits to invade the United States.

"It is probable there is no string of polo ponies in the world capable of matching that which the British team will ride," Wrightsman said. "Their top horse is an animal for which the maharajah of Masmir paid $7,000 in Argentina. Last year this pony was adjudged the best in South America.

Wrightsman Loans Ponies.

Wrightsman will have a big share in an American victory, if it occurs. He will furnish the mount for Cecil Smith, considered along with Tommy Hitchcock a certainty for the team. Smith requires a large and game thoroughbred. Wrightsman has just what he is seeking.

Wrightsman doesn't see how the Americans can win unless they use all of their ten goal players. He believes the best possible lineup would include Mike Phipps, Cecil Smith, Tommy Hitchcock and Stewart Iglehart.

AMATEURS MEET IN FINAL TODAY FOR KELLY CUP

Manhattans Play Nickeloid Team in Warmup.

The Mayor Kelly soccer cup is the prize today as the Scandinavians All-Stars and the German All-Stars clash in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, for the third consecutive year.

The Scandinavians are defending champions, having taken the trophy for the last two seasons. Last year the teams played a 5 to 5 tie on a muddy field. The Scandinavians won the replay, 2 to 1, after two overtime periods.

Leading Clubs Represented.

Leading German clubs in the city are represented in the lineup of the German All-Stars. Players were picked from the Schwaben A. C., German-American A. C., Chicago Kickers and Hansa F. C. Some of the outstanding performers are Vic Absil, forward, Schwaben A. C.; Paul Baer, goal, German-Americans; Tony Geier, forward, Chicago Kickers; Henry Ohrenberger, forward, German-Americans, and Willie Preiss, half back, German-Americans.

The Scandinavians come from the Linneas, Swedish-American, Vikings, and Norwegian-American teams. Some of the group's best known exponents are Jock Johannson, goal, Vikings; Thure Hallquist, forward, Linnea; Nils Quist, half back, Vikings; George Paulsen, half back, Norwegians, and Sexton Mattson, forward, Norwegians.

Lindells Meet International Stars.

The Mayor Kelly match will open a double-header and is scheduled to start at 1 o'clock. Following this game the Lindell F. C., amateur champion team of St. Louis, faces an all-star group from the International league, with the kickoff set for 3 o'clock.

A third game sends the Manhattans, finalists for the national cup, against the American Nickeloids of Dalzell, Ill., in Kuppenheimer stadium, 18th street and Keeler avenue. The Manhattans expect to find strong opposition in the Nickeloids as a warm-up for the opening of the national finals with St. Mary's of Brooklyn a week from today in Sparta stadium.

WOMEN SWIM FOR 2 NATIONAL TITLES TODAY

Indianapolis, Ind., April 22.—(AP)—Women's national senior championships in the 440 yard free style and 220 yard breast stroke will be decided in an Amateur Athletic union swimming meet in the Indianapolis Athletic club tomorrow.

Nineteen swimmers are entered in the free style event. Seven will compete for the breast stroke title.

Fourteen year old Helene Rains of New York, defending champion in the 440 yard free style, and Mrs. Katherine Rawls Thompson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 220 yard breast stroke titleholder, will take part in both events.

Anne Monihan, 15, of Philadelphia, holder of the outdoor national junior 440 yard free style championship, will make her first start in senior competition in the 440 yard event. Twelve year old Patty Aspinall of Indianapolis, is entered in the breast stroke. Other entrants include:

440 YARD FREE STYLE—Doris Krause of Milwaukee; Halina Tomska of Detroit; Marilyn Nicholson and Frankie Rose of Chicago, and Lois Wenzel of Wilmette, Ill.

220 YARD BREAST STROKE—Doris Krause of Milwaukee, and June Fogle of Indianapolis.

HARVARD CREW BEATS RUTGERS BY SIX LENGTHS

Cambridge, Mass., April 22.—(AP)—Harvard's powerful rowing fleet opened its season today by making a clean sweep of the four Henley distance races that comprised the Rowe Memorial regatta program on the Charles river.

The Crimson varsity eight, undefeated last season, when it won the eastern intercollegiate sprint title, swept down the mile and five-sixteenths in 6 minutes 42 seconds to finish six and a half lengths ahead of the Rutgers eight, which overtook M. I. T. at the three-quarter mark to place second by two and a half lengths.

The Engineers were third, a deck ahead of the Boston university crew.

The Harvard junior-varsity covered the course in 6:43, the freshmen and 150 pound eights in 6:40 3-5 and 6:52 2-5 respectively.

BLAZINE SIGNS 4TH CONTRACT WITH CARDINALS

Tony Blazine, Chicago Cardinals' tackle, has signed his 1939 contract, Owner Charles W. Bidwell announced yesterday.

Blazine will be starting his fourth season as a Cardinal. He came up from Illinois Wesleyan in 1936 and is rated one of the leading tackles in the National Football league. He played in the Tribune's 1936 All-Star game against the Detroit Lions.

Perry-Budge Tour Finally Makes Some News—in Golf

Rockford, Ill., April 22.—(AP)—Fred Perry, possibly buoyed up by two consecutive victories over Don Budge, shot a hole-in-one today on the 130 yard fifth hole at Rockford Country club. The former British Davis cup star stopped here for the round of golf en route to Neenah, Wis., where he and Budge resume their professional tennis series tomorrow night. Perry has won eight of the twenty-seven matches thus far.

LET TWO MILLION IN 'EDUCATIONAL' WAR CONTRACTS

Rilfes, Searchlights, and Gas Masks Included.

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[U. P.]—President Roosevelt has approved initial orders totaling $2,000,000 for war materials under the "educational orders" program. ["Educational orders" are intended to cause industrial plants to set up facilities that could produce in great volume in event of war.]

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson announced approval of contracts to six companies for "educational orders" of gas masks, semi-automatic rifles, anti-aircraft searchlights, recoil mechanism for anti-aircraft guns, machines for manufacturing 75 MM. shells, and 75 MM. shell forgings.

Merely a Beginning.

Johnson said the orders were merely a beginning on a program which may possibly involve orders for 60 to 70 items vitally necessary to the American army in war time, but not produced in peace time. He said these items covered the fields of gas defense, communications, fire control equipment, military airplanes and accessories, small arms, artillery, ammunition, and combat vehicles.

The announcement closely followed disclosure that the army is quietly planning to reinforce its military intelligence division, which reports developments abroad and safeguards defense secrets at home.

Distribution of Orders.

The orders already approved were as follows: Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, gas masks; Winchester Repeating Arms company, semi-automatic rifles; General Electric company, anti-aircraft artillery search lights; R. Hoe & Co., anti-aircraft gun recoil mechanism; S. A. Woods Machine company, machining for 75 MM. shells; American Forge company, 75 MM. shell forgings.

OIL SHOWINGS IN TWO WILDCAT TESTS WATCHED

Centralia, Ill., April 22.—(AP)—Two wildcat tests for oil held the major interest in drilling activities in the Illinois basin this week-end after rain had curbed development.

One was Arthur [Tex] Harvey's No. 1 Salem Building and Loan in Marion county, which was reliably reported to have pumped 200 barrels of oil and twenty-five barrels of salt-water in an initial production test Friday. The well is several miles north of the Lake Centralia-Salem field and is believed to be on the west edge of a small structure.

The other wildcat was Coates and Associates' No. 2 Green, in Gold Hill township, Gallatin county. Plugs were drilled to about 25 feet of Waltersburg sand saturation, topped at 1,767 feet, and 600 feet of oil had risen in the well. The test is about 30 miles from nearest production.

Investors' Guide

Sunday, April 23, 1939.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TAX EXEMPTS AND INVESTORS.

"What would the proposed removal of tax exemption on state, local, and federal government bond issues mean to me?"

This question has been put to the Investors' Guide frequently of late by the holders and prospective buyers of government bonds.

The proposal was made by the President last year and is before congress now. It provides that the federal government shall tax the interest received by investors on state and local bonds just as it now taxes interest on corporate bonds. In return, state and local agencies would "reciprocate" and tax interest on federal government bonds. Up to now the federal and local governments have exempted each other's bonds from taxes.

For example, if you now hold a bond of your city or state you do not include the interest on this bond as part of your net income in figuring your federal income tax. Of if you live in a state that levies an income tax you do not include interest on your federal bond in the income.

The proposition to lift the exemption is a move to bring additional tax revenues into government treasuries. More than $50,000,000 of bonds of various governments in this country are now held by private investors. Of this amount, $35,000,000 are federal issues and $15,000,000 state or local obligations.

Proponents of the tax proposal grant that the plan will not merely hike revenues for the governments. Removal of tax exemption will also make bonds less attractive to investors, so the governments will have to pay higher rates of interest than before to borrow money.

Whether the governments will lose in higher interest costs what they gain in additional tax revenues is an undetermined question.

Passing over this point and also the issue of whether the proposal is good or bad on the whole, what would it mean to investors?

The small investors, that is those with small incomes, would get a larger return on government bonds without losing present security if exemptions were lifted. Estimates vary, but the controler of New York state estimates that state and local governments would pay 25 per cent higher interest rates. The man with a small income could well afford to pay the 4 per cent federal normal income tax for a 25 per cent higher return.

Large individual investors, on the other hand, would suffer. Those whose surtax net incomes run from $38,000 to $1,000,000 would have to pay federal income tax rates of 2? to 77 per cent, including surtax. Thus, they would pay more in taxes than they would gain in additional interest.

Inflation Peril Faces Germany, U. S. Expert Advises Hopkins

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—Grosvenor Jones, chief financial expert of the commerce department, said today that inflation perils appeared to be in the domestic path of Nazi Germany.

Grosvenor Jones.

Jones pointed out dangers which he said existed in Germany's policy in an analysis he prepared for Secretary Hopkins of the March 20 decision of the reich government to pay part of its bills with tax anticipation certificates.

He concluded that success of the plan depended on reduction of governmental expenditures and the voluntary holding, past maturity, of the noninterest-bearing tax certificates by business men. Each of these possibilities he labeled as doubtful.

Plan to Pay Only 60% Cash.

Under Germany's financial decree of March 20, Jones explained, all "extraordinary" expenditures of the reich and its subdivisions will be paid with 60 per cent cash, 20 per cent in noninterest bearing certificates usable for paying taxes seven months after their issue, and 20 per cent in another type of tax anticipation certificate redeemable at 112 per cent of face value 37 months after issue.

The Jones memorandum added fuel to the long standing controversy of economists over the inflationary aspects of Nazi financing. Some experts believe Germany can escape inflation indefinitely.

Reich Capital Market Weak.

Jones cited as evidence of "strain on the German economy" the increase in currency circulation, the weakness of the capital market, and the tax anticipation plan.

The German government's restrictions on trade and foreign exchange led to the recent ruling by Attorney General Murphy that the United States treasury should impose a 25 per cent extra tarif on imports from the reich. The restrictions, Murphy ruled, amount to a subsidy to stimulate German exports.

Tarif Boost Effective Today.

The United States tarif law of 1930 decrees that "countervailing" duties shall be imposed to offset foreign export subsidies.

The extra 25 per cent levy on German goods becomes effective tomorrow. Treasury officials said that since Secretary Morgenthau announced the duty increase there had been a rush to bring in German goods. United States-German trade has been declining for several years, but last year this country bought goods worth $64,537,000 from Germany and sold $107,588,000 worth to her.

FUTURE PRICES OF COMMODITIES VARY FOR WEEK

Tin, Wool Tops Advance; Copper Declines.

World commodities followed an irregular price course in trading on the futures markets last week. Tin was outstanding in the small group closing higher, advancing as much as 1.30 cents a pound. Wool tops made gains ranging to 0.60 cent, but hides lost about the same amount.

Domestic copper dropped ¾ cent a pound during the week. Custom smelters lead a series of price reductions that set their quotation at 10 cents. Producers quoted 10¼ cents. The reduction did not stimulate any appreciable increase in buying, according to trade information, which indicated that purchases were confined to immediate requirements.

Copper Futures Decline.

Copper futures declined by an amount equal to the reduction in the spot price, but lead for future delivery advanced as much as 0.20 cent. The American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported that shipments of lead by United States refineries increased last month were 40,871 tons, compared with 34,421 in February and 31,052 in March, 1938. Production amounted to 40,799 tons, compared with 39,336 in February and 36,436 in March, 1938.

Cocoa futures were down about ¼ cent and coffee contracts lost smaller amounts. Small advances were registered in cottonseed oil, rubber, and sugar futures.

FARMS REFUSING LOANS ON CORN PROFIT BY HOGS

Plans of Sealers to Buy Grain Cheap Go Awry.

A gradual swing of live stock production is in progress from farms where corn has been sealed on government loans to farms owned by feeders who refused to seal the crop, according to live stock producers in many sections of the corn belt. This trend is most evident in swine which exist chiefly on corn.

Switching of production is attributed partly to the fact that plans of farmers who sealed their corn have gone awry in some sections where live stock feeding is on a large scale and demand for corn is broad. The original plan of sealers was to get a loan of 57 cents from the government and buy corn from farmers not in the program at considerably less money to carry on normal feeding operations.

Scheme Proves Boomerang.

This setup proved a success for the sealers at the start, and a large quantity of corn went to them at 30 to 35 cents a bushel, but that was when hogs were not so plentiful and there was more corn even in large producing areas than was needed.

However, with the spring pigs coming on in large numbers, farmers with their corn sealed on loans are finding it more difficult to get others in their community to sell them what they need for their increased numbers of pigs. This has resulted in many selling their pigs and light hogs to farmers with sufficient corn on hand rather than go out of the neighborhood for grain.

Hog Raising Profitable.

Raising of hogs has been profitable for many months. At current prices they return from 60 to 70 cents a bushel for the corn they consume, according to farmers, which is more than the AAA coöperator gets from the government.

Consequently, farmers with almost their entire crop in cribs not under seal are becoming more reluctant to let corn get off the farm except "on the hoof." AAA coöperators have plenty of corn, but much of it has a 57 cent loan against it. To release it the farmer must repay the government loan.

Many farmers who feed all the grain they produce said last week that as long as top grades of hogs do not sell below $7.00 they can profitably raise them.

Top Hog Price $7.15.

The top late in the week sank to $7.15, a new low for almost five years, or since July 25, 1934. The week's average at $6.95, also lowest since 1934, showed a decline of 15 cents from the preceding week, and compared with $8.40 a year ago and $10.05 two years ago. Yesterday's quotations for the various classes ranged from steady to 20 cents lower than a week earlier.

WHAT conveniences do you want in your next apartment? Regardless of what you consider to be most important—layout, room size, location, service, equipment or anything else—you are far more likely to find the apartment you want at the rent you want to pay, by consulting the rental want ads in the Tribune.

When you consult Tribune rental want ads, you choose from Chicago's largest selection of apartment values. The Tribune prints more apartments-to-rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined.

You will save time and energy and have far greater assurance of renting the apartment which will please you most if you make your selection from the offers in the Tribune want ads. Consult the rental want ads in today's Tribune.

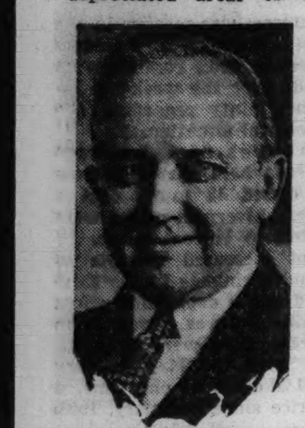
Apartment Hunting Made Easier!

Tribune rental want ads are listed (1) by location in city or suburb and (2) by number of rooms. Thus, if you want an apartment on the west side, and you need a minimum of four rooms, simply turn to the want ad columns headed "To Rent—Apartments—West," and to the subheading, "Four, Five, Six Rooms and Larger."

If your name is in the telephone book you may charge your Tribune want ads. Call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. Or ask to have a Tribune representative call on you.

HEAVIEST TAX DELINQUENCIES IN SLUM AREAS

Study Made to Shape New Legislation.



Dr. Charles M. Kneier.

Tax delinquencies are greatest in depreciated areas of Chicago, Dr. Charles M. Kneier, research director for the Illinois legislative council, said yesterday. The legislative council, a fact finding nonpolitical agency, made an extensive study of tax delinquencies in various parts of the state and published a report for the guidance of legislators in shaping possible new legislation to correct the delinquent tax problem.

Accumulated unpaid taxes in selected areas ranged to as high as 484 per cent of the 1937 tax bill in one depreciated district, the study showed. In other words, property owners of this district still owed nearly five times the amount of their 1937 tax bill. The smallest accumulation of any of the areas was 24.4 per cent, shown for one commercial district.

Delinquencies by Districts.

The accumulations by various districts were shown in the following table published in the council's report [the first column of figures indicating the total amount of delinquent taxes owed, and the second column the delinquencies shown as a percentage of the area's 1937 tax bill]:

Industrial	$ 51,102	81.3
White blighted No. 1	11,408	315.0
White blighted No. 2	6,538	149.0
Negro blighted No. 1	50,817	484.0
Negro blighted No. 2	14,405	369.0

Boundaries of the areas were not shown in the report. The problem of tax delinquency in the slum areas is one factor cited in support of the public service building corporation bill now pending in the state legislature. One of the purposes of the proposed legislation is to put depreciated property in the city back on a tax paying basis.

Bill Permits Condemnation.

The measure, if enacted would authorize acquisition of land by publicly supervised building corporations through condemnation. Sponsors of the measure assert it would become a powerful instrument leading to rehabilitation in the present depreciated areas.

Although the percentage of collections was small in the slum areas and large in the better residential areas, several cities exceeded Chicago in the ratio of delinquencies to total taxes levied since 1934. The ratio of uncollected taxes was largest in San Francisco, with Chicago ranking ninth on the list of leading cities studied.

WEIGH PAYMENT TO CREDITORS OF INSULL UTILITY

A proposal to make an additional payment of 3½ per cent to creditors of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was taken under advisement yesterday by Garfield Charles, special master.

Creditors met in the courtroom of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to consider the third report of the trustee, Harry A. Bigelow. Bigelow said funds on hand for payment of administrative expenses and for distribution to creditors totaled $1,937,500. Claims filed, including interest, total $49,215,320. Other claims amounting to $3,283,000 may be granted, raising the total to $52,498,320.

Charles will make a report to Judge Wilkerson tomorrow on the proposed 3½ per cent payment. A liquidating payment of 4 per cent already has been made to debenture holders by the equity estate.

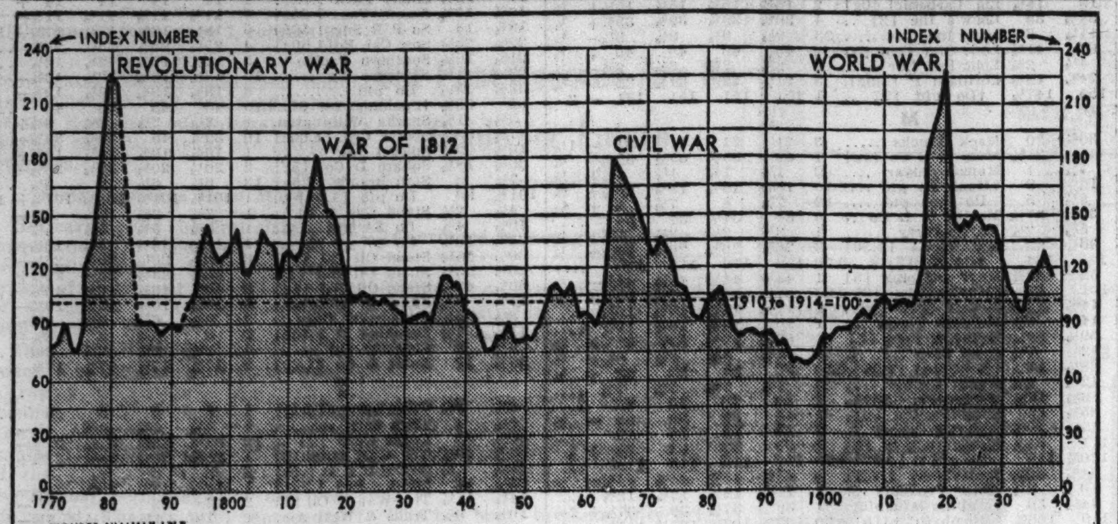
Iowa Company Is Cited for Wage-Hour Violation

The federal Wage-Hour administration yesterday filed suit against the Hawkeye Pearl Button company, Muscatine, Ia., charging violation of the fair labor standards act. The company and twenty-three individuals were named in the complaint, which asked an injunction to halt the alleged illegal practices. The company was accused of failing to pay the required minimum of 25 cents an hour and failing to keep adequate records of hours worked.

Egg Futures Advance When Demand Increases

Egg futures prices advanced ⅛ cent a dozen in active trade on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. A strong week-end cash demand, reports that production is declining, and smaller terminal market receipts induced buying. October refrigerator eggs closed at 19 cents a dozen and April storage eggs at 17¾ cents a dozen. November butter futures gained ⅛ cent to 22⅞ cents a pound despite a weaker cash market.

Price Index of Commodities at Wholesale



Trend of commodity prices from 1770 to date. The average prices of 1910 to 1914 are taken arbitrarily as 100. The periods of major hostilities were: Revolution, April 19, 1775, to Sept. 5, 1783; War of 1812, June 18, 1812, to Jan. 8, 1815; Mexican war, May 13, 1846, to May 24, 1848; civil war, April 12, 1861, to April 9, 1865; Spanish war, April 22, 1898, to Dec. 10, 1898; world war, April 6, 1917, to Nov. 11, 1918.

Commodities' Normal Prices Upset by War

How would the outbreak of a general European war affect commodity prices?

The continuing threat of war makes the question one of immediate concern. Should important price changes occur, their impact would be felt immediately in this country. America is the world's largest single producer of raw materials. As such its economy is sensitive to events abroad.

Farmers, manufacturers, processors, brokers, and housewives are concerned with the day to day changes in the goods which they buy or sell. Any decisive shift in prices would mean important readjustments.

Old Records Imperfect Guide.

Historical parallels frequently are misleading. There can be no certainty that what has happened before will recur again in like circumstances. Past experience cannot be depended upon to give the precise pattern of the future.

It is agreed, however, that a new war would make demands for goods similar to those produced by past wars. Essential foodstuffs and military materials would be in demand. The record, therefore, may be examined as a partial guide to the future.

Wars usually raise prices. They do not boost all prices. Those advances that occur may vary widely. Markets may be controled by governments, but in general prices mount. An index of wholesale prices over more than two centuries shows four great commodity price booms in America: at the time of the revolutionary war, the war of 1812, the civil war, and the world war.

Effect on Prices Is Speedy.

The most complete record of what happens to commodity prices during war time is provided by the world war. This war, while not entirely unexpected, did not have the advance buildup which the present threatened war in Europe is experiencing. To large sections of America, it came as a distinct shock. Its impact on commodity prices was immediate.

The initial demand for commodities in war time concentrates upon essential foodstuffs, such as wheat. There is no corresponding demand for nonessential foodstuffs, such as coffee. Nor is there a demand for clothing raw materials, which, while essential, may be temporarily postponed.

Shows Early Influence.

These divergent demands had an immediate influence on prices in 1914. The first declaration of war in that year came on July 28, and by Aug. 7 all of the major European countries were involved.

The following table of cash prices illustrates the initial influence of that war [wheat prices in dollars, rest in cents]:

	July 25, 1914.	Aug. 7, 1914.	Dec. 31, 1914.
Wheat [bu]	.85	.90	1.275
Lard [lb]	9.80	9.55	10.50
Cotton [lb]	13.25	....	7.80
[Middling Upland N. Y.]
Coffee [lb]	8.875	9.25	7.50
Sugar [lb]	3.26	4.26	4.01

The action of cotton during this period is the most interesting of all commodities. At first glance, it would appear that cotton prices would rise with wheat and other products. That was not the case at the war's outbreak. The European nations could put off, for a time, their consumption of cotton for clothing needs. Cotton went down.

Drops in First Year.

In the first year of the world war, the annual rate of consumption of American cotton on the European continent dropped from 4,600,000 bales to 1,400,000 bales. But as the war continued [to the confusion of those economists who predicted it would not last six months] the demand for cotton grew. That raw material joined a general upward climb of all commodities.

This steady advance of commodity prices was characteristic of the years 1915 and 1916—until shortly after the United States entered the war. It was a slow advance, not unduly spectacular, but it was persistent. When America became involved, there was an immediate wild upsurge in prices. And the government promptly stepped in to prevent the rise.

Trading in all wheat futures was halted in August, 1917. In September, 1917, a maximum price of $2.20

Internal Revenue—2.

Individual income tax returns and corporation returns are filed each year in the collectors' offices of the bureau of internal revenue. As it was pointed out last week, individual returns under $5,000 are audited in the collectors' offices.

Corporation returns and returns from incomes over $5,000, however, are sent to the bureau's headquarters in Washington. Here the returns are audited just as they are in the various collectors' offices. After the audit these returns are relayed to the internal revenue agents and estate tax examiners under the income tax unit. These agents decide which income tax returns to investigate in the hope of obtaining more revenue. About $250,000,000 additional was realized last year in this manner. At the same time about $24,000,000 was refunded to careless or uninformed taxpayers.

Cases involving fraud are handled by the intelligence unit.

Alcohol tax men make up the bureau's third large field force. They are on watch in every distillery and bonded warehouse to see that a government revenue stamp is placed on every barrel or bottle of liquor sent out. They also deal with the illegal manufacture and distribution of alcohol.

A miscellaneous tax unit also operated by the bureau supervises the collection of all other federal taxes besides income, alcohol, and social security.

ALPHA CELLULOSE PROSPECTS BOOM MINNESOTA LAND

Minneapolis, Minn., April 22.—[U. P.]—The Minneapolis Star, in a copyrighted story, said today that commercial production in Minnesota of Alpha cellulose, one of the major raw materials of the chemical industry, was nearing reality. It said commercial production would utilize 7,000,000 acres of aspen covered Minnesota woodland, hitherto practically valueless.

Alpha cellulose would be used by concerns manufacturing rayon, lacquers, cellophane, and other related products.

The development resulted from five years of research by University of Minnesota scientists, headed by Dr. Lloyd H. Reyerson and Dr. R. E. Montonna, in coöperation with the Northwest Research Foundation.

The foundation has named a committee to proceed with commercial promotion of the process for which final issuance of patents is expected soon.

PAPER COMPANY TO GET $9,000,000 LOAN FROM RFC

New York, April 22.—[Special.]—The Brown company, maker of pulp and paper, announced today that the Reconstruction Finance corporation had agreed to lend it $9,000,000. This would give it about $8,000,000 for working capital on emerging from 77-B reorganization after spending $2,000,000 on improvements to its Berlin, N. H., plant.

The loan is to be a prior lien on all important assets of the company other than current assets. It is predicted on the condition that both management and reorganization plan shall be acceptable to the RFC. The plan, under the bankruptcy act, must be approved by court, security holders and creditors.

The industry is one of the largest in New Hampshire, has been running since 1852 and has more than 30,000 persons dependent on it.

FSCC Asks Bids on Corn Meal for Relief Purposes

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation asked millers today to submit bids by May 6 on 100,000 barrels of cornmeal to be distributed among relief families. Successful bidders will be required to buy from government loan stocks one bushel of corn for every 44 pounds of meal they sell to the corporation. The purpose of the purchase program aside from the relief angle is to help move surplus grain into consumption. The corporation has bought 448,600 barrels of meal since last fall.

Void Oil Man's Million Dollar Suit Over SEC

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission today announced that Judge T. Alan Goldsborough of the District of Columbia federal District court had dismissed a complaint filed by J. Edward Jones, New York oil man, in his suit for $1,000,000 damages against members and former members of the commission.

J. Edward Jones.

The complaint had been filed in the damage suit against Commissioners Robert E. Healy and George C. Mathews and former Commissioners Joseph P. Kennedy and James M. Landis, the latter former chairman of the SEC. Jones had charged malicious conspiracy to injure him by instituting stop order proceedings against a registration statement he filed with the SEC.

Won Supreme Court Action.

The suit followed a Supreme court decision in April, 1936, in which the court held with Jones that the SEC had "no support in right principle or in law" to refuse him permission to withdraw his registration statement. Jones based action upon charges that the commission had prejudged his case in claiming the registration statement contained false and misleading information.

Jones was cleared later of a mail fraud indictment. Last year he published privately a book recounting his experiences with the SEC in which he charged persecution.

Counsel for the commissioners had demurred to the complaint and moved for a dismissal on the ground that it failed to state a cause of action. Judge Goldsborough sustained the commission's demurrer.

Judge a Roosevelt Appointee.

The court also denied a motion made by Jones to strike the demurrer on the ground that Commissioners Mathews and Healy, being sued in their individual capacities, had no right to be represented by government counsel. The court granted Jones twenty days in which to file an amended complaint.

Judge Goldsborough, former Democratic representative from Maryland, was appointed to the judgeship by President Roosevelt and took his seat on the federal bench April 5 after a farewell speech in the house of representatives, in which he asserted there was no such thing as a national debt.

TEXAS-PACIFIC MARCH INCOME BELOW YEAR AGO

The Texas and Pacific railway yesterday reported that it had net income of $43,580 in March, compared with profit of $86,498 in March, 1938. Net income for the first three months of 1939 rose to $112,981, in contrast with a net loss of $8,995 in the corresponding 1938 period.

The Hudson and Manhattan railroad had a net loss of $60,739 in March, against loss of $90,365 in the 1938 month. It also had $254,182 loss for the first 1939 quarter, compared with a loss of $326,228 in the first three months of last year.

BUSINESS LAGS; LACKS PROP OF STEEL INDUSTRY

Declines More Than Offset Advances.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business activity in America averaged lower last week than in the preceding week, with retarded steel production the principal influence counteracting gains in some other lines.

Helping to drag the average down were declines in cotton textile manufacturing, engineering construction awards and electric power production. The shrinkage in power output was less than seasonal, however.

Automobile assemblies expanded, reaching the highest level so far this year, but the gain was not as large as the season called for.

Trade Lacks Vigor.

Retail and wholesale trade lacked vigor, although it exceeded year ago totals, and bank loans to business failed to show a decisive trend, increasing slightly in Chicago but dropping in New York City. Bank clearings rose, along with railroad freight shipments, volume of new financing and construction of residential buildings and homes.

On the whole, business and the securities markets appeared to view the immediate European political situation as less threatening than in other recent weeks, but some corporation leaders told stockholders at annual meetings that industry's prospects are none too promising. Such views were expressed in the face of 1939 first quarter results which showed improvement over the first three months of 1938.

Steel Production Declines.

The rate of production at steel mills fell to 50.9 per cent of capacity, the lowest since the first week of 1939, from 52.1 per cent in the preceding week. A year earlier the rate was 32.4 per cent. The industry was said to be feeling the pinch of dwindling orders, especially from automobile makers. Steel production rates have declined for five weeks in succession.

The amount of electricity generated in the week ended April 15 was 0.1 per cent less than in the April 8 week, the kilowatt hour figures for the respective periods being 2,170,671,000 and 2,173,510,000. The latest week's output was 10.9 per cent in excess of the 1,957,573,000 kilowatt hours generated in the corresponding 1938 week.

Heavy Building Awards Lower.

The value of engineering construction contracts awarded dropped to $53,947,000 from $80,867,000 in the preceding week. The total for the corresponding 1938 week was $39,430,000.

The number of automobiles and trucks produced was 90,280, compared with 88,050 in the preceding week and 57,363 in the 1938 week.

Railroad freight car loadings in the week ended April 15 were 547,816, or 12,346 cars more than in the April 8 week and 10,231 more than in the corresponding 1938 week. Heavier coal shipments from mines unaffected by the Appalachian tieup offset the effects of the eastern shrinkage.

The volume of new financing was $58,662,981, compared with $51,142,309 in the preceding week and $74,604,500 in the 1938 week.

Bank Clearings Increase.

Bank clearings in twenty-two leading cities totaled $5,391,193,000, or 13.3 per cent more than in the preceding week and $864,761,000 more than in the week ended April 12, 1938.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity declined to 85.3 per cent of the 1929-'30 average, compared with 86.4 per cent for the preceding week and 69.4 per cent for the corresponding 1938 week. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Composite index	*85.3	86.4	69.4
Automobile prod	68.9	69.2	46.2
Steel mill act	*68.3	69.9	42.9
Cotton mfg.	109.4	111.1	85.6
Electric power use	112.8	112.5	103.0
Residential bldg	89.6	89.2	45.5
Total carloadings	59.7	58.7	58.6

*New 1939 low.

Earnings reports made public during the week for the first 1939 quarter in most cases continued to show improvement over the corresponding 1938 quarter. Small gains reported by the General Electric company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company were interpreted as indicating that conditions are improving in the heavy industries.

Many favorable reports on recent trends were made to corporation stockholders at their meetings, but in

ABE FORTAS, AGE 28, APPOINTED GENERAL COUNSEL FOR PWA

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes announced the appointment today of Abe Fortas, 28, as general counsel of the Public Works administration.

Abe Fortas.

Fortas, a protegé of Associate Justice William O. Douglas, succeeds Carl Farbach, who accepted the position of general counsel of the maritime commission.

The new PWA counsel formerly was a member of the Yale university faculty. He was brought to the legal staff of the Securities and Exchange commission by Douglas when he was chairman.

Fortas was born in Memphis, Tenn., and received his bachelor of arts degree from Southwestern university in his home town. In 1933 he was graduated with high honors from the Yale law school. He is a former editor in chief of the Yale Law Journal.

GOVERNOR ACTS TO ASSURE TVA'S DEAL FOR UTILITY

Nashville, Tenn., April 22.—[U. P.]—Gov. Prentice Cooper said tonight the state will "take immediate steps to insure the success" of the sale of Tennessee Electric Power company to the TVA and municipalities before the May 1 deadline.

Observers here regarded Cooper's statement as a thrust at the city of Nashville, whose power board has delayed decision on sharing in the TEPCO purchase.

"This transaction, in which the state's welfare is so intimately bound up, must not fail," Cooper said. "I am directing that a study be made to determine the immediate steps the state may take to insure the success of this sale."

One possible step the state may take to aid the TVA-Commonwealth and Southern negotiations, it was pointed out, is to determine if the utility district established by the 1935 legislature had legal authority to bring TVA power to Nashville regardless of action by the city government.

CHICAGO STEEL PRODUCTION TO DROP THIS WEEK

Chicago district steel operations will start tomorrow at 47.1 per cent of ingot capacity, a decline of 4.6 points from last Monday. The Dow-Jones service reported that production will increase or hold steady in other major steel sections. The scheduled rate for Chicago mills is 5.8 points below that of four weeks ago but is far ahead of 33.1 per cent a year ago.

Output in the Pittsburgh area is planned this week at 47 per cent, an increase of 3 points. The rise in production is not general, it was said, but represents a gain of 9 points by one leading producer.

Youngstown district operations were expected to remain unchanged at 43 per cent. Steel making in the Birmingham, Ala., area will remain at 60 per cent.

Paramount to Build New $12,000,000 Movie Studio

Paramount Pictures, Inc., is planning construction of a $12,000,000 studio with twenty-six sound stages on a 150 acre tract in southwest Los Angeles, Barney Balaban, president, announced yesterday. All of the firm's activities will center in the new studio, the whole to be known as Paramount City. No new financing is contemplated in this building program, it was said.

Mine Owners Deny Yielding on C. I. O. Shop

New York, April 22.—(AP)—Negotiators for the United Mine Workers of America [C. I. O.] and bituminous coal operators of the Appalachian area adjourned late today until Monday after a fruitless session marked by reports that Kentucky operators might accede to the union's closed shop demand.

A prominent operator with an unofficial interest in the progress of the negotiations said John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, ha dreceived word from Sam Cady of Lexington, Ky., a district union president, that a number of operators in the Big Sandy district were willing to sign new contracts embodying the disputed clause.

Reports May 1 Their Deadline.

Cady's message, the operator said, declared operators there had told the federal coal commission yesterday the present situation could not be permitted to extend beyond May 1.

R. L. Ireland Jr., president of the Ohio Coal association and a member of the contract committee of sixteen operators, denied the report, and said he had been informed by Harry Laviers, president of the Big Sandy Operators' association, that the only matter discussed before the commission was price fixing.

Ora Gasaway, a member of the U. M. W. board, later told reporters Cady's information was based on "a purely informal" poll of operators who appeared before the commission.

Bar Job Insurance Payments.

Officials of eight soft coal producing states ruled tentatively against payment of unemployment insurance benefits to miners who are or may become idle as a result of the deadlock in negotiations for a new labor contract.

The miners' old contract expired March 31 and the mines closed three weeks ago, leaving 338,000 miners idle. Negotiations here opened early in March with the closed shop clause ultimately becoming the major point of difference.

Back Up New York Parley.

Ashland, Ky., April 22.—(AP)—Harry Laviers of Paintsville, president of the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators' association, which includes practically all the coal mine operators in the Big Sandy valley, said tonight he had no knowledge of any operator in his district willing to sign a new contract with the United Mine Workers conceding the closed shop.

He said the members of his association are heartily in accord with the stand of the operators' negotiators in New York and that the operators of this district will not accept a closed shop contract under any condition.

BONDS UNEVEN; TRADERS AWAIT FOREIGN EVENTS

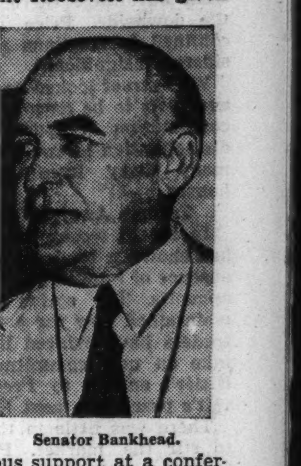
New York, April 22.—(AP)—The bond market closed unevenly today as traders held new commitments to a minimum pending more definite news from Europe.

A fair number of United States governments sold at slight advances. There was further bidding in the foreign dollar group, especially for central European issues which have been sensitive to good or bad political news from abroad. A few utilities registered fractional gains. Rails, industrials and the low yield classifications showed little change.

COTTON SUBSIDY PLAN APPROVED BY ROOSEVELT

2 Cents Per Pound on 'Free' Stock.

Washington, D. C., April 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has given approval to a cotton export proposal calling for the payment of a subsidy of 2 cents a pound on 7,000,000 bales of this year's crop, Senator Bankhead [D., Ala.] announced today. Bankhead said that the plan received almost unanimous support at a conference of members of congress comprising the southern cotton bloc.



Senator Bankhead.

The plan revises the administration's original cotton subsidy proposals. It was proposed earlier to subsidize the export of 11,000,000 bales of cotton held under government loans.

Loan Cotton Tied Up.

Under the program outlined by Bankhead, the secretary of agriculture would pay export subsidies during the twelve-month season that begins Aug. 1. None of the loan cotton could be used until after Jan. 1, 1940.

The compromise plan, Bankhead said, will be attached to the agricultural appropriation bill before the senate. He said that western and southern senators will seek an appropriation of 240 million dollars for the removal of commodity surpluses. Of this amount 60 million dollars will be made available for the cotton subsidy payments.

"The revised plan," he said, "will permit the free flow of this year's cotton crop in the normal channels of trade. I expect that the American price will be stabilized around nine cents a pound."

Senators at Conference.

Senators attending today's conference included Connally [D., Tex.], Caraway [D., Ark.], Overton [D., La.], Harrison [D., Miss.], McKellar [D., Tenn.], Hill [D., Ala.], Pepper [D., Fla.], Russell [D., Ga.], Byrnes [D., S. C.], Hatch [D., N. M.], Clark [D., Mo.], Bilbo [D., Miss.], and George [D., Ga.]. Only Bilbo and George of those attending voted against the proposal, it was said.

Bankhead said the theory of the plan is to apply the export subsidy first to "free cotton now on the market and the new crop." The subsidy would be paid on both raw cotton and manufactured cotton goods.

Most southern senators opposed the President's original export plan because they believed it would reduce prices and force a large part of the new crop under government loans.

"The plan reverses the previous method and should keep the new crop out of the loan stock," Bankhead said. "After it has moved into trade channels we can start reducing the loan stock."

MOTOR VEHICLE SALES INCREASE OVER YEAR AGO

New York, April 22.—(AP)—Motor vehicle retail sales in the United States in the first three months of this year totaled 748,935 units, compared with 536,668 in the comparable 1938 period, an increase of about 40 per cent, the Automobile Manufacturers' association reported today. March sales were 329,467, a gain of about 45 per cent.

"Retail sales of cars and trucks last month," the association said, "very nearly equaled sales by the factories to the domestic market."

Of the first quarter total sales of passenger cars at retail accounted for 622,785, against 435,021 in the 1938 quarter.

STOCKS UNEVEN; TRADE DULLEST IN TEN MONTHS

Hitler Reply to Roosevelt Peace Plea Awaited.

New York, April 22.—[Special.]—The stock market did little more than go through the motions today as trading dwindled to the lowest level in ten months. Turnover on the stock exchange was 154,960 shares, the smallest total since June 18 last year, which in turn was the lowest in twenty years.

At the close of the market minus and plus signs were about evenly distributed throughout the list with what advantage there was going to the downside. Price changes were confined to fractions and were considered insignificant.

Wall street looked as deserted as it ever gets to be on a business day. A combination of spring weather and disinclination to trade in stocks kept many away from the brokerage houses.

Traders Await Hitler Speech.

In recent weeks the stock market has shown a tendency to rise in the absence of important European developments. The status quo has been maintained now for a few days, but traders have evinced little desire to take on new commitments pending Hitler's answer to President Roosevelt's peace plea next Friday.

There was little in the day's news to stir the market. Price changes throughout the season were unusually narrow even in view of the small turnover. For example, the rail group had a range of only 9-100ths of a point.

The best illustration that traders have taken to the sidelines was provided at the opening, when trading started on 100 share lots. Prices were generally higher with small fractional gains. Some of the pivotal issues later eased from the opening.

Prices Irregular at Close.

Prices were firm and mixed at the close and at no time during the session did any of the leading shares move outside of a minor fractional range.

Reports that the steel operating rate would be advanced in the Pittsburgh area next week failed to help steel shares. United States Steel closed ⅝ point lower after starting with a loss of ¾ point. Bethlehem receded a like amount.

In addition to being one of the most stagnant markets in recent time it was likewise one of the most narrow. Only 435 issues were traded with 133 advancing, 169 declining, and 133 closing unchanged.

American Telephone was the only prominent stock in the list to show a gain of a point.

EDISON SHARES, RIGHTS RISE IN CHICAGO MARKET

Commonwealth Edison was the most active issue on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, advancing fractionally on a turnover of 2,900 shares. Thirty-one thousand Edison "rights" changed hands, with the closing price of 19 cents representing a gain of 2 cents over Friday's final level.

Great Lakes Dredge, Libby McNeill, Fuller Manufacturing and a few others crept ahead fractionally, but most of the issues closed lower. W. B. Jarvis, which improved nearly 4 points on Friday on news of a contemplated 100 per cent stock dividend, canceled 1 point of this gain yesterday.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average closed at 9.63, against 9.69 on Friday. Of fifty-four issues traded, seventeen advanced, twenty declined, and seventeen closed unchanged.

WHEAT FIRMER, BUT WAR SCARE LIMITS TRADING

Speculators Are Inclined to Curb Operations.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr.ago.
Wheat	$ .69⅜	$ .69¼	$ .83⅝
Corn	.49	.49¼	.59¼
Oats	.31	.30¾	.29⅝
Rye	.41⅞	.41½	.62¼
Soy beans	.88⅜	.88¼	.91¾

Outside interest was meager in the grain markets yesterday. Few traders dared to increase their commitments on either side over the week-end because of uncertainty regarding the European political situation.

Wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade held within narrow limits and closed ⅛ to ¼ cent a bushel higher. Liverpool prices were ½ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

Reports of increased receipts of cash corn and shrinkage in the shipping demand had a depressing effect on that grain. Futures closed ¼ to ⅜ cent lower. Oats were ⅛ to ¼ cent higher with the May delivery selling at 31⅛ cents at one time, a new high price since February, 1938.

Report Kansas Dust Storms.

Reports of dust storms in western Kansas and messages from Mrs. E. H. Miller, crop expert for Shields & Co., indicating an unfavorable outlook for the winter wheat crop in a large part of central Kansas had some effect on sentiment.

Export demand for cash wheat yesterday was less active, although the United Kingdom purchased 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat. China bought 250,000 bushels from Australia. The Shanghai office of the bureau of agricultural economics cabled that the demand for wheat and flour from China would probably continue active for several months. There were intimations that some domestic wheat had been sold for export from the Pacific coast, but amounts were not given.

Wheat Shipped to Buffalo.

The first vessel of the season was said to have cleared from Chicago yesterday with a cargo of wheat for Buffalo. Another steamer was loading oats and may leave for an eastern port today.

Pressure to sell Argentine corn is increasing. Yellow corn for May shipment was quoted yesterday at 62 cents a bushel, delivered at Liverpool, or 5½ cents a bushel less than was asked for American grain.

The Commodity Credit corporation has made loans to farmers on 254,000,000 bushels of corn so far this season. This includes 27,000,000 bushels resealed from the 1937 crop. Loans by the CCC during the preceding season was made on about 50,000,000 bushels.

CASH GRAIN

Official receipts of cash grain at Chicago Saturday: wheat, 19 cars; corn, 112 cars; oats, 13 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 14 cars; soy beans, 21 cars. Range of cash grain prices per bushel in leading markets:

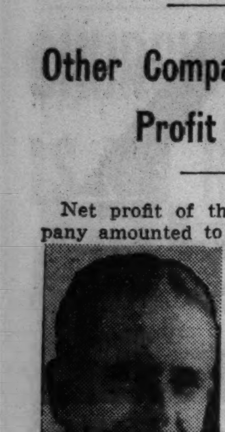
PEPSI-COLA CO. EARNS $12.39 PER SHARE IN '38

Other Companies Report Profit Gains.

Net profit of the Pepsi-Cola company amounted to $3,240,333 in 1938, equal to $12.39 a share, the first report ever made public by the company showed yesterday. Its assets included cash of $1,870,904 as of Dec. 31.



Charles G. Guth, who lost stock control.

Under a court order entered recently, control of the company, which produces a soft drink, was vested in Loft, Inc., a New York candy store chain. The court ruled that Loft, and not its former president, Charles G. Guth, was the legal owner of 91 per cent of Pepsi-Cola stock.

Pepsi-Cola earnings were figured at 74 cents a share on Loft stock, after deducting legal fees in connection with the long court litigation and taking into account the 1938 loss reported by Loft.

Others Report Gains.

Several other companies reported larger earnings, but a few showed decreases.

Central Illinois Public Service company, controled by the Middle West corporation, announced first quarter net income of $499,014, compared with $336,504 in the first three months of last year.

Cream of Wheat corporation, breakfast food company, reported first quarter net income of $309,997, equal to 52 cents a share, against $299,064, or 50 cents a share, in the opening quarter of 1938.

Mullins Manufacturing company, producing stamped metal parts for the automotive industry, announced net earnings of $94,840 for the March quarter, equivalent to 8 cents a share. Operations in the first three months of 1938 resulted in a net loss of $135,086.

First quarter net earnings of L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriters, Inc., declined to $117,664, from $118,957 in the 1938 period. Earnings on the common stock were 35 and 36 cents a share, respectively.

BUSINESS LAGS; LACKS PROP OF STEEL INDUSTRY

Declines More Than Offset Advances.

some cases officials expressed doubt as to what is ahead, criticized policies of the Roosevelt administration, and warned that high taxes are crippling business.

Sixty Concerns Earn More.

Net earnings of the first sixty large corporations to report on first quarter results rose to $83,901,000, an increase of 25 per cent over their profits of $67,322,000 in the corresponding 1938 period.

The national industrial conference board, a research organization, issued a report which gave emphasis to business leaders' warnings on taxes. The report showed that taxes in 1938 totaled $13,700,000,000, or 22 per cent of the national income, which was the largest percentage for any year on record. The tax total represented $105 per capita and $317 for every employed person.

Revenue Collections Fall.

The treasury announced that internal revenue collections in March, including the quarterly income tax payments, fell $225,544,621, compared with March, 1938. Income tax receipts dropped more than 210 million dollars, but there was an increase in revenue from manufacturers' excise taxes and other levies reflecting improved current business conditions.

Newly issued statistics showed that cigaret production in March set an all-time peak for that month, that department store sales in the month were 7.6 per cent larger than in the 1938 month, but that such sales in the week ended April 15 tumbled 20 per cent from the volume a year ago. The shoe industry announced March output was the second largest on record for that month and estimated that April production will exceed that of a year ago.

Other Developments of Week.

Among events and developments of the week were these:

The Bank of Belgium raised its discount rate to 4 per cent from 2½ per cent in an effort to stop the sending of gold out of the country. Large shipments of European gold to America continued, and it was learned that large New York banks have been quietly withdrawing commercial balances from London and other European centers as a precaution against difficulties that would arise in case of war.

The United States Supreme court held valid the agricultural adjustment act of 1938 which provides for compulsory marketing quotas for cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, and rice.

NORMAL PRICES OF COMMODITIES UPSET BY WAR

But Past Records Are No Guide for Future.

was placed on cash wheat in Chicago. Similar restraints were placed on other commodities.

Trading in sugar and cottonseed oil futures was halted. Round table conferences between the government, army, navy, and copper producing officials brought an official pegging of copper at approximately 23 cents a pound.

The big boom in commodity prices came not during the war but after it. With the war ended, governmental controls on prices were lifted. The return to normal was celebrated in wild speculation. Industries of a nonessential war character bought materials that had been rationed during the war period. They bid up prices, and the upward climb was a merry one while it lasted.

Some Astonishing Peaks.

Some of the prices attained in this period were staggering. Sugar, which had sold in the early part of the decade at 3 cents a pound, soared to 23.57 cents in May, 1920. Cash wheat rose to a peak of $3.40 a bushel in Chicago. Cocoa, cottonseed oil, hides, lard—nearly all commodities, in fact—moved along with the upturn. Only rubber and metals did not share in the rise.

Speculative excesses all have the same unfortunate ending. The crash this time came in 1920-'21. More than half the gain between 1914 and 1920 was wiped out in this crash, and commodities generally have not attained the 1920 levels since. Even in the prosperity of late 1920s the average price level of wholesale commodities did not rise. It slumped severely in 1931-'32, and has rallied only slightly in recent year.

Situation Differs from 1914.

The world war experience is no guarantee that commodity prices would repeat that performance on a comparable scale in the event of a new war. When the world war started commodity prices were in a long term upswing. Some authorities believe they are now in a long term downswing.

After the civil war, commodity prices started downward. They kept on going down to about 1897, not even joining the business boom in 1869. From 1897 to the break in 1920-'21 the commodity price trend was upward. The trend since has been downward. These wide swings in the commodity price level are illustreated by the accompanying graph.

Industrial Status Varies.

There are other facts that should be studied. The price of rubber, for example, was nearly stationary during the war and post-war periods. The rapid development of rubber production methods had put this commodity in one of the longest bear markets on record—from 1910 to 1932. During that period rubber broke from $3 to 3 cents a pound. It is possible that, in any future war, the rubber price will move more uniformly with other commodity prices.

Another factor concerning wheat is important. One reason for the sharp rise in wheat prices was the decline in wheat production during the war.

The following figures show the trend of European wheat production during the war and post-war period [in bushels, 000,000 omitted]:

1913	1,284	1918	740
1914	1,301	1919	909
1915	1,702	1920	909
1916	1,125	1921	949
1917	1,049	1922	1,224

Today the nations of the world have a surplus of wheat. Wheat production last year, exclusive of China and Russia, amounted to about 4,539,000,000 bushels, more than 1 billion in excess of any previous year on record.

Canada Sends 15,822 Cattle to U. S. Under Tarif Quota

Washington, D. C., April 22.—(AP)—The treasury made public today a report from customs collectors showing 15,822 head of cattle weighing 700 pounds or more each were imported from Canada from April 1 to 15 last. The total did not include dairy cows. The treasury said it represented 30.6 per cent of the tarif rate quota for the second quarter of the current calendar year, as provided under the trade agreement with Canada.

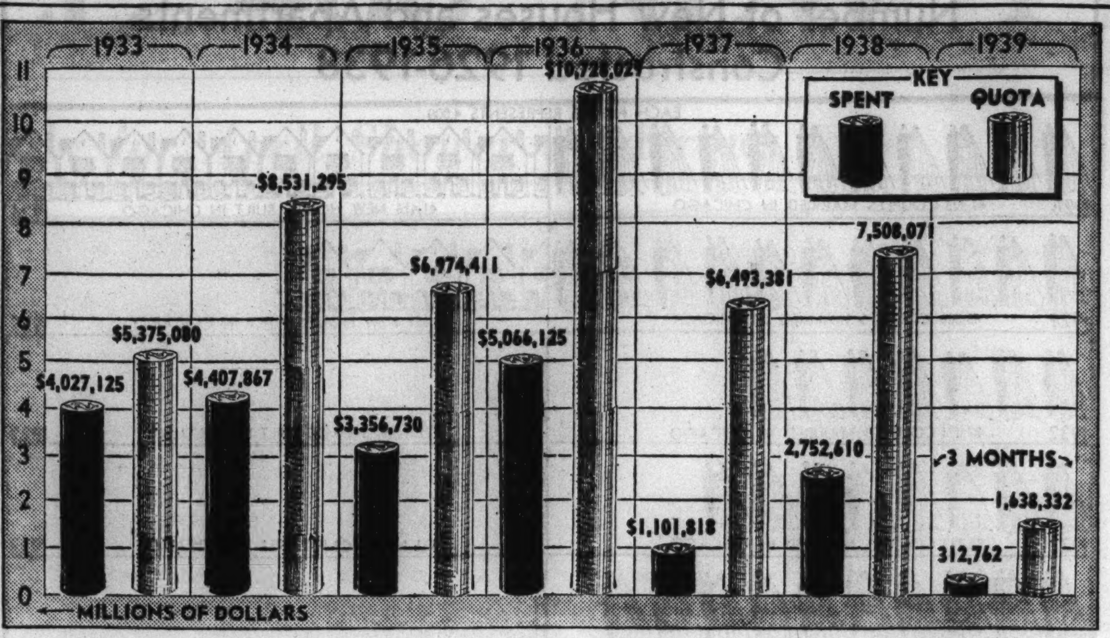
State "Shorts" Cook County $26,000,000



This chart shows by years the Illinois highway department's road building expenditures in Cook county compared with what the county would have received if 40 per cent of the state's construction were located here. The state collects more than 40 per cent of its gasoline tax and automobile license revenue from Cook county.

COOK COUNTY IS SHORTED IN STATE HIGHWAY FUNDS

BY HAL FOUST.

Cook county has been shorted $26,223,560 by the Illinois highway department in the last six years, according to calculations of Representative Arthur M. Kaindl [D., Chicago]. In investigating official records, he found that in the period from Jan. 1, 1938, to April 1, 1939, the state spent 17.8 per cent of its construction funds in Cook county which pays more than 40 per cent of the department's revenue from license fees and gasoline taxes.

In these six years and three months, state highway contracts totaled $118,169,913. Cook county received $21,025,040. It would have received $26,223,560 more had the state expenditures been allocated in relation to its sources of revenue.

Trend Against County.

The trend has been against Cook county since the Democrats obtained control of Springfield with the Roosevelt landslide six years ago. In 1933, Cook county received 29.9 per cent of the state's road construction expenditures; in 1934, 20.7 per cent; in 1935, 19.2 per cent; in 1936, 18.9 per cent. In 1937, with Mayor Kelly in political controversy with Gov. Horner, Cook county's construction allotment dropped to 6.8 per cent. In 1938, it rose to 17.2 per cent but fell again during the first three months of 1939 to 8.3 per cent.

The annual shortage, using Representative Kaindl's term, is more graphic when expressed in money. The following table lists the state's construction expenditures in Cook county with the deficiency from the amount that would have been spent here had the state allocated 40 per cent of its improvements to this county.

Year.	Spent.	Shortage.
1934	4,407,867	4,123,428
1935	3,356,730	3,617,681
1936	5,066,125	5,661,904
1937	1,101,818	5,391,563
1938	2,752,610	4,755,461
1939 [3 mos.]	312,763	1,325,569
Total	$21,025,040	$26,223,560

Authorized to Pave in Cities.

Mr. Kaindl did not compile these figures as an attack on the state administration. He pointed out that during prior Republican administrations, Chicago received no pavement from the state in return for the revenue derived by the state from the trafic on the city streets. The 1933 legislature authorized the state to pave in larger cities. This enactment was on recommendation of a commission headed by Representative David Hunter Jr. [R., Rockford].

Mr. Kaindl compiled this information as a member of a joint legislative committee evolving a future state highway policy.

"I want to show," said Representative Kaindl, "that the state might equitably spend more of its future revenue in Cook county. Due to this neglect in the past, Chicago now offers an opportunity for investments in modern trafic facilities for a maximum return to the public in travel convenience and safety."

This is the last week to obtain a drivers' license before the statutory deadline. After May 1 it will be illegal for any Illinois resident to operate an automobile without his individual driver permit.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Gabby Hartnett, manager of the Cubs, will be driving to and from Wrigley field this season in a dark green Cadillac Sixty Special which was presented to him by a group of fans last week. Mrs. Hartnett selected the color. Ald. J. M. Arvey was chairman of the committee that arranged for the purchase.

William E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet, was one of the principal speakers at the annual dinner of the National Automobile Dealers' association in San Francisco last week. Holler, who has been active in promoting better factory-dealer relations, talked on "My Conception of a Quality Dealer Program." He holds that there are too many automobile dealers for the good of the customer, the community, and the dealer body. He says it is desirable that there be fewer, but more permanent and financially sound dealers. The best way to find how many dealers a given community will accommodate is to make a scientific study of the area, he says.

Chrysler is exhibiting at both the New York and San Francisco World's Fairs full sized working models of its new "fluid drive." The device, which eliminates the mechanical connection between the engine and the driving mechanism, virtually eliminates the use of clutch and gear shift except in reversing. The car equipped with the device may be driven in high gear without shifting under all ordinary conditions. The device is available on the 1939 Chrysler Custom Imperial.

The extent to which an automobile company participates in the economic life of the nation is pointed out by L. A. Stewart, purchasing agent of the Buick division of General Motors. Buick buys from a list of more than 1,200 outside industries and supply companies more than 2,200 items required in the building of a Buick car, Stewart says. Steel is the largest item purchased, with pig iron for the foundries second.

The divided back of the front seat of the Mercury, newest car of the Ford Motor company, is said to be finding favor with motorists. The seat back swings inward as it is tilted forward, making easy entrance to the rear seat in two-door models. The two-door types find favor with families with children, because the youngsters are kept away from door handles.

Co-workers of Michael J. Lanahan, Dodge-Plymouth dealer, have presented him with a plaque and set of luggage for his services as chairman of the automobile and accessories division in the Jewish refugee drive.

Charles A. Chayne, chief engineer of the Buick division of General Motors, urges all automobile owners to see to it that their cars are kept properly lubricated. He said that modern automobiles run so smoothly that there is a tendency to forget about the lubrication.

NEW YORK FEARS TRAFIC TROUBLES AT WORLD'S FAIR

The New York News writes a discouraging description of trafic conditions that will be encountered by an estimated 250,000 Chicagoland motorists who will drive to the world's fair there this summer. A recent editorial in this newspaper reads as follows:

"Every taxi driver with whom we have discussed matters recently says that the world's fair is sure to draw a flood of automobile trafic into New York City—a flood the city will have a terrible time coping with.

"We're afraid there's something in that. And we don't see how the city could improvise adequate trafic facilities at this late date—a dozen or so double deck crosstown streets, say, plus three or four more East river bridges and Long Island highways leading to the fair; not to mention provision for getting away from the fair as fast as you got to it.

"It looks to us as if the fair visitors and the people of New York City will have to solve most of this threatened problem with their own common sense.

"Leave Cars in Garages."

"Fair visitors coming by automobile would be wise, if they can conveniently do so, to leave their cars in garages somewhere in New Jersey—Newark, Jersey City, etc. etc.—and use our excellent metropolitan area rapid transit system to come the rest of the way. Motorists coming down from New England or upstate New York could park their cars in Connecticut or Westchester garages and proceed thence to New York via the New Haven or New York Central.

"Visitors who have to bring their cars into New York should be encouraged to park them in garages rather than on the streets. It is excessive street parking which is notoriously the largest single factor in our trafic problem.

Urge Discount for Long Period.

"Local garage owners should be encouraged to offer discounts for parking cars for several days. And we think the La Guardia administration would be wise to take the vigorous steps it says it will take to discourage some of the local garage owners in the matter of gypping or overcharging fair visitors.

"The most certain way we can think of to thin out the expected fair crowds would be for word to spread around the country that New Yorkers were using the fair as an opportunity to rob their fellow Americans. Motorists can spread such word faster than any other group—and will if provoked to do so.

"The matter might be a proper subject for a special ordinance. We suggest the city council look into it in the near future."

Similar Chicago Stories.

Similar stories were circulated about Chicago's trafic conditions before and during A Century of Progress in 1933. However, most of the fears were unfounded. And the same may prove true in New York.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

VIOLATIONS COMMON.

Chicago, April 19.—Recently a store burned down at 48th street and Ashland avenue because the firemen could not get to the hydrants. Two motorists had their cars parked at the spot.

City officials are crying because they have not enough men to take care of this work, and the reason there are not more men is because there is not enough money.

Be it far from me to try to tell them how to handle this matter, especially when I do not get around much.

However, from my personal observations as I drive or walk along, I would venture the following:

If we hired a man at the corner of 67th street and Pulaski road and paid him $10 a day, he could make for the city $100 a day by giving tickets to all motorists who fail to stop at the stop sign. Another man at the corner of 67th and Cicero could make another $100 in a day for the same reason.

Another man, cruising along 67th street between St. Louis and California, could make another $100 a day for the city by giving tickets to motorists who drive, not twenty-five, but thirty-five and forty miles an hour. Another $100 could be made by giving tickets to motorists who persist in parking their cars on the pavement at the corner of Cicero and 65th while they are doing their shopping.

Now let us go over to 63d street between St. Louis and Western, a distance of a mile and a half.

One man walking could make $100 a day by giving tickets to motorists who are parked double, not just for a moment but leaving no one in the car while they do their shopping.

He also could give to those motorists who have left their cars parked, not six inches from the curb but from two feet on, and in any shape or form. One out of every three cars is found parked in this way.

By standing at any corner a man will find one out of every five cars with defective headlights, to say nothing of old license plates and stickers. They also lack safety stickers. But why go on?

ELSTOB.

FROM A VICTIM.

Chicago, April 17.—To a most considerate driver:

This little message is just to set your mind at ease as to the extent of the damage incurred by your Nash. After cutting in in front of me, thereby putting $3.50 worth of dent in my front fender, you calmly continued on your merry way. When I pulled alongside asking you to stop you replied in a quite strident voice, "I don't have to stop!"

Thank God all drivers aren't of your caliber. Just in case this little incident has slipped your mind, it happened on Sunday, April 16, on the outer drive near 53d, at about 4:30.

JAMES ERDMAN.

1938 LICENSES.

Chicago, Ill., April 19.—Why not make some sort of a drive and insist on drivers of automobiles having 1939 Illinois state and city licenses. Here we are going into the fifth month of 1939 and the streets are overrun with cars that still carry 1938 license plates, getting away with it when, as a matter of fact, they should not be on the streets at all as they have no license to drive a car.

E. E. P.

CENTRAL AVENUE AND MADISON.

Chicago, April 3.—"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." With this proverb in mind, I would like to call public attention to the lack of trafic policemen who are necessary to protect the lives of school children at the very dangerous intersection of Central avenue and Madison street.

The Emmett public grammar school is located on the corner of this intersection. Children attending this school are compelled to cross wide and dangerous Madison street and high speed Central avenue trafic.

Several accidents already have occurred at this point. At a time when the public has become trafic safety conscious, it seems almost criminal to ignore so dangerous and so vital a corner. As the father of school age children, I have naturally observed the absence of needed trafic officers, and especially in view of the fact that private schools located near by, as for example at 43d and Madison streets, enjoy this protection.

I trust this letter will be printed so that other parents of children going to the Emmett school will be aware of this dangerous trafic problem.

Building-Loan Executive Lauds "Public Service Building Corporation" Bill

MORTON BODFISH SAYS PASSAGE OF ACT IS DESIRABLE

Terms Power to Condemn Main Factor.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Morton Bodfish, executive vice president of the United States Building and Loan league, which has over five million members and assets exceeding 5 billion dollars, yesterday expressed his approval of the "public service building corporation" bill now under consideration by the Illinois general assembly. Its passage is desirable, he said, to prepare the way for private enterprise to reclaim slum districts with modern residential projects.

Morton Bodfish.

Bodfish pointed out that with no such legislation existing in any other state Illinois has an opportunity to assume the rôle of pioneer in solving a problem faced by every large city—that of ever growing depreciated areas.

Could Reclaim Slums.

The public service building corporation as outlined in a bill recently introduced at Springfield will enable private capital to reclaim the depreciated areas surrounding the loop on three sides. The corporations will have the power of eminent domain [the right to condemn needed land] in assembling their sites provided they already have acquired part of the land by ordinary purchase.

The building corporations will be under state supervision. They would be similar in some ways to the public utilities except that the element of monopoly will be avoided. Competition will be the keynote to their operation.

"It is in the public interest to bring about the supervised use of the condemnation power of the state in these areas to assist in assembling the land for rebuilding," said Bodfish. "Such utilization of the condemnation powers is the essence of the whole plan for public service building corporations, aside from the fact that through them a vehicle would be provided for supervised private enterprise in rebuilding depreciated residential sections. These activities should be tied in with the program of city planning authorities.

Can't Be Injurious.

"The experiment can't prove injurious because of the broad supervisory power and authority given to the state housing board. All too often one owner in a dozen or fifty, or some real estate speculator, has attempted to exploit and obtain unconscionable consideration for some small but key site, heedless of the public good. The plan under advisement would seem to provide a way to overcome such obstructions.

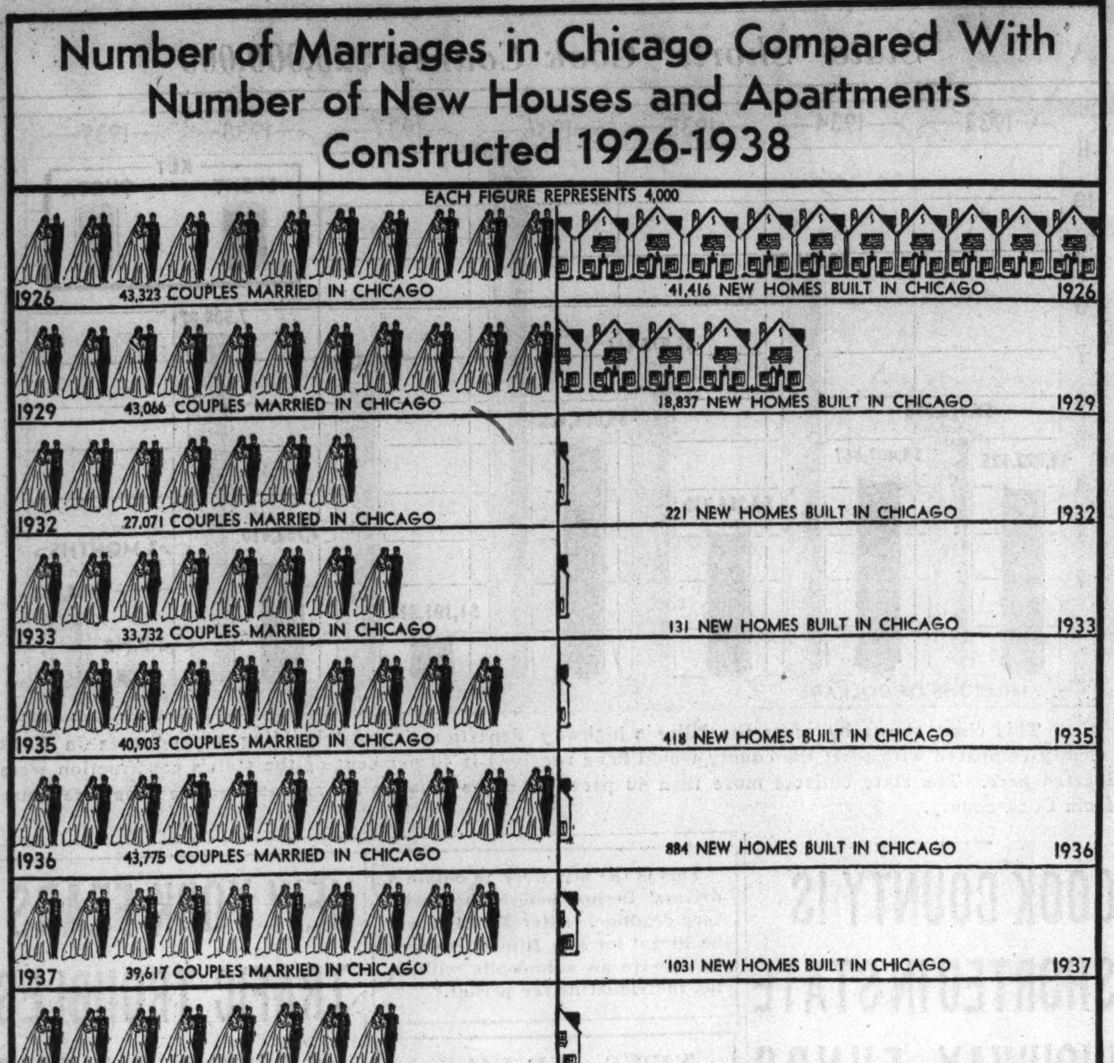
"I have long believed that the main functions of government in the whole matter of reclaiming depreciated areas and in clearing slums should be along the lines of its protective and police powers rather than its powers to lend money or grant subsidies from the public treasury. It is at least time that we tried bringing the government into the picture from this new angle."

BUILDING INDUSTRY WEEK IS INDORSED BY REALTY BOARD

Building Industry week, recently originated and sponsored by Chicago Building Congress, Inc., was endorsed yesterday by several organizations. These included the Chicago Real Estate board, Building Trades council, Building Construction Employers' association, Associated Builders, and Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association.

In an effort to stimulate public interest in building Mayor Kelly recently designated May 8 to 13 as Building Industry week.

Thursday, May 11, has been designated as Real Estate day. Paul Loeber, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday said: "The board is happy to sponsor Real Estate day as part of Building Industry week. It wholeheartedly subscribes to the slogan, 'Buy, Build, or Modernize Now—Get More for Your Money.'"



CITY AND SUBURBAN RESIDENTS BUY FIVE M'HENRY-LAKE FARMS

Five farms, comprising 450 acres, were sold in McHenry and Lake counties during the week by David W. Williams of Wauconda. All but one were for cash. James Bremner of Lake Forest, of Bremner Brothers, biscuit manufacturers, bought from Andrew Coburn fifty acres of landscaped estate three miles northeast of McHenry. He will occupy it as a country home.

G. B. Goble of Elmhurst purchased the Gesselbrecht eighty acre farm near the intersection of the Greenwood road and route 20, three miles northeast of Woodstock. He will operate the property as a farm.

F. H. Gesselbrecht of Park Ridge, of the J. B. Inderrieden company, who sold his farm to Goble, purchased for investment the Rellehan 120 acre farm, two miles south of McHenry, west of the Fox river. J. T. McGary of the Chicago Rawhide company bought the Rowson 120 acre farm, one mile north of Cary, for investment. C. A. Boothby, president of the Jahn & Ollier Engraving company of Chicago, purchased the eighty acre Rothe farm, one mile south of Wauconda, and will operate it as a farm, making it his residence.

News of the Architects

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden of the National Bureau of Standards, United States department of commerce, Washington, D. C., will give an illustrated talk at a joint meeting of the Illinois Society of Architects and the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, next Tuesday evening. It will be held at the Architects' Club of Chicago, 1801 Prairie avenue. The subject of Dr. Dryden's talk will be "A New Approach to Technical Research on Building Materials and Structures." Special guests will be officials of the Chicago Building Congress, Inc., and Leigh Hunt, state association representative of the A. I. A.

New Stoker Concern Buys Diversey Parkway Plant

The Eddy-Foy Stoker company yesterday bought the two story industrial building at 1419-21 Diversey parkway from the Smith Brothers Awning company for a reported $25,000. The newly organized stoker concern, of which Irwin Foy is president, will manufacture, sell and service automatic coal stokers. H. E. Schuett of Lang, Weise & Cella, was broker.

Addressograph Building Is Now Fully Occupied

Lang, Weise & Cella, managers of the Addressograph building, 400 South Peoria street, reported yesterday that it is now fully occupied. It contains 150,000 square feet of floor space.

Open 80 Acre Tract for Second Group of 'Skeleton' Houses

The Midland Development company yesterday announced the opening of a new eighty acre subdivision for small homes at the southeast intersection of North avenue and Wolf road, north of Berkeley. The development has been laid out with several winding roads, a small park, and homesites of 60 by 125 feet and larger.

A year ago the company opened another eighty acres directly west of the new project, across Wolf road. On this land during the last twelve months forty homes have been built, four are now under construction, thirteen are being considered by the Federal Housing administration, and twenty-eight applications are being checked for credit rating.

Expects to Build 100 Homes.

According to Sol C. Spiegel, one of the partners of the Midland company, there are 270 homesites in the eighty acres just platted. He expects 100 homes will be built there this summer.

The homes cost from $1,395 to $1,895, including the lot. This does not include the plumbing, electric fixtures, interior finish, or exterior painting.

"The buyers are mostly mechanics and save by buying the shell and doing all the detail work themselves," Spiegel said. "We find out what they are capable of doing and what they want to do themselves and then we plan accordingly.

Buyer Finishes It.

"We build a substantial house with a completely finished, but not painted exterior, set on a concrete foundation with footings four feet deep—below the frost line. Each house has its own well and septic tank. Each one is built under the supervision of our architect, Alvin H. Hoffberg.

"Then the buyer finishes the house at his leisure. He puts in the partitions on the two-by-fours we've already installed. He installs the plumbing, heating plant, and electrical equipment; he paints the house and decorates the interior. Anything that he can't do, we do for him. The houses have no basements. Many of the houses have space upstairs for additional rooms when needed."

For buyers who prefer to have their plumbing installed but who would like to do the interior finishing and wiring if the materials were available an alternate plan has been recently adopted by the Midland company at a higher price range—from $2,195 to $2,995. Under this schedule all of the plumbing is installed and all the necessary materials for wiring and woodwork for interior finishing placed on the job for use by the home owner.

Partly Owner Built

This house is one of the many "skeleton" units built by the Midland Development company in its eighty acre development north of Berkeley, at southwest corner of North avenue and Wolf road. The owner, Orville Slavik, paid $1,200 for the unfinished building and $395 for the lot. He has a five year FHA title one loan on which he pays $30 a month, principal and interest. He installed the plumbing, electrical fixtures, heating plant, interior finish, and decorating, and painted the exterior of the house. The house is at the southwest corner of La Vergne and Soffel avenues. The Midland Development company has just opened another eighty acre tract east of its original development.

RAISE $654,100 OF SCOTT HALL BUILDING FUND

To date $654,100 has been raised toward financing the erection of a $750,000 building as a memorial to Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, and his wife, Anna Miller Scott. Ground will be broken on May 1, the 70th birthday of Dr. Scott.

It will be known as Scott hall, and will be built on the west side of Sheridan road in Evanston, between University place and Emerson street, at the extreme eastern end of the women's quadrangle.

A feature of the Gothic stone walled building will be the 1,000 seat memorial auditorium. The building also will contain a restaurant, private dining rooms, a recreation room, a library, and two lounges, one of which may be transformed into a ballroom for receptions and dances.

MAY BUILD 75 RESIDENCES ON FAR SOUTH SIDE

The Realty Mortgage Investment company has started construction of three six room residences at the southwest corner of Luella avenue and 91st street. These are the first units of twelve contemplated for Luella avenue, between 91st and 92d streets. The company has a building program of seventy-five homes, to be erected as fast as demand warrants. It owns scattered home sites in the area bounded by Paxton and Oglesby avenues, 89th and 91st streets.

BUYS FOUNDRY PROPERTY.

John A. Norwell, operating the Universal Brass Foundry at 1523 West Hubbard street, has bought the property from William J. Kehl for an undisclosed price. Emanuel M. Schwartz was attorney for the buyer.

FOODS CHAIN PLANS SIX NEW CHICAGO UNITS

Buildings to Be Erected for Four Stores.

High-Low Foods, Inc., organized a year ago, yesterday leased a building to be erected at 1907-09 West 79th street, for its fourteenth Chicago unit. Five more Chicago stores will be announced in the near future, according to Thomas M. Reade, who represents the company in all of its real estate transactions.

Unit No. 14 and three others of the new stores will be in new buildings erected by Reade as general contractor. All are being designed by Architects Luther & Christensen.

Unit to Be Enlarged.

In addition, the chain store company's unit at 7746 South Halsted street is to be enlarged. Although open less than a year it has outgrown its quarters. The store is to be extended forty-seven feet in the rear.

The new West 79th street store, ground for which will be broken this week, is to be on land recently purchased by Otto B. Bernard. It will be 50 by 125 feet. The unit will be a complete food mart, including market, and will be air conditioned. The High-Low Foods, Inc., has leased it from Bernard for five years, with option for five more years, at an undisclosed rental.

Headed by Roney.

High-Low Foods, Inc., is headed by Walter J. Roney, former vice president of the Consumers Sanitary Coffee and Butter Stores. When that chain was sold by J. R. Roney, his father, founder and president of Consumers, to the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, the younger Roney was associated with the latter concern. On Jan. 1, 1938, he resigned from the Kroger company to start his own grocery chain.

SOUTH SIDE REAL ESTATE CONCERN CHANGES NAME

Swan, Lorish & Caspers, Inc., yesterday announced the change in the corporate name to Swan-Lorish, Inc. Chester W. Kulp of the law firm of Rathje, Hinckley, Barnard & Kulp has been elected a director in place of Paul Caspers, who has sold his stock interests in the corporation and resigned as officer and director.

Swan-Lorish is one of the largest real estate and property management companies in Chicago, with offices in Hyde Park, Kenwood, Woodlawn, and south shore. They also maintain renting service stations in the downtown Illinois Central suburban stations.

The other directors of the corporation are Clifford S. Swan, Fred M. Lorish, James J. Carroll, and Oscar Boenicke, who are actively engaged in business of the corporation, and C. J. Whipple, president of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co.

STORAGE FIRM LEASES SEVEN STORY BUILDING

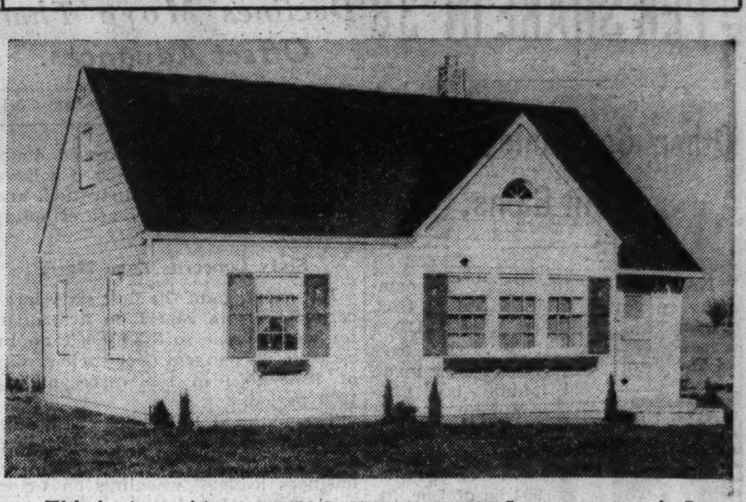
Sidney A. Smith and Harry F. Partridge, officials of the Anchor Storage company, yesterday leased from the Chicago Dock and Canal company for twenty years commencing May 1, 1940, the seven story building at 251-315 East Grand avenue. It is now occupied by the Durand-McNeil-Horner company, wholesale grocers.

The building contains 210,000 square feet of floor space. It has a frontage of 300 feet on Grand avenue with a depth of 88 feet. According to William Kaplan, who negotiated the lease, the building after modernization will be used for warehouse and terminal operations. Ogden Sheldon & Co. represented the lessee.

Ilg Electric Rents Space in the Builders' Building

The Ilg Electric Ventilating company yesterday leased two stores at 220 and 222 North La Salle street, in the Builders' building, for ten years. On May 1 the city sales office and display rooms for its air conditioning equipment will be moved to that address from 182 North La Salle street. The company will have a third more space in the new quarters.

House in Lombard Terrace



This is the residence of C. O. Thomas at 326 Sunset avenue, in Lombard Terrace, in the northwestern part of Lombard. It is reported to have cost $4,500, plus $750 for the 87½ by 150 foot lot, or a total of $5,250. It was designed by Adelman & Foster and has five rooms, but no basement. It has gas heat. It was financed with a twenty year Federal Housing administration insured mortgage.

PLAN 50 HOMES FOR LOMBARD THIS SUMMER

Lombard Terrace Homes, Inc., yesterday outlined plans for fifty new homes during the summer in the suburban development in the northwest part of Lombard, south of North avenue. Twenty-two residences have been completed and twenty-four are under construction. All homes are built to order—they are sold before they are built.

A new section to be opened at once is on Potomac avenue, between Elizabeth and Edson avenues. Homes in this area will range from $6,000 to $7,000, including the lot. In another area bounded by Elizabeth, Ridge, Crystal, and Potomac avenues, only brick homes will be built. Benjamin Lewis, sales manager, says several houses are open for inspection.

GLENCOE MAN BUYS A 3,800 ACRE RANCH

H. C. Orton, of Glencoe, yesterday purchased the Pogue ranch, containing 3,800 acres, seventy miles southeast of Chicago, in Indiana. The property, one of the largest contiguous tracts of land in the Chicago area, is twelve miles north of Kentland. The land was bought from the Western Investment Trust, of which Thomas W. Morony is sales manager.

The property is improved with two sets of farm buildings. It has ten miles of woven wire fencing and eighteen miles of barbed wire fencing. Complete viewing of the property requires fourteen miles of travel on the surrounding roads.

For several decades this property has been operated as a cattle ranch where hundreds of cattle have been bred, grazed and fattened for market, in addition to the customary grain farming operations. The new owner will continue to operate the ranch as one of the largest live stock farms in this part of the country.

PLANS 20 NEW SMALL HOUSES IN NEVA AVENUE

Twenty new homes are announced for construction this summer by Gus Fredrickson, on North Neva avenue, between Wellington avenue and George street. Four already are being built. Designed by Charles A. Kristen, Oak Park architect, they will have four, five and six rooms and will cost from $6,300 to $7,000. They are being financed with Federal Housing administration twenty-five year mortgages through the Merchants National bank.

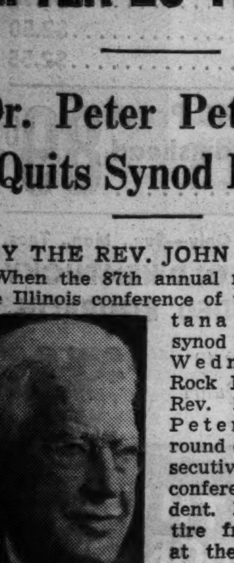
CHURCH LEADER IS TO RETIRE AFTER 20 YEARS

Dr. Peter Peterson Quits Synod Post.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

When the 87th annual meeting of the Illinois conference of the Augustana Lutheran synod opens on Wednesday in Rock Island, the Rev. Dr. Peter Peterson will round out 20 consecutive years as conference president. He will retire from office at the close of the sessions.



Dr. Peter Peterson.

The conference, led during the two decades by Dr. Peterson, covers the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, and Iowa, with a total of 160 congregations, fifty of which are in Chicago or its suburbs. Offices of the conference are at 58 East Washington street.

Dr. Peterson's service as pastor and president covers a period of 45 years, or more than half the time that the Augustana synod has existed.

In his final report Dr. Peterson wrote:

Gives Final Report.

"Your president is finishing his fourth and last five year term of office, having been elected to his first five year term April 23, 1919, at the 67th annual convention in the Ebenezer church, Foster and Paulina avenues. Little did he realize at that time that he would serve continuously for 20 years.

"This one-fifth of a century has been a period of test for the human family and for the church, a period of unparalleled human progress, the reconstruction period following the world war, a period of intoxicating prosperity and of paralyzing depressions and recessions.

"These conditions have affected the church, her activities and finances, increasing her difficulties and retarding her progress. Through God's infinite grace she has carried on and extended the borders of the kingdom. There has been a slow but steady growth."

Gain in Membership.

The report then points out that church membership in the conference has increased more than 7 per cent during the 20 year period, and contributions have risen to $7,264,226 for last year. This is an increase of more than four million dollars over the report for 1919. It adds that congregational indebtedness has increased from $300,000 to nearly a million and a quarter dollars. Ninety-eight new churches have been dedicated during the 20 years.

Home mission work is conducted by the conference at 50 points in the five states. It owns and operates the Augustana hospital, the Lutheran hospital in Moline, and two homes for children, two old peoples' homes, two hospices or guest houses for women, a summer camp at Lake Geneva, Wis., and an extensive inner mission work in Chicago.

Dr. Peterson was born in Sweden and was made a knight of the Royal Order of the North Star by King Gustav in 1925. On the visit to America of Crown Prince Gustav Adolph and Princess Louise, Dr. Peterson was presented with festive vestments of the Church of Sweden.

"Are the Jews Doomed to Become a People of Refugees?"—This is the momentous question facing the fifth annual conference of the Chicago division of the American Jewish congress which opens today at the Hotel Sherman. Leo H. Lowitz, president, will relate in detail the oppressed condition of Jewry in the dictator states and current political phases will be analysed by internationally known leaders.

Two sessions will be held, the morning beginning at 9 o'clock and the afternoon at 2 o'clock. More than 1,500 delegates representing 400 Chicago organizations, with a total membership of 75,000, will attend. Dr. Jacob Lestschinsky of Warsaw, Poland, head of the economic research department of the World Jewish congress, will be the principal speaker at the morning session.

Rabbi J. X. Cohen of the Free synagogue, New York City, and Senator William H. King [D., Utah], will be the afternoon speakers. The congress will also be addressed by William J. Robinson, president of the youth division, and Mrs. Samuel Hoffman, president of the women's division.

Lutheran churches of the Augustana synod on the south side will begin a weekly series of radio broadcasts on Wednesday, over station WHIP. To be known as the Weekday Lutheran Hour, 11:15 to 11:30 a. m., the speakers will discuss vital problems of living which may be solved through the medium of the church.

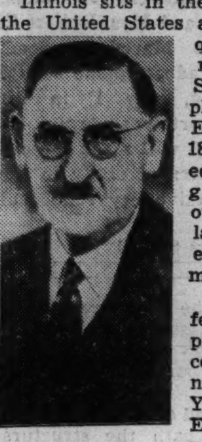
The first speaker will be the Rev. Clarence A. Wittenstrom, pastor of Messiah church, 6400 South Lincoln street. Other speakers will be the Rev. C. Emil Bergquist of Bethel church, 6200 South Peoria street, the Rev. Joseph A. Parkander of Gustavus Adolphus church, 7426 Drexel avenue, and the Rev. H. E. Sandstedt of Bethlehem church.

Pioneer Thrift Still Governs Old Frankfort

(This is the fourth of a series of studies made in southwestern towns of Chicagoland.)

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Illinois sits in the center aisle of the United States and becomes acquainted with many people. Since the completion of the Erie canal in 1825 it has attracted more immigrants than other states. Its largest foreign element is German.



The Rev. G. S. Gerhold.

The rolling fertile, peaceful prairies of Will county, first pioneered by the Yankee and the English, were a magnet to the harassed Germans who landed in this country during the late '60s and early '70s. Having fled from ancestral lands to escape militarism imposed by Bismarck or the necessity of accepting his father's trade, the German immigrant followed his kinsmen to the black loam fields of Illinois.

Linked by Ancestry.

Here he bought a small tract, generally from a large Yankee landowner who lived in the east or worked on a farm owned by one of his countrymen. In loneliness and faith these German newcomers flocked together to worship God in their own tongue and to make friends in a strange land. So bound together by mutual interest have they remained that a little arrowhead of German settlements can be traced on the map of Will county touching Mokena, Manhattan, Peotone, Beecher, Monee, Richton Park, Matteson, and Frankfort.

Frankfort, sitting on the summit of the state, overlooks them all. It is the highest point of land between Chicago and the Mississippi river. Bound by a railroad on the south and three hard roads to the north, west, and east, it still presents a stolid front.

A tourist leaving route 45 and driving up to Kansas street, the main business section of Frankfort, can imagine himself in a border town of the western pioneers. Here where the crows in the neighboring hickory trees call raucously to each other across the wide gravel road are stores 75 to 100 years old. Their great roofs reach out over the sidewalks and rest on thin, point worn pillars at the curb.

Recalls Wagon Trains.

Kansas street was once a horse lined thoroughfare on Saturday afternoons, and not more than sixty years ago, according to Jacob Bach, 78 year old president of the town bank, wagons loaded with grain could be seen lined up a mile out of town.

Even today in the little two chair barber shop owned by the village clerk, Walter Pfaff, the farmers gather on Saturday afternoons. Many still use their own ornate shaving cups which have been kept on the same shelves for decades.

Kansas street turns in the pattern of the old Indian trail, and business continues on Ash street, where Harry Balchowsky maintains a general store founded by his peddler father sixty-two years ago. At one time before the advent of the hard roads the Balchowsky store was one of the largest and most unique in the section. Everything from the finest of watches to curry combs made up the stock. Despite the modern innovation of a "Free Door Prize Every Saturday Nite" one can still find hardware, groceries, meats, dry goods, shoes, paints, horse feed, clocks, and crockery at Balchowsky's. Typical of the thrifty people who are the customers, not one relief order passes over the counter.

90 Per Cent Taxes.

In a recent survey made by a Chicago bonding company in plans for a new $13,000 village hall at Frankfort, it was found that 90 per cent of the 600 home owners pay their taxes annually. Obligations are a matter of honor.

Extravagance in Frankfort amount to a few beakers of beer in the evening when the gaffers get together in the three local taverns for a game of "schaus kopf" [sheep's head], an old country technical card game. Yet dollars are considered well spent in erecting new public buildings such as the $45,000 school gymnasium and the proposed village hall. Many residents in town own farms in the outlying territory which they rent out for shares or cash and the farm buildings are kept in excellent condition. "If you see a rundown farm around here," says Albert Krusemark, village attorney, "you can be sure it isn't owned by a German descendant."

The women, probably more than the men, take great pride in their homes in Frankfort and spotless cleanliness adds dignity to even the humblest cottage. The aromatic odor of "kaffee kuchen" and homemade bread generally invades the rooms. One dish that is famous in Frankfort is "speck gans," dried and smoked breasts of goose.

A Tip for Visitors.

The German love of flowers and trim lawns brings even the busiest resident out for early spring planting in Frankfort, and later in the season a guest does not observe the ritual of courtesy if he does not comment on the garden.

The native tongue is heard sometimes on the streets of the village, but is rarely spoken by the younger

Ready for April Shower of Arrows

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

April is a month for young things . . . tiny, baby crocuses . . . delicate, green buds . . . fresh, new rains . . . little boys huddled around a marble circle . . . and slender slips of girls at play. April is for young things because it is the month when there are new worlds to conquer. Capturing the zest for adventure, young pupils of the Loring School for Girls, 106th street and Longwood drive, have refreshed the ancient art of the bow and arrow. Starting out with high hopes for a good score are (left to right) Jean MacArthur and Dorothea Plitt.

GIVE 'KICKOFF' DINNER TO OPEN SCOUTS' DRIVE

So. Shore District Has $10,000 Quota.

A "kickoff" dinner at the South Shore Swedish club last week officially started the South Shore district of the Chicago Boy Scouts on its quest for $10,000. This is the quota set for the district's contribution to the drive for $90,000 underway in the city. The money will be used to finance the Scout program for next year.

Richard M. Lenihan, district finance chairman, stressed the need of increasing contributions to meet the demands for swelling membership. Pointing out that through their period of development in scouting boys are taught to combine the principles of good sportsmanship, allegiance to God and country, and daily service, he said that district members should build civic understanding of the Scout program, emphasizing the Cubbing movement, the outdoor program, and Senior Scouting.

Helping in Drive.

Zone personnel in the district is as follows:

Zone 1-2 [Oakland-Kenwood, Hyde Park], H. B. Fridstin, chairman.

Zone 3 [Woodlawn], N. H. Ansorge, chairman; Arthur Faulman, Winslow Smith, Robert Phelps, Carl Rune, John Hamilton, Frank Bellfuss, J. K. Watson, Franz Englund, Einer Mosbock, and Paul Miller.

CELEBRATE SILVER JUBILEE OF PASTOR IN CEREMONY TODAY

Parishioners of St. David's church will celebrate the silver anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Joseph McNamee with open house today in St. David's hall, 3200 Emerald avenue. Solemn high mass at noon will open the celebration. Dinner will be served in the evening and a program of dancing and entertainment has been planned. Father McNamee was ordained in 1894 at All Hallow's college in Dublin, Ireland. He has been an assistant at St. Patrick's church, Des Plaines and Adams, St. Patrick's church in Dixon, St. Mary's church in Freeport, and St. Mel's church. In 1905 he was appointed pastor of St. Patrick's church in Wilton Center and came to St. David's in February of 1914.

The Rev. Joseph McNamee.

GARDEN CONTEST FOR SOUTHTOWN AREA STARTED

Planning Group Offers $160 Prize List.

With the slogan "You win if you lose," the Southtown Planning commission began a City Beautiful contest a week ago yesterday which will close for entries on May 15. The purpose of the garden competition is to stimulate interest in home ownership, to develop civic pride, and to aid in keeping the city clean.

The contest will be open to all people living within the area bounded by 54th street, State street, 76th street, and Marshfield avenue. One hundred and sixty dollars will be given in prizes. Entries will be divided into four classes: Rear gardens, front gardens, combination of rear and front gardens, window boxes.

How Money Is Divided.

Twenty-five dollars will be awarded for first place in the three major divisions, with $15 as second prize and $10 as third. Prizes in the window box classification are $5 for first, $3 for second, and $2 for third.

According to Mrs. Mary Long Rogers, city planner and landscape architect for the Southtown Planning commission, all entrants, except those competing with window boxes, must furnish snapshot pictures of their property as it is when the entry blank is filed. The selections will be made upon the relative improvement made during the four months of late spring and early summer. Judging will take place the first week of September.

Land Use Survey Finished.

The Southtown Planning association made a complete land use survey of the district which has taken two years to compile. The technical staff of the commission is studying this data and preparing a comprehensive plan to increase the working efficiency of the whole community.

The association is the first one in the nation to have such a land use survey of urban land and to make a planned approach to correct past mistakes.

ST. IGNATIUS PLAYERS' 'ROOM SERVICE' WILL OPEN FRIDAY NIGHT

John Petermann, 3120 Union avenue, will enact the rôle of "Sasha Smirnoff" in a production of "Room Service" to be presented by the St. Ignatius Harlequins Friday, Saturday, next Sunday, and the following Monday evenings in the Goodman theater. Other important rôles will be taken by Joseph Shannon, 1630 West 104th place; Lawrence Joy, 9710 Damen avenue, and Stanley Zaug, 1048 West 55th street.

John Petermann.

Bert G. Walker, who has directed the St. Ignatius Harlequins for the last ten years, will be in charge. "Room Service" is a story of a young, energetic and ingenious play producer who in the face of many obstacles succeeds in having his play on Broadway.

STARS OF STAGE TO AID ST. RITA BENEFIT PARTY

For the benefit of the new building fund a stage and screen theater party will be held by St. Rita's High school Saturday midnight in the Ogden theater, 63d street and Ashland avenue.

Celebrities who will appear in person include Arthur Treacher, Fifi d'Orsay, Roy Middleton and Jeanne Madden, the Condos Brothers, Eddie Bracken, Patricia Oakley, Jack Durant, Virginia Payne, Paul Cadieux, and Peter Higgins.

The program will close with a motion picture. The Rev. A. A. Durant will be in charge of the performance. He is assisted by other members of the faculty—namely: the Rev. R. P. Fink, rector, and the Rev. W. R. Kirk.

Harry H. Kay insisted several months ago on having that middle "H" put in his name on the official roll book of the Hyde Park Lions club. And the reason was explained just a few days ago, according to Amos W. Cole, secretary. It stands for "husband," Mr. Cole insists. Mr. Kay made his initial appearance in his new capacity with his bride, the former Miss Birdie Reeve, niece of another loyal Lion, E. L. Reeve. Mrs. Kay, incidentally, is particularly adept at typing and, demonstrating her ability for the Lions club some time ago, she wrote Lincoln's Gettysburg address while telling the story of two Irishmen.

WOMEN VOTERS OF FLOSSMOOR TO STUDY TOWN

"Know Your Town" will be the subject for discussion at an all day open meeting of the Flossmoor League of Women Voters Tuesday in the Flossmoor Community house. Miss Marjorie Ford, chairman of Know Your Town committee, will introduce the subject and various chairmen will report on such subjects as "Health," "Education," and "Village Affairs."

The meeting will open at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and luncheon will be served at noon by Mrs. Howard Adler, chairman.

Members who will take an active part in Tuesday's program are Miss Austine Stanley, Mrs. H. G. Jacobsen, Mrs. F. F. Morris, Mrs. Eugene Herthel, Mrs. Thomas H. Palmer, Mrs. A. L. Augur, Mrs. E. N. Baty, Mrs. Franklin Barber, Mrs. C. W. Campbell, Mrs. Edgar B. English, Mrs. Edgar Beckman, Mrs. Charles Kane, Mrs. Paul R. Simon, Mrs. A. I. Parker, Mrs. Percy Wagner, Mrs. Henry Lederer, Mrs. George Stanley, and Mrs. G. A. True.

Beverly Civic Group.

The Beverly Hills Improvement association will hold its annual meeting Monday evening, May 1, in St. Paul's Community church, 94th street and Winchester avenue.

VACANT SPACES WILL BE USED FOR RECREATION

Greater Safety for Children Seen.

Anticipating the arrival of warm weather, local civic, service, and business organizations in the seventy-five communities of the city will begin this week to prepare 800 vacant lots as equipped and supervised playgrounds in coöperation with parks, settlements, and established playgrounds.

These 800, representing an increase of 200 over the total last summer, will include more than 180 on the south side and more than 220 on the southwest side. The 200 additional lots were used as ice skating ponds during the winter.

Serving as sponsors, the local groups and individuals supply lumber and other material, and the NYA converts it into play equipment which it erects on each of the lots, according to Mrs. A. V. O'Kelly, community assistant of the Chicago Recreation commission. The parks, settlements, and permanent playgrounds, through the WPA, furnish the personnel for supervision.

Take Out Insurance.

As protection for the thousands of children who will use the facilities, and the owners of the lots, the sponsors take out liability insurance at especially low rates.

Use of the playlots last year helped in the prevention of many accidents which would have occurred if children played in the streets, according to George Fleming, director of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

"There is no question," he said, "that many a child's life will be saved this summer through the use of these lots. Prior to their establishment, children living in areas too far from parks utilized the streets for their play."

To Discuss School Yards.

To discuss the possibilities of using school yards as playgrounds this summer and the relationship of the yards to the playlots, Peter J. Peel, chairman of the playlot committee of the Chicago Recreation commission, has called a meeting of his group for 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at 160 North La Salle street.

Fewer vacant lots would be pressed into service for play purposes if local groups could use school yards, he pointed out. In any event, utilization of the yards would add at least 1,000 additional playgrounds to the public and private play facilities.

Edward L. Burchard, 7550 Crandon avenue, executive secretary of the Recreation commission, said use of these vacant lots is made possible through the coöperation of the WPA, the NYA, the city council committee on recreation, department of public works, the Chicago park district, the Chicago Council of Sociay Agencies, and the bureau of parks, playgrounds, and aviation.

District recreation committees under the commission coördinate and approve local use of lots as playgrounds. Committee chairmen for the southwest side, the location of the play lots, and the sponsors are:

WIDE OPEN RACE INJURES WILSON JUDGESHIP BID

Foes Recall His Action on Slot Machines.

Political foes of Judge Edwin L. Wilson of the Will county Circuit court declared last week that the presence of several slates in the judicial race will help them accomplish the judge's defeat.

In 1936 the judge issued a temporary injunction whereby for a year law enforcement officials in Will county were forbidden to halt the operation of slot machines. Judge Wilson dissolved his injunction only after a storm of protest was climaxed by demands in the Illinois legislature that that he be impeached.

Judge Wilson, a Democrat, was renominated at his party's judiciary convention recently for one of the three court posts in the 12th circuit that will be conferred by the voters on June 5. The 12th circuit includes Will, Kankakee, and Iroquois counties.

Slatemakers' Problem.

It was reported that because of Judge Wilson's unpopularity the Democratic slatemakers had difficulty persuading others to be his running mates. This report was given credence by the fact that neither the Iroquois nor the Kankakee delegation to the 12th circuit Democratic convention was instructed for any particular candidate.

Other developments tended to confirm the report. One was that neither of the other Democratic incumbents, Judge Claude N. Saum of Iroquois county nor Judge W. R. Hunter of Kankakee county, figured in the slatemaking preliminaries of their regular party organization.

State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro of Kankakee county and W. S. Kay of Watseka in Iroquois county were nominated on the Wilson slate.

Judge Saum jointed two Republicans in forming a nonpartisan ticket by filing nominating petitions in Springfield. His running mates are R. C. Schoenstedt of Joliet and Harry Streeter of Kankakee.

The regular Republicans at their convention nominated James B. Bartley of Joliet, Roscoe South of Watseka, and Luther B. Bratton of Kankakee.

See Trend to G. O. P.

A fourth ticket, formed by petition in the name of the People's party, includes the names of two Republicans. They are State's Attorney Elmer A. Taylor of Iroquois county, who lives in Watseka, and former State's Attorney William R. McCabe of Will county, who lives in Lockport.

The consensus more than six weeks before the judicial election appears to be that the regular Republicans will profit most from the multiplicity of tickets. Observers predicted that some of the independent candidates would drop from the race and throw their support to the regular G. O. P. nominees.

The new judicial campaign was only a few hours old when the issue of the slot machine injunction came to the fore.

Opponents of the judge recalled that it was a fellow Democrat who in 1936 asked the Illinois house of representatives to bring impeachment proceedings against Judge Wilson. The action was sought by Representative Joseph Sam Perry of Wheaton, whose district includes Judge Wilson's residence at 700 4th avenue in Joliet.

Rejected by Two Votes.

Perry charged Judge Wilson with "willful and corrupt conduct in office and high crimes and misdemeanors," but the house by a margin of two votes rejected the proposal to appoint a house committee to investigate the charges.

Representative Perry, seeking for an ulterior motive behind the slot machine injunction, pointed out that Judge Wilson was a pallbearer for Lawrence [Butch] Crowley of Joliet, who was fatally shot in 1936. Perry's investigation established, he said, that Crowley became visibly more prosperous after the injunction permitted slot machines to run unchecked.

PIONEER THRIFT STILL GOVERNS OLD FRANKFORT

element. German services, however, are held in addition to English in the church. The idiom creeps into the English of the older people of the town and a stranger asking directions might be accosted with "It's down the next street you go." As Mark Twain once wrote, "The German drives into the Atlantic of his sentence and comes up on the other side with a verb in his mouth."

Frankfort furnishes many honor students to the high schools in Joliet and Peotone.

Still Busy at 91.

The early history of Frankfort was made by the English and Yankees. It is typical that the town's patriarch is William Logan of English descent. Born in 1848, Mr. Logan remembers seeing the trek of covered wagons toward the west go through Frankfort and recalls how the men always guided the team of four oxen while the wives and children jogged on the front seat. At 91, Mr. Logan still maintains a one man machinery business and can lend a hand to pushing a neighbor's automobile out of the mud, the village constable for 15 years, he still possesses an official looking handlebar mustache.

Laid Out in 1855.

In 1855 the village of Frankfort was laid out by S. W. Bowen who owned 80 acres within the confines. It was christened by a Mr. Cappel, an old German citizen, for his native home Frankfort-on-the-Main. There were only nine German families in the territory, however, when the St. Peter Evangelical church was organized on Reformation day, Oct. 28, 1867.

The Methodist Episcopal church, which still has a representative congregation, was established in 1856 as the first house of worship in either the township or the village.

St. Peter's "kirche" which merged with the Reformed sect last year has a congregation of 500 and a Sunday school enrollment of 400. Its pastor is the Rev. G. S. Gerhold. The Rev. C. F. Schellhase is rector of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Present officers of the village are George Sangmeister, mayor; John Luhring, treasurer; Mr. Pfaff, clerk; Frank Eisenbrandt, village tapper [in some communities he would be a water superintendent]; Fred Warning, Dr. W. V. Hedges, and William Koerner, health commissioners, and Alfred Zechlin, Conrad Oetter, Manson La Hue, William Wishover, Henry Breidert, and Charles Bobsin, trustees.

HIKERS DISCOVER NATURE'S BEAUTY IN CHICAGOLAND

Uncounted Groups Find Health Outdoors.

BY PAUL HEALY.

A chilled, wet spring does not mean that the sport of hiking is dead, or even dying, in Chicagoland, say seven division superintendents of the forest preserve system. Rain or shine, from now until the first snowstorm of November thousands of city dwellers may be found any Saturday or Sunday tramping through the silent woods, across the soft fields, and along the winding brooks that constitute Cook county's 33,500 acres of wooded country.

Each year the number of hikers grows greater as men, women, and children are converted to the belief that outdoor walking is health insurance and that the study of nature carries a charm all its own. Each year new hiking clubs spring up and each year more societies and industries realize the wisdom of promoting hikes for their members.

Number of Clubs Unknown.

The exact number of hiking clubs and less formally organized outing groups is so large and so elastic that it is not known, not even by the division superintendents who act as hosts and guides when the hikers enter the forest preserves. The superintendents of the seven divisions which form a refreshing garden around the city limits are Rex Volz, George Smith, Don Joyce, Stanley Sekulski, Joseph Reichert, Frank Blake, and James Igoe.

Groups which appear regularly, according to these men, are the Prairie club, the Outing club, the Englewood Outdoor club, the Marshall Field Oak Park Store Hiking club, the Illinois Bell Telephone company group, the Chicago Biological society, the Audubon society, St. Ann's society, and groups proromted by the Chicago Park district, the C. Y. O., the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and innumerable school and church societies.

Probably the best planned and the most frequent treks are those emanating from the 31 year old Prairie club and the park district. The Prairie club is composed of approximately 900 persons of all ages and from all walks of life who manage to have at least one group of members on a trip every weekend all year around.

Take Overnight Trips.

These sojourns frequently last two days and the club has regular overnight stopping places where the hikers cook their own meals. The average distance is ten miles a day; occasionally a hardier band will cover twenty miles. The club does not confine itself to Cook county but ranges far into Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Yesterday forty-five members of the Prairie club began a weekend journey near Winamac, Ind. In the afternoon they wandered through the Jasper-Pulaski preserve, and will finish the trip by hiking through the new National park near Winamac today. O. A. Akerlund is acting as guide.

Another group of fifty hiked five miles through the Morton Arboretum, a tree nursery near Lisle yesterday, and today a third group will be striking out along the five mile dunes region between Gary and Hobart. A committee of Albert Gibson, John Sheridan, Miss Frances Hubler, William Esselmont, and Wilda Phillips led the former hike while Miss Alice Charlton supervised the latter.

At 9:15 o'clock this morning a park group will board a train at the Dearborn station for the Lake Dalecarlia outing near Creston, Ind.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 24.

Finish pruning roses this week. The weaker kinds, such as hybrid teas, should be pruned more severely than the strong ones. Prune hybrid teas, leaving only three to four strong canes, and cut these back to three or four eyes. On hybrid perpetuals leave four to five shoots, cutting these back to four or five eyes. Climbing roses are of two types, the rambler type and the large flowering group. Do not prune the rambler group until after they finish flowering. Then remove the wood which has just bloomed.

Tuesday, April 25.

If the winter flowering begonias were rested and cut back after flowering they ought now to be sending up young shoots. These may be taken off as cuttings when they are two or three inches long and inserted in sandy soil. They will make good flowering plants by fall. Other plants which have been used for winter decorations, such as geranium and Jerusalem cherry, should be pruned back at this time. If placed in a warm room and syringed regularly they will throw out fresh shoots.

Wednesday, April 26.

Begonias and other seedlings sown in boxes in March o. April should not be allowed to remain crowded. At the first signs of crowding they should be set farther apart in other boxes or potted up singly ir two and one-half inch pots. The aspidistera or cast iron plant forms a creeping root stock, and when an increase is desired take the old plant out of its pct and cut through the rhizome with a sharp knife. Any strong piece will take root if it has a few root fibers.

Thursday, April 27.

Various little jobs around the yard should be finished before planting is started in the vegetable garden. These include fixing up the lawn, putting the drive or paths into shape, and trimming the hedges. Often the appearance of the grounds can be improved by moving a few shrubs or a tree, changing the position of a path, or adding a hedge, any one of which may be done with comparatively little expense. Edging the walks and spading around the individual shrubs adds greatly to general appearances.

Friday, April 28.

Continue to plant trees and shrubs, also vines and hardy perennials. A good, hardy shrub for a tall hedge cr screen is Russian olive. The silvery leaves are attractive and the flowers are fragrant. They are followed by small, olive-like fruits. Persian lilic or common lilac makes a good hedge in a sunny location. The French hybrid lilacs far excel common lilacs in color and blooming qualities.

Saturday, April 29.

To control scab and thrips on gladioli treat the bulbs just before planting in a solution of bichloride of mercury, one part to one thousand parts of water. This is equivalent to dissolving one tablet in a pint of water. If the bichloride of mercury is in powder form use two ounces in fifteen gallons of water. To control bud blight on peonies spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture as soon as the shoots begin to show. Where phlox are subject to mildew or rust begin spraying early with Bordeaux mixture as a preventive.

Loretto Card Party.

Loretto auxiliary will hold a card party Wednesday afternoon in the high school, 6535 Stewart avenue, with the mothers of freshmen in charge. Mrs. Zazell O'Donnell will be chairman. Mrs. Clara Postal is president.

TWO BAYS BRING MORE SUNLIGHT INTO CITY HOME

Interior Also Revamped to Add Rooms.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you asked the majority of city people who live in city houses built more than two decades ago what a city house needs most, they would probably answer "sunlight." Exceptions there are to this, of course, plenty of them, but in the main the new trend seen everywhere, in small houses and large, is toward more light.

Last year Mr. and Mrs. William Lytton purchased a seven room home with two baths at 7006 Bennett avenue. They liked the site and the location and the fact that the structure was inherently sound.

So late last fall the home appeared in its new form, with eight rooms and three baths. And while most of the drastic changes took place within, with layout, finish, equipment, and decorations vividly altered, there were also some changes effected on the exterior.

Two Bays Added.

For instance, a large bay was added to the living room in front, which increased its size and light, and a second similar bay was built onto the dining room at the back, overlooking a rose garden and sculptured fountain—a garden which was the winner of a substantial prize among gardens several years ago.

J. Edwin Quinn, architect, with offices at 646 North Michigan avenue, drew the plans for the remodeled structure. He saw that the house brimmed with possibilities, and developed them in practical and artistic fashion.

Extra Room and Bath.

Among the features that stand out of practical value and definite charm are:

An improved layout which adds an extra room and bath to the first floor overall.

An altered living room, with its new octagonal bay, new fireplace with marble facing, and a convector type of radiation instead of outstanding radiators. The walls and the woodwork in both living room and dining room are painted a quiet, appealing gray-green, with the floor covered with beige toned carpeting.

Porch Becomes Kitchen.

An interesting change was made in the kitchen, since more room was needed to include a maid's room and bath. A large rear porch was appropriated to serve as the present kitchen and the original kitchen is now a breakfast room, a maid's room and bath.

Now the new kitchen has all steel cabinets and linoleum walls of canary yellow. There are Venetian blinds at the window above the double drainboard sink, with its electric disposal unit.

The bathrooms have been as completely renovated as the kitchen and other rooms. The walls are of modern structural glass. In one bath the walls and fixtures are of ivory, with a rubber tile floor in a rich terra cotta shade.

Brown and Gray Glass.

In a second bath the structural glass is of a tan shade, with light tan fixtures and a deep brown rubber floor. And a third bath has structural glass walls of pearl gray, with a Burgundy red rubber tile floor and bathroom fixtures the same shade.

Piano Recital

Miss Ruth Marguerite Lanz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Lanz, 664 West Marquette road, will present a graduate piano recital Monday evening, May 1, in the music hall of Northwestern university. The recital will mark the climax of four years of study in the Northwestern university school of music.

30 tubs of water for one washing!
"No wonder our Clothes are so clean!" said Mrs. S...
600 GALLONS

YOUR laundress probably thinks she is unusually sanitary if she changes the water four times. But here at our laundry we use over six hundred gallons of rainsoft water to every washing. We provide a separate washing formula for every type of fabric and every grade of color, with the proper temperatures, soaps and baths to conserve the fabrics.

That, as we explained to Mrs. S——, is one reason why clothes washed our way are cleaner and last longer.

BEVERLY HILLS WOMAN IS GIVEN DISTRICT OFFICE

Mrs. W. M. Rennie Made Vice President.

Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, who is completing a two year term as president of the Beverly Hills Woman's club, was elected recently as first vice president of the 3d district in the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Walter Rennie. [Marshall Studio.]

Two other women who received new offices at the annual meeting of the district are Mrs. Elmer Toohey of the Homewood Woman's club, recording secretary, and Mrs. Edward Martens of the Blue Island Woman's club, treasurer. An important highlight of the meeting was the election of the Palos Heights Woman's club of thirty-five members into the district federation.

American home chairmen of the thirty-two clubs in the district will confere with Mrs. S. J. Gottschalk, district chairman, at 1:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon in federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Mrs. Gottschalk will discuss types of programs suitable for use on American home department days.

Mrs. George Ward, district conservation chairman, has invited all district clubwomen to a field trip through local wild life sanctuaries Wednesday from 11 o'clock in the morning to 4 in the afternoon. A box lunch will be served at the home of Mrs. Ward in Palos Park. Lynn Hutchens, who is working on a wild life survey for the forest preserves, will act as a guide through McGinnis' slough during the afternoon.

Chicago Lawn Juniors.

Miss Myra Hand, chairman of the nominating committee, will present a slate of officers and chairmen for election at the annual meeting of the club tomorrow evening in Marquette park fieldhouse, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. Annual reports will be read.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

Four awards were won by members in the annual art contest conducted by the district. In the charcoal exhibit, Mrs. S. C. Kehl, former art chairman and present district health chairman, received first place. Mrs. E. T. H. Schmidt, present art chairman, won second, and Mrs. B. J. Glidewell took third place. Alice Ross Brening, also a former art chairman, and now an artist with professional awards to her credit, was given first place in the exhibit of oils.

Newly elected chairmen of the club are Mrs. J. H. Wahlen, program; Mrs. G. A. Mitchell, dean; Mrs. J. R. Thetford, social; Mrs. O. H. Bruhn, historian; Mrs. V. E. Streicher, public welfare; Mrs. A. H. Larson, room; Mrs. W. R. Ludwig, auditing; Mrs. B. F. Costello, Federation News chairman; Mrs. Dick Tweedie, courtesy chairman; Mrs. F. R. Crawford, civil service; Mrs. C. M. S. Seybold, law observance; Mrs. Peter Mikesh, art; Mrs. Andrew Eadie, American home; Mrs. William Mason, gardens; Mrs. O. H. Bruhn, motion pictures; Mrs. Marguerite Von Perbandt, public health; Mrs. I. S. Turley, literature, and Mrs. E. T. H. Schmidt, revisions.

Appointed to the budget committee are Mrs. W. D. Lear, chairman; Mrs. Thetford, Mrs. W. A. Hanson and Mrs. William Mason. Members of the auditing committee will be Mrs. Clara Postal, chairman; Mrs. J. J. Murdoch and Mrs. F. R. Crawford.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

New board members began their work in various departments on April 4. They are Mrs. Garrett McIntosh, vice president; Mrs. P. L. McGehee, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry McClung, treasurer; Mrs. William Peters, membership; Mrs. E. E. Farlow, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. T. Preston, appointments; Mrs. Roy M. Folk, program; Mrs. V. R. Walling, noon lunches; Mrs. A. H. Lassman, ways and means; Mrs. C. A. Chancellor, public welfare, and Mrs. F. C. Buel, drama.

Others are Mrs. Frank Hall, education; Mrs. H. L. Marshall, literature; Mrs. I. L. Roberts, music; Mrs. G. L. Mussfeldt, social; Mrs. W. E. Baker, press; Mrs. W. L. Long, house; Mrs. Wallace M. Brim, finance; Mrs. F. W. Welsh, division "B" sponsor; Mrs. W. E. Knox, junior; Mrs. Wesley Mitchell, American citizenship; Mrs. M. M. Ranstead, American home, and Mrs. J. D. Worden, art.

Marquette Manor Women.

The annual spring luncheon will be held Wednesday afternoon in the South Shore hotel, 7100 South Shore drive. Mrs. Robert Meehan, president, will extend greetings and will introduce Mrs. Thomas Gifford, president of the 3d district, as well as Mrs. Fred Waterman, past president of the district and present state press chairman.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

To plan a program for the club's golden jubilee year, members of the program committee will confer at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mrs. Frank Specht will be interviewed over radio station WHIP at 11:30 o'clock the same morning by Mrs. J. H. Dunn and Mrs. E. L. Moore, all members of the club. "The Woman's Court" will be the topic of the interview.

Recently Married

Miss Jean Miles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Miles, 8917 Ada street, recently became the bride of Robert Laurence Richert, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Richert, 539 West 87th street, in the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue. A reception was held in the South Side Swedish club.

ACADEMY AIDS MARK SOCIETY'S SILVER JUBILEE

A quarter of a century ago a group of twenty women organized a society for the promotion of spiritual and intellectual development as an auxiliary to the Academy of Our Lady. This Wednesday afternoon the silver anniversary of the society will be observed with a tea in the school, 95th and Throop streets. An exhibition of altar linens and vestments completed during the jubilee year under the chairmanship of Mrs. William J. Chandler, 10329 Hoyne avenue, will be shown.

Founders of the society were Mrs. Ralph Jefferson, 1948 West 101st place; Mrs. Thomas J. Claffy, 10057 Longwood drive, and Mrs. P. J. Dargan, 1641 West 99th street. The present president is Mrs. Alice Hyman.

Under the direction of Sister Mary Leo, head of the music division at the academy, a musical and dramatic program will be presented. Mrs. Emmett Fahey, 10025 Longwood drive, will be refreshment chairman, and Mrs. Harry Lemberg, 9821 Hoyne avenue, social chairman.

Play Is Feature of Church Jamboree Friday Evening

The church school of St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, will present a jamboree Friday night in the parish house. The play, "Never Trust a Man," will be the chief event. Members of the boys' choir will offer spirituals in pantomime and the graveyard scene from "Tom Sawyer." The Rev. Ralph Bonacker, assistant rector, has charge of the jamboree.

WATER CARNIVAL IS PLANNED AS AID TO CHILDREN

For the benefit of the underprivileged of the community, the seventh annual community swimming championship and water show sponsored by the Kiwanis club of Roseland will be held Friday evening in Fenger High school, 112th and Wallace streets. Preliminary heats will be run off Friday afternoon.

A special race will be held for crippled children of the Gompers school and prizes will be awarded to winners in all divisions. There will be races for boys and girls of all ages with special team trophies donated by members of the club.

The 111th Street Y. M. C. A. and Griffith natatorium will vie for club honors and a special water polo game will be staged between the Griffith natatorium and the south side all-star team, featuring I. A. C. stars. Diving exhibitions will be presented by Arlite Smith and Claudia Eckert, two of America's leading low board divers.

Entries will be accepted from all grammar schools, clubs, and organizations in the Roseland district. Racine Thompson, president of the club, will be in charge of the show, assisted by Sergt. William Robinson, sports chairman.

Singing Society Prepares for Minstrel Show Sunday

The Waldeck Singing society will give a minstrel show and ballet at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the South Side Masonic auditorium, 6400 South Green street. Music will be under the direction of Herman Korneman and Helen Korneman will direct the dancing.

NORTHERNERS READY TO BEGIN NINTH SEASON

Light Classical Music to Be Featured on W-G-N.

On May 2 the Northerners will commence their ninth year of uninterrupted broadcasting. For four years their concerts have been featured on W-G-N. They are presented every Tuesday evening from W-G-N's main audience studio before more than 500 guests.

Harry S. Walsh, known for his directorship of many choruses, has been in charge of the program almost since the beginning.

He has adhered through the years to a program of light classical music, with modern ballads, and occasionally operatic selections. Such fads as swing have not swayed the Northerners much. Themes from the pens of such composers as Sigmund Romberg, Victor Herbert, Franz Lehar, and Jerome Kern are preferred by listeners who have followed the program for years.

Why the Program Pleases.

J. M. Easton, who handles the program for the sponsor, attributes its continued success to two factors: the absence of high pressure sales continuity and to the consistent presentation of music which has a universal appeal.

"Charter members" of the Northerners who remain with the group, in addition to Mr. Walsh, are Willard Andelin, basso; George Grammer Smith, baritone; Leslie Arnold, basso; and Isobel Ebert, the organist, who is one of Chicago's leading accompanists.

Andelin started his career as a Salt Lake City choir boy at the age of 8. As a member of the Royal Opera company of Hanover, Germany, he sang leading rôles in such operas as "Faust," "Tannhäuser," "The Magic Flute," and "Madame Butterfly."

National Contest Winner.

Grammer Smith, after thirteen months in Europe during the war, was graduated with honors from the American Conservatory of Music in 1921. He won the final prize in the national contest of the National Federation of Music Clubs, and has appeared twice with the Chicago Symphony.

Arnold, a graduate of the Utica Conservatory of Music, spent a season with the Gallo English Opera company and was engaged as soloist with the New York Symphony.

Others in Octet.

Others in the Northerners octet are Wesley Summerfield, tenor; Bernard P. Van Hefte, tenor; Robert W. Kessler, tenor; Roy Zobel, tenor, and Earle Wilkie, baritone. All came to the Northerners with extensive experience in opera, choirs, symphony engagements, and radio.

Bernice Rickman joined the group as regular soloist last fall, but had appeared as guest soloist with the Northerners from time to time for three years.

The musical cast is topped off by Roy Knapp, the tympanist, who has played with the ensemble for many years. Knapp has played with the Minneapolis and Chicago Symphony orchestras.

Aragon-Trianon Orchestras Move to an Earlier Hour

The Aragon-Trianon Sunday Matinée, aired over W-G-N, moves to a new summertime hour, 5:30 to 6:30 p. m., beginning today. Dick Jurgens will be heard from 5:30 to 6; Freddy Martin the other half hour. Starting next Friday Bill Carlsen's band will be on the air from the Trianon, supplanting Martin's.

'THUMBNAIL SKETCHES OF CHICAGO' SLATED ON MELODY PAGEANT

The Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, will present a program of light classical music with the singing of Attilio Baggiore and the octet, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

For his solo, Baggiore will sing the "Prize Song," from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." Baggoire and the octet will also present "Danny Boy."

Other numbers will include Mozart's "Overture Cosi Fan Tutti," "Fetes," by Debussy; "The Swan," by Saint-Saens; "Danse Espagnole No. 2," by Manuel De Falla, and "Thumbnail Sketches of Chicago," by Philip Warner.

Themes from the pen of Emmerich Kalman will be featured on the Concert Revue, with Mr. Weber conducting the orchestra, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System, Kathryn Witwer, William Miller and the octet will sing.

Take a Country from 1 to 10

Budd Hulick watches Shirley Booth and Charlie Cantor (right) point to a strange spot on the globe and command "Guess where." Budd apparently can't tell who owns the country, or even what it is. It's all part of the new quiz program, "Guess Where," aired over W-G-N-Mutual at 7 p. m. Fridays.

'PETER QUILL' BATTLES SPIES IN S. AMERICA

"Peter Quill," the dramatic show depicting the fight against the Red Circle, moves to South America where foreign spies attempt to disrupt the signing of a trade treaty this week. The program will be heard from 8 to 8:30 p. m. Friday on W-G-N and the Mutual system.

Sonya and Raclov, portrayed by Irene Lorraine and Leslie Speer, bribe a government official, Col. Escobar, played by Henry Nathan, to dissuade his president from signing an important treaty with the United States. Capt. Dorn [Ken Griffin], who is head of the America commission, and Peter Quill [Hugh Studebaker] match their wits with the spies.

Others who will take parts in the show are Alice Hill, as Secret Agent Carson; Doug Hope and Clare Baum. The drama will be presented in the audience studio of W-G-N under the direction of Blair Walliser.

POPULAR TUNES TO BE FEATURED ON STOKES HOURS

Two W-G-N Programs Are Given New Form.

Two programs conducted by Harold Stokes on W-G-N, "On a Sunday Afternoon" and "Your Sunday Date" have been revamped as half hour presentations of popular tunes.

"On a Sunday Afternoon," aired at 2 p. m. today will feature singing by the Four Shades of Blue and the Grenadiers. The program will include "Variety Is the Spice of Life," to be sung by the Grenadiers; and "Among Those Sailing," "Thou Swell," "Marinella" and "You Know," by the orchestra.

"Your Sunday Date" at 8 p. m. will feature Edna Odell, Lawrence Salerno and the music of the W-G-N dance orchestra. Miss Odell will sing "You've Got Me Crying Again," and "You're So Desirable"; Salerno, "Stout Hearted Men" and "Our Love." The orchestra will feature a swing arrangement of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Flowers That Bloom in the Spring."

The Music Counter with Mr. Stokes, Miss Odell, and Three Men and a Maid, will present 45 minutes of hit tunes from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N Mutual.

Miss O'Dell will do "Two Against One" and "There's a Lull in My Life." The Grenadiers will sing "Gloriana," and Three Men and a Maid will do the new novelty number, "Fidgety Joe."

The Memory Lane medley will include "I Want a Girl," "Beautiful Ohio," and "There's a Girl in the Heart of Maryland."

Irons that Smooth Damp tissue paper without tearing
WE ARE always particularly pleased to have a visit from a home manager who is "fussy" about her ironing. We like to show her how we handle the ironing, and to hear her surprised exclamation, "Why this work is beautifully done!"
We have special equipment and methods for ironing even the most delicate articles. The metal portions are steam heated; because steam heated metal will not scorch. And these ironers are so delicate they will smooth damp tissue paper without tearing!

Don't Be Fat!
IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—
First..eat sensibly, which means you avoid overeating. Second..mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid overeating, and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.
Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

Constipation Relief That Also Pepsin-izes Stomach
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-relief, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today! (Adv.)

These three south and southwest side boys are rehearsing for the semi-finals tomorrow and Tuesday of the first annual Chicago Tribune kite-flying contest. The finals will be held at Grant park Saturday, May 6. Left to right, Theodore Gaidelis, 14 years old; Frank Vicks, 15 years old, and Andrew Felank, 16 years old. The boys will represent Davis Square park in this week's sectional tournament.

KITES TO SWEEP SKIES OVER CITY PARKS THIS WEEK

1,500 Entrants Advance to Semi-Finals.

More than 1,500 winners of local park kite contests will compete tomorrow and Tuesday in the sectional semi-finals of the first annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE kite flying contest. Six area contests will be held, each representative of a section of the city. All are scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Tomorrow there will be three tournaments for south, west, and northwest side contestants. They will be held at Gompers park, 4224 Foster avenue; Tuley park, 90th street and St. Lawrence avenue, and Douglas park, 18th street and Sacramento avenue. Tuesday's contests will be held at Washington park, 55th street and South Parkway; Waveland park, east of the Outer drive just south of Wilson avenue, and Riis park, Wrightwood and Mead avenues.

Fly Kites from Lanes.

The tournament grounds at each park will be ruled off into twenty foot lanes. Contestants will be given seventy-five yards of string and, at a signal from the judges, they will fly their kites from their individual lanes. Contestants will be judged on the flying performances of their kites.

There will be eight events, artistic, novelty, handwinding, mechanical winding, solo box kites, messenger sending, largest kites, and smallest kites. Ten winners will be chosen from the first six events in each area. One winner will be selected from the last two events in each area.

The contests, held in coöperation with the park district, will be judged by park directors and field supervisors. F. E. Kardes, craft technician for the park district, is general supervisor of the tournament.

Adults Also to Compete.

Each of the contestants will have made his or her kite. During the last few weeks craft rooms at local park fieldhouses have taken on an aspect of kite factories, with the park district supplying materials, plans, and expert instructors. Contestants will represent seventy-nine fieldhouses in the city and will include many suburbanites. Grown men and women, as well as girls and boys, will compete in the tournament.

In the event of rain or inclement weather the semi-finals will be deferred two days. If the contest tomorrow is called off, it will be held Wednesday and if the Tuesday meet is postponed it will be held Thursday.

From the semi-finals will emerge 372 winners. They will be awarded park district ribbons and will compete in the finals Saturday, May 6, at Grant park, when eight grand prize winners will be selected. These winners will be awarded trophy cups donated by THE TRIBUNE.

The semi-finals to be held tomorrow afternoon at Tuley park, 90th street and St. Lawrence avenue, will be directed by Henry Graef, contest supervisor of area 1.

William Collins, area 2 contest director, will be in charge of Tuesday's south and southwest side tournament at Washington park, 55th street and South Parkway. John Rappold will serve as assistant director at both meets.

Wins on Personality

Miss Patricia Pechnick, student at Argo Community High school, placed first recently in the high school personality contest held at Waukegan. She will compete May 19 and 20, as will another Argo student, Miss Ursual Guckel, who won second place, in the national personality contest to be held in Northwestern university.

R. O. T. C. LEADER PLANNING TO BE PLANE MECHANIC

"Windy" is what they call Adolph Leberes at Tilden Tech; it was suggested by his extreme interest in things aeronautical. At present he is cadet commander of the Tilden R. O. T. C. regiment, but he already has an eye on the future, imagining himself a licensed airplane mechanic. Next year Adolph would like to enroll at a California air school, but as second choice he will be content to become an apprentice mefield, Illinois.

Adolph Leberes.

Adolph lives at 7252 South Claremont avenue. He will be leaving the following record when he is graduated in June: Supervisor of ushers, military police and fire guards; captain of the exhibition drill team; instructor in the saber school, member of the 1937 championship drill squad, and reporter on the school paper. He owns a Tribune medal, a picked squad medal, and a recruiting medal.

Ever since fifth grade he has been concerned with aircraft motors and outside of school his idea of relaxing is to tear an engine apart and put it together again. The son of a man who fought in the Russian, Lithuanian, and United States armies, he is a student of chemistry, civics, and history and reads periodicals for articles on foreign affairs.

Showboat Athletic Club to Have Cabaret Party

The sixth annual cabaret party and dance of the Showboat Athletic club will be held Saturday evening in the old 7th regiment armory, 34th street and Wentworth avenue. More than 600 persons are expected to attend. Proceeds will be used to carry on the athletic and philanthropic activities of the organization.

Movies of Bird Life.

Robert Smart of the Jackson park sanctuary will present colored moving pictures on bird life for the Garden Club of the South Shore at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, 2043 East 72d place. Mrs. J. S. Reid Jr., will be the assisting hostess.

DRESS PARADE IS PLANNED AT JUNIOR ACADEMY

A dress parade will be held at 1 o'clock today at Oakwood boulevard and Ellis avenue by cadets of the Junior Military academy, the city's only military academy for small boys, at 3952 Ellis avenue.

The students staged the "Coon Valley Minstrels" Friday and Saturday evenings under the direction of Lieut. Roger Bishton, music instructor. The show was in the form of a pseudo-radio broadcast from station "F U N."

End men were Dick Isenberg, Bob Schnepp, Bill Warshaw, Jim Nohelty, George Demmie, and Howard Dessent. Highlight of the program was a monolog and song by Dino Sarno.

THE GUMPS
MAGDA MALLIS, BEAUTIFUL FOREIGN SPY, AND HER CONFEDERATES HAVE BEEN DETAILED BY THEIR GOVERNMENT TO STEAL THE PLANS OF THE GUMP AERIAL TORPEDO FROM UNCLE BIM - AFTER SEVERAL UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTS, MAGDA FINALLY STEALS A SET OF BLUEPRINTS FROM BIM - SHE AND HER GANG JUBILANTLY DISPATCH THEM TO THEIR HOMELAND -
GUS EDSON
A CODE MESSAGE FROM OUR CHIEF!!
WONDERFUL! OUR MISSION EES NOW ENDED!!
HERE'S THE CODE BOOK, LUCIEN - QUEEK! I CAN'T WAIT TO READ THE GOOD NEWS!
WH-! THEES EES IMPOSSIBLE! YOU LEETLE FOOL!!
INK
GREAT HEAVENS, ANTEN! W-WHAT IS IT? HAVE YOU GONE CRAZEE?
WE ARE THE LAUGHING STOCK OF THE ENTIRE HOMELAND - AND ALL BECAUSE OF YOU! THOSE BLUE PRINTS! YOU LIE AND SAY YOU TOOK ZEM FROM GUMP!
BUT I DID! I SWEAR EET!!
BAH! THOSE BLUE-PRINTS WERE PLANS FOR A MOUSE TRAP!
WHAT?
PLEASE - HAVE PATIENCE - GIVE ME ANOTHER CHANCE --
DOES ZIS GUMP SUSPECT YOU?
NO, OF COURSE NOT - HE EES A STUPID, CHIVALROUS OLD - HOW THEY SAY - DOPE!
BUT WOULD MAGDA MALLIS BE SO SURE OF HERSELF IF SHE COULD LOOK IN ON BIM RIGHT NOW?
HM - THAT YOUNG LADY - THE LAST PERSON ONE WOULD SUSPECT - SHE SORT OF SINGLED ME OUT FOR HER ATTENTIONS - WHY SHOULD SHE BE SO INTERESTED IN AN OLER - MATURE MAN?
- MY HOTEL SUITE WAS LOOTED EACH TIME I WAS OUT WITH HER - HOTEL DIPLOMAT
- AND THOSE BLUE-PRINTS OF THE MOUSE TRAP THAT I WAS GOING TO USE AS A DECOY - I FOUND THEM MISSING AS SOON AS I LEFT HER -
I HAVE SOMETHING TO TELL YOU THAT MAY PROVE TO BE OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE! ARE WE ALONE, SIR?
YES, MR. GUMP - PROCEED -

"TEA BRINGS ME BACK QUICK"

says DONALD BUDGE, TENNIS SENSATION

Don, a great tea fan, is first player in tennis history to win the four major titles in a single year —champion of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Australia

IT'S AS EASY AS A-B-C TO GET A REALLY GOOD CUP OF TEA

A. Always use bubbling boiling water and pour it on the TEA.

B. Use 1 teaspoonful per cup, plus one for the pot.

C. Steep to any strength you prefer. (Most people who use cream or milk choose a 5-minute brew.)

GOOD TEA COMES FROM

India — BLACK TEA — Ceylon — Java-Sumatra — ORANGE PEKOE-PEKOE

These good black teas are especially suited to the American taste. For economy and full enjoyment, buy quality tea.

"HOUR AFTER HOUR I STUMBLED ON"

SAYS Merle Oberon STAR OF THE SAMUEL GOLDWYN PRODUCTION Wuthering Heights

"IT WAS AWFUL!" says Merle Oberon, "stumbling up and down those craggy hills hour after hour! Believe me, we worked hard to give you the thrills in 'Wuthering Heights.' It was hard, exhausting work. That takes energy—and plenty of it."

YOU'D NEVER BELIEVE petite Miss Oberon would have the stamina and energy to stand up under this grueling work. "But I have," she says, "because I'm very careful to eat energy-giving foods that build up my 'energy reserve' to carry me through my work!"

BUT MAKING MOVIES isn't the only work that uses up energy. Cooking, ironing, minding the children and general housework are equally exhausting. You, too, must eat the proper foods. You must build up "energy reserve" so that you can feel fresh and full of life when your work is done.

ONE OF THE BEST energy-giving foods, doctors agree, is fresh, wholesome bread. Eat Slo-Baked Wonder Bread. Made of specially selected, costly ingredients, it gives you food-energy you need. Wonder Bread is slo-baked to make it easily digestible . . . to help you and your family build up "energy reserve" quickly and easily.

ONLY ONE BREAD IS BEST SAY 474,344 WOMEN WHO HAVE COMPARED THEM ALL

READ this amazing record! To date, over half a million women all over America have made the famous "Compare All" Test for bread quality in their food stores.

By actual count, 525,027 women have compared all good breads for flavor, aroma and texture and 9 out of every 10 have chosen Wonder Bread as best!

By this test, women of America have proved 9 to 1, that Wonder Bread is the one best bread!

But don't take our word for it. Prove it to yourself! Discover Wonder Bread's fine "wheaty" flavor . . . its smooth, soft texture . . . its appetizing aroma!

Get a loaf of Slo-Baked Wonder Bread today. It is rich in the "energy reserve" you and your whole family need! And remember, the one best bread—Wonder Bread—costs no more than the second best!

CONTINENTAL BAKING CO., INC.

Tune in! "PRETTY KITTY KELLY" The Thrill Show Of The Air Monday through Friday WBBM, 9:00 A. M., C.S.T.

Hostess Cup Cakes are rich, luscious devil's food—deeply frosted with creamy chocolate or vanilla—and chock-full of quick energy! How delicious in lunch boxes—for quick desserts or between-meal snacks!

INSTRUCTION.

The Money You'll Make In Beauty Culture DEPENDS

—on your training and on your first position.

WHY does Burnham's always have the most students? Remember the majority of Burnham students enroll only after studying the situation very carefully and usually only after consulting with beauty shop owners. Then they enroll because they feel that BURNHAM TRAINING and BURNHAM BACKING will mean bigger pay from the start.

Don't Fail to Learn About the Exclusive Advantages That Burnham's Offers You.

You owe it to yourself to learn why Burnham's can place graduates in the better shops from the very start—why we have the "inside track" with hundreds of shops. You owe it to yourself to learn about Burnham Training. It turns out such expert operators that shop owners demand and wait for Burnham trained operators. This demand enables us to place graduates in choice spots where they ca[n] earn more and which give them prestige. For the sake of the finest training and of getting started right, learn how much more Burnham's can give you.

Only $5.00 Enrolls You
Money-Making Kit Without Extra Cost.

Make more out of Beauty Culture from the very start. Train for one of the smartest shops from the very start. Take advantage of Burnham prestige and Burnham's 67 years of knowing how to teach. By acting this week you qualify for $30.00 of money-making beauty tools. Visit us any week day or any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday evening or phone or write for literature.

Salesmen.

SALESMEN

Looking for a connection with a highly rated, successful company? A real opportunity for big earnings and a permanent future? That is exactly what we have to offer 2 or 3 men who can qualify.

Manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, specialty organizations, and all other firms who employ salesmen are prospects for the most unusual and outstanding sales building program that has ever been developed in the history of business. Thousands of America's finest organizations are already using this plan with great success.

To qualify, a man must be a thoroughly seasoned salesman between the ages of 32 and 50 years. Experienced in the sales of intangibles, such as Business Services, advertising, etc., where "the idea" is sold rather than the product.

Territories to be filled include parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Michigan.

A thorough training assures men selected opportunity for far above average earnings on a very liberal commission and bonus arrangement.

By phoning L. J. Ingram, Randolph 7517 Monday and Tuesday a private personal interview will be arranged. Out of town applicants, Address S P 451, Tribune.

An established agency specializing in bank advertising requires a representative for the middle west. Experience in trust solicitation will be helpful but ability to sell advertising ideas is essential. Drawing account against commission. Please give complete details of past experience in first letter, including telephone number. A representative will be in Chicago to interview selected applicants. Address C X 18, Tribune.

Maybe This Is That BETTER JOB You Are Looking For.

Perhaps you will not make $100 a week but you should make $50 or more comm. Our salesmen are successful and permanent. Direct selling experience and car helpful. Thorough training in educational selling. The Grolier Society, Inc., 307 N. Michigan.

SALESMAN $25 A WEEK SALARY AND GOOD COMMISSION

to book special motion picture with civic and church organizations. Good personality. Fluent talker, have car; steady employment; good opportunity. Apply by mail immediately. Universal Producing Co., Fairfield, Ia., Dept. BT.

DO YOU WANT

a connection that gives steady employment and reliable income? Are you capable of representing an estab. reputable firm? Can you meet the public with an honest worth while service? Have you any ambition for your future? If your answer is "yes" we may be able to place you in our furn. bus. Salary and comm. Call 10 to 4 Monday. See Mr. Henry, 2237 W. Pershing-rd.

A SALARIED JOB

Is open for a competent man thoroly expd. in supervising direct-to-consumer salesmen in the field. Must own a 5 passenger auto and be able to show record of reasonable success. All applications confidential. Furniture. Phone after 10:30 a. m., Monday, for appointment.

We Haven't Missed a Thing

We made it a point to find out just what the average woman wanted in her favorite apartment as well as what was best and newest in appointments.

All the[s]e ideas were incorporated in these 4, 5, and 6 room units, complete with Universal fully insulated stoves with heat control. Kohler double drainboard cabinet sinks, G. E. refrig., Tiltex bath walls, shower, and modern fixtures. Add to this the finest decorating available with a consideration for your chosen color schemes, and you have the ideal apartment home.

Near Oak Park and Fenwick schools, good shopping and transportation.

WHY

HAVE 370 FAMILIES
BOUGHT THEIR HOMESITES
IN PALOS HEIGHTS?

WHY

HAVE 134 FAMILIES
BUILT THEIR HOMES IN PALOS HEIGHTS?

BECAUSE:

1. LOCATION BEAUTIFUL . . . Square mile of year around loveliness; quiet, healthful environs of gently rolling PALOS HILLS.
2. SPACIOUS HOMESITES . . . Each 120x120 — — — large as FOUR CITY LOTS.
3. PROTECTIVE RESTRICTIONS . . . Carefully zoned; Expertly planned; Adequately restricted. STRICTLY SAFEGUARDED.
4. LOW TAXES . . . No costly Politics — — in PALOS HEIGHTS.
5. GOOD NEIGHBORS . . . Ideal Surroundings for Children; EXCELLENT SCHOOL.
6. BIG SAVINGS . . . Free Architectural Service; Homes of distinctive design; Moderate prices—made possible by large scale development and vast purchasing power. MORE VALUE FOR LESS MONEY.
7. NEW DISTRICT . . . No old buildings. Development large enough to establish its own character. Country comforts; CITY CONVENIENCES.
8. BETTER ENVIRONMENT . . . Far better than any other New Community Development — — — in METROPOLITAN CHICAGO.

We Challenge Comparison!

Do not confuse this Development with other so-called "developments" represented to be of similar character. This is in a class by itself. You must inspect it personally to understand the difference — — in VALUE, CHARACTER, and QUALITY.

FOUR HOMES NOW OPEN FOR INSPECTION.

4, 5, and 6 rooms, $4,800 to $7,300; small down payment; monthly terms — — less than rent.

Each of the above houses are as near perfect, as our architectural dept. could design them. Each is distinctly different, and justifies your inspection, if you have in mind the purchase of a new home, either in Scarsdale or elsewhere.

It is not by mere chance that so many fine families have located here. It is by careful comparison with other high class communities that they have selected SCARSDALE as the ideal environment in which they would like to live.

By any test you like—location—natural beauty—charm of the home—quality of construction—investment value—you will find that the houses here measure up to the highest standards.

Prices and terms are within the reach of the family who have been paying from $75 to $125 a month rent.

We will assume your lease even if you have just signed a new one.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Freedom for Lambs

THE ewes and lambs on the Tribune Du Page county farm are going to enjoy a lot of freedom within a few days. The flockmaster has decided that he will let the animals out of the sheep barn and the adjacent yards and put them in the wooded pastures. He was saying this week that it was rather crowded around the sheep barn with 81 spring lambs frolicking all over the place. Moreover, the sheep now can begin to pick up a little food in the pasture even though the cool, rainy weather hasn't done a great deal for the 1939 crop of grass.

As far as Cindy, the black cocker spaniel puppy which lives close to the sheep barn, is concerned the ewes and lambs can move into the woodland pastures any time. Cindy is through with them. Until this week the dog enjoyed going into the sheep barn with the flockmaster and inspecting all the bleating little lambs.

Pup Gets a Lesson.

The ewes and their offspring gradually got used to this inquisitive pup and didn't mind her at all. This week relations between the sheep and the pup took on a decidedly different tone. Cindy was playing around in the barn when she bumped a ewe that had a newly born lamb. Quick as a flash the touchy old ewe turned around, lowered her head, and charged toward the cocker pup. Cindy got the idea at once. She sprinted across the sheep barn and outside into the yard in nothing flat, hotly pursued by the charging ewe. Since that occurrence the cocker pup wisely declines all invitations to go into the barn among the sheep. She comes to the door, peeks through, and then retreats.

The wire traps which are on the farm for the purpose of catching wild birds [so that they may be banded and released] again were successful this week in bagging more specimens, all of which were given little aluminum tags bearing numbers. These were placed on the birds' legs. Juncos were the best customers. Three were trapped one morning this week. A song sparrow that was trapped and banded on April 5 came back to the traps for a repeat visit. This bird didn't mind being penned up for a few hours, then being handled and given a band, for it slipped into a trap again to eat a big meal of grain before it was examined and released.

A Pugnacious Cardinal.

A male cardinal, doubtless a permanent resident on the farm, since we have them around all winter, also was trapped and banded this week. Of all the pugnacious birds that we have caught, this one easily won the blue ribbon. He wasn't at all intimidated when it came time to pick him up and put a band on his leg. This is the third cardinal taken in the farm traps since last fall. Two female birds were banded in August, both of which returned to the banding station several times. They were quite well behaved birds compared with the pugnacious male which was caught this week.

A turkey hen, the one that slipped out of the barnyard last spring and built a nest alongside a gravel road that runs through the farm, is forcing the flockmaster to be extra vigilant this season. Naturally he doesn't want this hen to nest in such a dangerous location this season, so he is obliged to watch her constantly and keep her in the barnyard. All gates are being kept closed in order to keep this particular hen under control. Some of the other turkeys already have left the barnyard to hunt for nesting sites in the woods.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

WE HAVE JUST SETTLED A $45,000 bond issue on an apartment building which had been in and out of the courts for the last 8 years. We settled it by means of a 15 year mortgage of $20,000, after working on it for 1 year, and solving many hard mortgage problems. We are proud of our accomplishment and are glad that its over. Mind you! We performed no wonders, but we make this claim: No bank Insurance company, or other mortgage house in Chicago was willing to tackle this case. We did tackle it and by keeping our lawyers at it constantly and by persistent and skillful negotiations we were instrumental in settling this mess to the satisfaction of the Court, Masters in Chancery, Bondholders' committee, Trustees, Managers and Lien Holders, and a variety of lawyers fighting for these various interests.

We make top loans up to 20 years on homes 2-4 flats—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old, handle our own Bank, Insurance and Building and Loan funds and place 80 to 90% FHA loans. Also large Apartment Store Garage and Factory buildings. On good FHA loans over $5,000 no commission at all; other loans, low charges.

Packards—
See us today and every day for Packard Bargains. 32 cars in stock in all models, 6's, 8's, and 12 cylinders among these 32 are some real outstanding values that would be hard to equal elsewhere. For instance at EVANSTON STORE is a 12 cylinder 1937 model 1506 club sedan that cost new about $4,200 just a little over 2 years ago and you can buy it today for $1,245. But best of all it looks almost as new as the day it was delivered. Here is a list of Packards available:
4-115's. 14 Super 8's.
12-120's. 2 12 cylinders.

Tailored Tweeds Sharing Daytime Honors with the Colorful Suedes

By RHEA SEEGER

TOWN and country clothes so versatile that each or any outfit can be worn for any occasion during the daytime hours of town or country living are peculiarly American fashions, almost an American costume or uniform. Designed for casual wear, they are models featuring not only good color and color combines but effective patterns, weaves, and mixtures as well. Soft tweeds, tailored beautifully, seem or look as smart for a day in the suburbs as for a shopping trip to town. Running such classic tweeds a good race for popularity are the plumskin suedes in clear, strong color.

Keeping even popularity records with these tweeds are the patterned suits, ensembles in novelty silks, and the combinations of youthfully cut silk print dress and a soft, contrastingly colored wool coat. This twosome separates painlessly to go with other dresses and coats and really earns a reputation as the best sort of a clothes buy known to shoppers and careful budget watchers. The new combines go on forever. Each season you decide the peak has been reached in originality. Then a new spring and even more unusual contrasts appear to take your money.

Small, precise checks have staged one of the biggest successes on record. From sleek tailored suits of wool, young looking coats, fashioned to look like a flare-skirted dress, and three-piece ensembles, this shepherd check wave goes merrily forward. There's something perennially fresh, crisp, and gay about this black-and-white pattern. It's a clean, well groomed look tremendously effective not only in daytime clothes but for prim little dance and dinner dresses. Besides the black-and-white mix-up you can have the same stuff in blue and white, and brown and white, and in wool, linen, silk, and cotton.

Twin or sister materials—that is, for instance, a silk crêpe print matched exactly in design and color to a companion sheer—make ideal outfits for daytime wear. All small prints and all manner of flattering colors and contrasts are available. Long, loose, boxy coats, fitted princess line coats, short jackets, swaggers, and the inevitable boleros are used with dresses to make the perfect summer or warm weather costume for the appreciative shoppers. And there is scarcely a well planned travel wardrobe without one of these superbly designed companion prints. Sometimes the coat is of the print, the dress of the sheer, while more summery affairs come with the dress of the print and the coat of the sheer.

Colors are exceptionally interesting—spring wine with oyster white printed designs, black with French pink, navy with raspberry, brown with powder blue, and so on. The current selections are limitless. High-colored costume accessories and a feminine flowered hat contrast them for warm spring weather, and snowy white accessories cool them for hot summer days.

Suede suits or costumes used to be prohibitive. Now the makers have managed to present them with very modest price tags.

Five modestly priced and high-fashion outfits for town and country wear have been sketched, all from one outstandingly smart collection.

Sex Education Must Be More than Evasions

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

The birds and bees and flowers . . . they're all right as far as they go.

But you can't pass it off with the birds and bees and flowers. You can't stop there.

For several reasons. One is that the children won't stop there. Their questions go right on. You might as well make up your mind to go on with them.

Perhaps you think they can't take it, and I mean that in both the slang sense and literally too. But they can take it.

Just go along with them. Answer their questions, no matter where they lead. Even when they lead up to that point at which most grown-ups balk—and if they've gotten this clear where the lower animals are concerned [especially mammals], they usually take the human aspect for granted.

If you can just get yourself into a natural frame of mind about this amazing, elemental [which, after all, means natural] fact, the origin of life, you can go right along where the children's questions lead.

When you do, two of their responses probably will surprise and delight you. One is the simple way in which they accept knowledge that you have pondered over giving. The other is their spiritual and esthetic response to the miracle of birth.

Some one has said that farm children learn in an ideal way about reproduction. This is true, provided even they are not faced with the taboos on the human aspects of sex and birth.

The naturalist, the child who is deeply concerned with the plant and animal world, usually has enough of the scientist in him so that he is off to a better start than the farm child, being perhaps more detached.

But your child need be neither a farm child nor a naturalist nor a scientist to acquire easily and naturally and gradually the whole picture of human life, and sex and reproduction as part of it.

To go back:

I'm not saying that the "birds and bees and flowers" aren't an interesting part of this picture, but simply that they aren't all of it. I'm not saying that fuzzy kittens with pointed tails, and nuzzling puppies, and wabbly legged fawns don't serve as further examples of nature's ways.

They do. But they're only part of the picture. You must be ready to go on and finish what you've begun in your attempt to inform them, while children are young. Later, when they are in or near adolescence, you must be sure that they receive more mature and definite information for the sake of their characters, for the idealism that is a vital part of love and life, and for their health and actual protection, which finally sums up to their present and eventual happiness.

For some time I have known about a simply printed little booklet which I prize because of four qualities. They are sincerity, depth, humor, and delightful style. As a perfect sample of how a grown person can answer a child's questions on the origin of life, I want to reprint parts of it for you today. Unfortunately I have not space for all.

The writer, who calls himself the Iconoclast [and you'll see why] and who has been fishing, enters into a discussion which has been going on as he comes from the lake with a most satisfactory catch of fish. We'll start there.

"I never could understand," interposed the Iconoclast, "why there should be all this intense and even hysterical 'delicacy' about the teaching of sex truth to children. You tell your boys and girls about their teeth and ears and eyes. You make no secret of their digestion, or of the operation of heart and lungs. You even teach these things to them together in school. But, ye gods and little fishes! The minute you come to these most important functions of all, you stick your heads in the sand, like ostriches, and act as if it were something to be ashamed of. If I had my way——"

"Surely," gasped the Neighbor, "you would not teach such things in public!"

"Well, I don't know. As far as I am concerned, I would teach about sex just as I would teach about chemistry or spelling. But I understand well enough that I am a barbarian. So I take it from your own point of view, and say that I don't care when or how you teach your little boy or your little girl about this thing if you only tell it frankly, the plain, ordinary truth, in a plain, ordinary, and perfectly shameless way."

After further frank give and take, the Iconoclast departs to clean his fish, where he is joined by the little daughter, whom he calls Princess, of one of the women in the party.

Intensely interested, she watches him as he cleans the fish. And as the roe appears, she questions and receives clear answers; as the silvery milt is disclosed, more questions and answers come along. Then she goes further:

"I s'pose there are father birds and mother birds?"

"O, yes."

"Do the father birds have milt too?"

The Iconoclast straightened up and rubbed the hinge in his back. Cleaning fish is weary work, when you have to stoop so far. He looked away at the wooded hills across the lake.

"I asked you a question. It isn't polite not to answer. Do father birds have milt?"

He looked down into the big, clear eyes of the eager little face under the blowing curls.

"Yes, father birds have milt."

"And after the mother bird lays her eggs in the nest she goes away and lets the father bird come in to put the milt on them. Of course, if he didn't, the eggs wouldn't hatch." She said this with an air of conviction.

• • •

Then the Iconoclast decided something once for all. He stooped over the fish cleaning again, and said:

"It isn't quite like that with birds. The father bird puts the milt on the egg before the mother bird lays it."

"But I don't see. O, do you mean while it is in the mother bird's body?"

"Just so."

Let us skip from the necessity of space limitations, and go on:

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

How well are you prepared for those really hot days at the end of spring, and for the summer to come? These two patterns offer possibilities you should not overlook for the sake of your wardrobe's smartness and your own comfort.

At the left, a simple and dressy frock that adapts itself beautifully to sheers and soft crêpes. The neckline is square, the shoulders shirred, the sleeves puffed, and the waistline soft. The skirt is flared, and there is a sash extending from either side of the slenderizing center panel. The neckline and sleeves are given plaiting or ruffling for dainty finish.

The other style is more tailored. Sketched are two versions you are certain to like. From nine to five, or from nine to nine, if no formal occasion is planned for your day, you can wear this costume every minute and be smart and look as if you had just stepped away from your dressing table. The dress has many gores for flare and beautiful fit at the hips. The design at the left gives the waist portion a scalloped closing and V neckline bound with the same print that fashions the hip length jacket. Conversely, the jacket is trimmed with the material of the dress. If you prefer a simple one piece dress without coat, make it as suggested at the right.

Style No. 3057 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material, with 1½ yards of ruffling.

Style No. 2877 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for the dress and facing of jacket, with 2 yards of 39 inch fabric for the jacket. The separate dress requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material. Each pattern costs 10 cents.

May Is Month of Breakfasts, Too, It Seems

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing. When writing for information, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Some May breakfasts are held early in the morning. Menus for these are quite simple, and wholly breakfastlike, even though the group may be large enough to constitute a real party. Other May breakfasts are held late in the morning, and these may be quite elaborate of menu, resembling luncheon more than breakfast.

Church and club groups holding May morning breakfasts may like the first two menus in this group of three. The third menu is suitable for a more festive occasion, a class breakfast, or a wedding. Food, colorful and springlike, is provided in abundance and variety.

MAY BREAKFASTS.

I.

Grape and Orange Juice Cocktail
Eggs Baked in Ham or Bacon Nests [in muffin pans]
Grilled Tomatoes
Oatmeal Muffins
Strawberry Jam
Coffee

II.

Pineapple au Naturel
Sausage Pats with Baked Bananas
Coffee Cake
Coffee

III.

CLASS BREAKFAST OR WEDDING BREAKFAST
Strawberries and Avocado Balls in Cantaloupe Ring
Cheese Straws
Chicken Croquettes with Green Pea Sauce
Flower-Petal Beets in Orange Dressing
Asparagus Tips on Romaine, French Dressing
Tiny Hot Buttered Rolls
FOR WEDDING: White Layer Wedding Cake [to serve]
Ice Cream Molded in Wedding Bell Shapes
White Fruit Cake [to take home]
FOR SCHOOL GROUP: Pineapple Ice with Mint Sauce and Cookies, Demi Tasse
Pastel Mints Salted Pecans

Oatmeal Muffins

[9 dozen, medium]

1½ cups [12 ounces] sugar
2 tablespoons salt
½ cup baking powder
2¾ quarts [2¾ pounds] bread flour
3 quarts [2 pounds] oatmeal
2 cups [1 pound] eggs
2 quarts milk
2 cups [1 pound] hydrogenated shortening

Sift sugar, salt, baking powder and flour together two or three times. Add oatmeal and mix. Combine beaten eggs and milk. Melt shortening. Add liquid to dry ingredients. Then add melted fat. Mix just enough to combine. The batter should have a rough appearance. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake at 400 degrees, hot oven, for 25 to 30 minutes.

Coffee Cake

[3 pans, 9 by 14 inches, 120 pieces]

CAKE MIXTURE

3¾ quarts [3¾ pounds] flour
5⅓ tablespoons [2 ounces] baking powder
2 teaspoons salt
2½ cups hydrogenated shortening
4 cups [2 pounds] sugar
1½ cups [12 ounces] eggs
1½ quarts milk

TOPPING MIXTURE

1½ cups butter [¾ pound]
3 cups [1½ pounds] sugar
1½ cups [6 ounces] chopped walnuts
3 teaspoons cinnamon

Have all ingredients at room temperature. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, two or three times. Put fat into mixing bowl and cream for 10 minutes on second speed. Add sugar gradually and cream for 10 minutes longer. Beat eggs and add to sugar and fat mixture. Beat on second speed for 2 minutes. Add all of flour and all of milk. Mix on first speed for 2½ minutes, on second for 10 seconds. Spread in greased baking pans, 9 by 14 inches. Cover with topping mixture.

Cream butter, sugar and cinnamon for topping, add chopped nuts and mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on the coffee cake and spread out quickly with spatula, to a fourth inch in thickness. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes.

Cut each panful into 40 pieces, dividing into eight parts one way and five the other.

It isn't necessary to use a mixer for this coffee cake. The standard cake mixing method may be used.

Chicken Croquettes

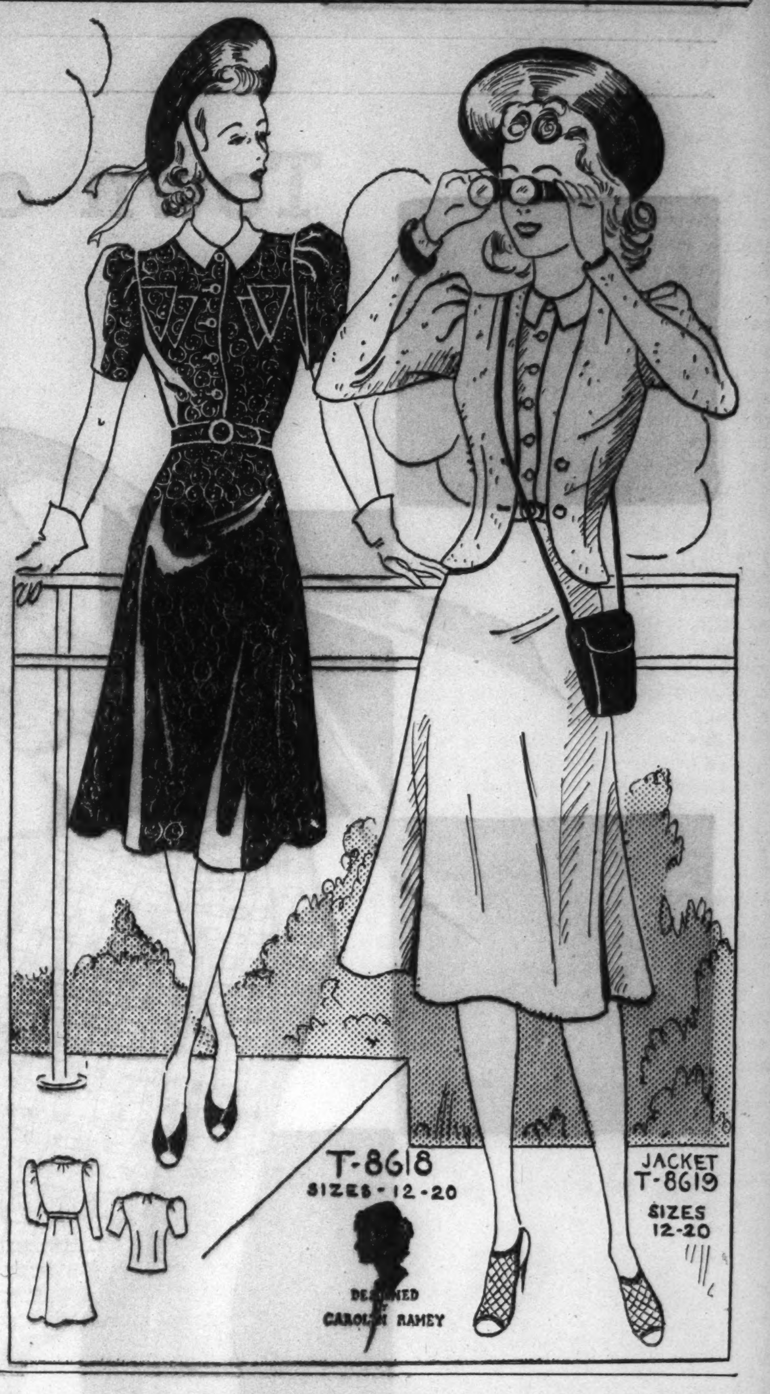
[Serves 50, 2 to a serving]

3 cups [1½ pounds] rice
3 quarts chicken stock
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ cup salt
2 tablespoons onion juice
1 cup fat
1½ cups flour
1 quart chicken stock [for white sauce]
2 quarts cubed chicken
2 quarts [1½ pounds] fine bread crumbs
2 cups [1 pound] eggs
2 cups milk

Add rice with chopped parsley, lemon juice and seasonings to chicken stock and cook until rice is done. Make a thick white sauce from fat, flour and the additional quart of chicken stock. When sauce is cool, combine with cooked rice and finely cubed chicken. Chill. Shape the mixture into croquettes, dip into sifted crumbs, then into combined eggs and milk and again into crumbs. Fry until golden brown in deep fat heated to 375 degrees. Cook about 5 minutes. Serve croquettes hot with green pea sauce made by adding cooked peas to a medium white sauce.

Flower-petal beets mentioned in menu III. are thinly sliced beets cut with a scalloped cookie cutter and prepared with orange sauce.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

Usually, no matter where one journeys, there is a swain waiting in the train shed or the airport to give you a welcome. That will be a rousing welcome for you if the frock you wear strikes the eye and makes an indelible impression of good taste and smartness. One of my dormitory mates, for whom I designed this frock, can furnish testimonials about the success of this dress in the Harvard bailiwic, and she's willing that you should have the mode for your own wardrobes.

It's the simplest kind of dress, really, a one piece affair with shirtwaist collar, double pointed pockets, buttoned bodice, and slightly flared skirt. Over it is worn a saucy little jacket with a twin button fastening, no collar, and long puffed sleeves. The outfit I made for Sally unites a navy and natural printed crêpe with a hopsacking jacket in the natural beige shade. The contrast of sleek silk and rough hopsacking is a smart one. This costume may be worn all during the summer as well as now in the spring.

Mrs. M. C. Jones, Chicago: Every so often during the winter and early spring I clean and brighten the fur collars of the family's coats by brushing white cornmeal through them. I use the same method on summer furs, too, and it certainly keeps them fit and fresh.

Lenore T., Milwaukee, Wis.: For our white patent leather accessories in the summer time I use a milk treatment. Those finger markings will disappear with a good rubbing with a cloth dipped in ice cold milk. If the white patent has dried and become checked I soften with white vaseline. And, of course, after either treatment I polish with a very soft cloth. The same treatments can be used on colored patents.

Mrs. E. S. Scholl, 1553 Denton street, La Crosse, Wis.: When hanging out the family wash on cold days I pin the handkerchiefs to the edge of a dish towel. Then I hang up towel and it saves much handling of small pieces, to say nothing of nearly frozen fingers!

Henry T., Chicago: Here's a good solution the wife mixes for me every spring and fall which I use for our unglazed stone door and window sills to get them clean and fresh: One good soft soap suds, one pint clear ammonia solution, and two pounds of finely powered pumice stone.

Mrs. J. B. D.: I save all our old soft leather gloves and give them to my husband for polishing the chromium on the family car. He thinks these old gloves restore the luster to chromium in record time.

CORN MEAL GEMS
Made the easy Spry way!

1⅓ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1¼ teaspoons salt
⅔ cup corn meal
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, beaten
⅔ cup milk
⅓ cup Spry, melted

Sift flour with baking powder, salt, corn meal and sugar. Combine egg, milk, and melted Spry. Turn liquids into dry ingredients and stir vigorously until all flour is dampened. (Don't overstir.)

Bake in Spry-greased muffin pans in hot oven (425° F.) 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins, so light and tender you'll be proud to serve them. So easy, you can stir them up any time.

Paris Stylists Aim at Men's Vulnerability

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—If a girl doesn't make the most of opportunities during the long summer twilights ahead it won't be the fault of the folks who design clothes for her. Never have I seen such an assortment of sheer glamor, brazenly designed to drive a susceptible escort into complete surrender, as is now being shown in dressmaker salons. Every type of girl has been thought of, from the modest to the bold, and from the sophisticated to the much more dangerous demure and unassuming.

There is no universal recipe telling you what to wear outdoors of a summer's evening this season. The evening suit is down off its high horse as the only-only, and is simply "among those present." Bohemian gypsy dresses, with white lingerie blouses and bulky Andalusian skirts, are important entries. Girlish white cotton frocks, trimmed with Swiss embroidery or lace, and worn with wide glamor hats, are all over the place. Sleek, "wet seal" silhouetted dresses with split skirts that reveal gorgeous "atoms" are paired off with fluffy jackets, soft capes, or long, rustling silk coats such as Lily Langtry wore when she mowed 'em down, are on hand, too.

There is any number of enchanting dresses of printed silk, which usually are trimmed with lace or lingerie, and which have some pretense of sleeves and rather modest necklines. They usually are shown with wide brimmed hats, which are trimmed with ostrich feathers or flowers. Dresses of blonde lace, with long sleeves and wispy shoulder wraps of the lace are shown, and with them go tiny flower toques or brimmed hats. Prim little bonnets go with frocks having peasant-gathered skirts and fitted waists.

Fashions for summer evenings make a big point of the most delicious pastel colors, the kind that look edible because they are candy shades, or they come in dazzling white, night-sky blue, or black. The "woman in black" will be a glamor girl at the dining out places this summer, and she'll be in black from head to foot. But what black! It will be soft as a cloud with laces, tulles, and ostrich to make it so, and it is simply irresistible. There are lots of black evening ensembles with white lace for outdoors, too. Very much in vogue are white, starched lace jackets with black frocks, or white lace blouses with full, black skirts. Somewhere in this scenery a splash of color blazes forth, a bright flower corsage, a tiny colorful hat, a brazen gypsy necklace.

With colorful prints less conspicuous jewelry is worn. A pair of rhinestone clips, a pearl necklace, or other quiet jewelry is quite enough.

Slippers for summer evening wear may be very colorful. They may be rainbow affairs made of vari-colored straps of kid. They may be satin to match a color in the ensemble. They may be black with jeweled or embroidered soles and heels.

Gloves will be made of sheer stuff such as net, tulle, or organdy, and trimmed with lace. Or they may be made of lace. Or, with certain frocks, eighteen button black gloves will make drama.

"A woman of the world" evening ensemble from Mainbocher is black without a smidge of color. The slinky black crêpe frock has a provocative black tulle top and big sleeves. The fitted black crêpe jacket has big revers covered with black ostrich plumes. A headdress of black ostrich is held on by black ribbons.

A sophisticated item from Schiaparelli has a darlingly new kind of cloak made of black faille and bordered around with black lace ruffles. Under it is a sleek black satin frock, with a very narrow chassis, and split to the knees to show legs bandaged with rose and orange chiffon, which ties in a bow above shoes of orange and rose striped kid. Tulle gloves are worn with this.

A summer evening ensemble from Maggy Rouff combines a glorious soft blue with black. The cape is made of plaited chiffon set with zigzag lace insertion, all in blue, white bands of black crêpe make the borders and the paulettes. The very slender blue dress breaks into a froth of ruffle around the feet. The heading and hem of this ruffle are made of blue lace, and black ribbon bows are set around at intervals. Black ribbon also threads the cape just below the shoulders. A black poke bonnet, without any back, is trimmed with pearls.

A girlish gown from Jean Patou is made of night blue and white polka dotted silk, and trimmed with white organdy, which makes the ruching hem and the bow and bands on the blouse.

Through the Looking Glass

—By Eleanor Nangle—

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

With summer approaching, all women—and men, incidentally—should be conscious of the need for deodorants or anti-perspirants that are safe and efficient. Many of the improved deodorants are now nonirritating and contain ingredients that do not harm clothing.

It's with fear and trembling that we approach the subject of deodorants and anti-perspirants. We know, of course, that such products nowadays are as safe and efficient as science can make them. But in dealing with this kind of a preparation the beauty writer knows all too well that there is an unknown factor to be considered. That factor is the unpredictable element of individual sensitivity. What works beautifully for one woman will be a source of minor skin irritation to another.

It's been our experience, too, that with some of these preparations reaction will set in for no reason you can trace. Maybe it's due to that "acidity" every one talks about so loosely. In any event a product that we have used consistently will mysteriously irritate the skin on occasion. It's the same product, used in the same old way, and why it should be an irritant at one time and not at others is beyond us.

When we try to determine the merits of deodorants or anti-perspirants we ask a large number of women to use them and give an exact report of the way the product was used, how effective it was, and especially whether or not it burned.

You'd be surprised at how the reports vary with most products. It's very rarely we find one that is universally satisfactory. But not long ago we finished testing a deodorant—a cream—that will stand henceforth as one of the best.

The thin skinned sisters who find almost everything irritating to them all reported that there was no reaction with this. And the others, who can use strong stuff, and need it, reported that it was just as efficient in its work as any product could be.

With summer approaching the need for deodorants increases. This cream is something both men and women will find indispensable to good grooming. As a matter of fact, there are two creams, somewhat different in character. One is a nonperspirant vanishing cream; the other an astringent deodorant which does not check perspiration but does check the odor completely.

The deodorant cream is applied to the under arm with the finger tips; it is not necessary to use much. It should be patted in gently. It dries immediately. AND it does not injure clothing. Because it is antiseptic there might be a slight tingling, but there is no possibility of a burn. This can be used immediately after shaving, also.

These products are not expensive and they're not nearly as well known as they deserve to be. If you've been frantic trying to find grooming aids such as these you can't make a mistake in trying them.

Crochet Edging Is a "Must" for Spring Lingerie

By Ellen Bruce.

With the return of the old-fashioned petticoat with its lingerie touches there is wide interest in crocheted edgings which will peak coyly from beneath the skirt hem. These are not difficult, and require little time, since the nainsook slips are not as voluminous as they were in grandmother's day. The edging on the bottom may be shortened and used across the top of the camisole. Ribbon is run through the shoulder straps and the edging, if desired.

For instructions in crocheting the edgings for the slip, No. X-246, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Cooking in Glass.

Food to be baked in glass cooking dishes should be put in an oven not too hot, or baked for a shorter time than usual, because glass utensils transmit heat faster than other kinds used for cooking.

One of Smartest Two-piece Dresses Being Worn in Paris

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—What many of the smartest women are wearing about Paris this spring is the two-piece dress in a variety of forms. One of the loveliest by far is the one I have had copied for this pattern. The blouse is rather longer than usual, extending well over the hipline [which, heaven help you, had better be well corseted and sleek]. The shoulders have the flattering broad line, and the sleeves, which may be either long or short [the original has short ones] are puffed at the shoulders.

With this unusual jacket there is a slightly flared printed silk skirt. It is echoed in the collar on the blouse. A slide fastener down the center of the jacket is the only other finish to this smart combination of sheer woolen and printed crêpe. The costume from which this adaptation was made is a vivid union of sky blue for the blouse and multicolor for the print.

Style No. 5291 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

This is a dress that will make any little girl happy, because it is preeminently pretty. It's the sort of thing she will delight in wearing to all her spring parties, and if it's made of washable silk or cotton, she will wear it to summer festivities, too. Mothers will like the style because it is easy to cut and to sew, and equally simple to keep fresh and crisp. There are no plaits and no collar to present laundering and pressing problems.

The neckline is rather heart-shaped, and ruffling or plaiting extends all the way across the shoulders. More of the same trimming is used on the cuffs of the puffed sleeves. The bodice is quite fitted, and the slender waistline tops a flared skirt.

Sketched at the right is still another version of the pattern, using practical and versatile rickrack in a variety of ways. Notice that buttons may be used on this frock.

Cottons, silks, and linens all are good fabric choices for this model, and prints and plain shades are equally effective.

Style No. 2704 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Sweater Has a Frilly Flounce Down the Front

By Jean Macdonald.

Since we have gone so utterly feminine this season, it is only natural that frills and fripperies are a part of our daily lot. Hand knitted sweaters can achieve that frilly effect with the use of fine yarns. This blouse is one of the ranking favorites for wear with the two or three piece suit. The body of the sweater is knitted in stockinette stitch, while the ruffles down the front are knitted in garter stitch and ribbing. Instructions are available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions in knitting the sweater with the ruffles, No. X-247, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Joan Finds the New Bill Bowen Is Not the Man She Thought She Loved; Then She Discovers She Is Jealous of Another Woman

CONCLUSION

(Copyright: 1939: Faith Baldwin Cuthrell.)

ONE Saturday morning toward the end of June, Joan was walking in Central park. It was a very warm day, sultry and close. Joan had taken off her linen hat and was carrying it. The sunlight shone on her honey-colored hair, and her rosy face and blue eyes were grave.

A number of people turned to look at her or glanced up as they sat on the benches. She looked what she was, a lovely, healthy young person, and the men who passed noticed that and the texture of her skin and the lines of her figure. The women perhaps looked more closely at the distinction with which she carried herself and the fine simplicity of her black linen suit with its blouse of dusty pink.

Ahe child, chasing a ball, ran out and collided with her. She stooped to pick him up and brush him off. "There," she said comfortingly. "You didn't hurt yourself, did you?"

She was thinking, as she went on, of the increasing interest of her work with Bob Deering. She had by now discovered what she had suspected was true—that he was hopelessly impractical when it came to his debtors.

There were many patients who could afford to pay his modest fees promptly, and Joan took great pleasure in sending them bills, with a little note, diplomatic and pleasant, which couldn't be construed as actually dunning. But an examination of his books showed her that he had carried such people for six months, a year, two years. And she was horrified.

Others, of course, couldn't pay and wouldn't be pressed. You'd write that off to charity. Heaven knows he does enough of that, she thought.

Her life was not all relieving Miss Deakin at the telephone and door, making appointments, sending out bills, helping him get his notes for his articles in shape. She found herself superintending his meals and often sharing them with him. She dismissed on her own responsibility the woman who had been "doing" for him upstairs and engaged another, much more competent.

She went with him occasionally to clinics and took notes, and after her first repulsion had passed found herself very much interested. And she followed up some of his charity cases after their discharge and was able to do a little charity on her own account.

Her hours were unusual. She need not appear early in the morning; Miss Deakin came at nine and left at five. Joan came in some time before noon, looked over her appointments, and did her letters and what was necessary. She was on hand during the afternoon and again in the evening.

He had expostulated at this arrangement, but she pointed out that except in emergencies Miss Deakin was not available evenings and that some one was needed to take his calls and to reassure his woman patients—many of them felt more at ease if a woman were near by. On Sundays Miss Deakin did not come in at all, and if there were appointments Joan said firmly that she would stay in town. He gave her enough time off, and she hadn't enough to do. She wasn't earning Mrs. Noonan's salt, she told him, laughing.

She had spent two week-ends at Southampton with her parents, but this Sunday she would remain in town. She was free today until after lunch and was to meet Miss Harrington at one o'clock.

SHE was thinking of a number of things when she encountered Billy and Miss Williams. She was thinking of a letter she had had from Mrs. Noonan, of the small boy in the ward in whom Deering was interested and of the likelihood that he might walk again . . . she would stop today and buy him the soldiers he wanted. She was thinking of little Mrs. Warren, Deering's newest patient, married twenty years, over forty, and expecting with delight and terror her first child.

She was thinking of the demands made upon that vanishing American, the general practitioner. "Rich women go to specialists," he said, smiling, one day, "when they have a pain or a headache or expect a baby. But poor women can't afford specialists and diagnosticians and half a dozen gentlemen in consultation——" and then, breaking in on her thoughts, she heard the childish voice:

"Joan! Joan!"

She looked up. There was Billy running toward her, flushed with sunlight and excitement, and Miss Williams in his wake, smiling cordially. Billy reached her and flung his arms about her waist. "We never see you any more," he said reproachfully.

He was hatless, his thick dark red hair curled in damp tendrils on his forehead. He looked as if he had put on weight, she thought.

She stooped to kiss his offered cheek. "I've been busy," she told him remorsefully, "but I've thought of you a lot."

Miss Williams said: "It's nice to see you, Miss Armstrong. We've missed you. Billy talks about you so much."

He said excitedly: "My mother's home again. You knew I had a mother, didn't you? I didn't," he added thoughtfully.

"That's fine," said Joan inadequately. Over his little head her eyes questioned Miss Williams mutely.

Miss Williams nodded. "Mrs. Bowen has been home for two weeks," she said. "She's—doing very well. And she's so happy." She added, as if carelessly: "Miss Hadley is away. She left last week for a trip to California, as she has friends there. She may stay over the winter."

Joan thought: She was in love with him. I always half believed it. And when her sister returned she couldn't stand it.

Billy was impatient, hopping from one foot to the other. He said, "They were coming to meet us." And then with a shout, "There they are now!"

He ran away from them as fast as his short legs could carry him, and Miss Williams, looking after him, said quietly, "They're coming this way," and Joan felt, and writhed inwardly to feel, that this quiet woman had seen and realized more than any one had suspected. And that she was warning her to turn and run. Or to stand her ground.

She stood her ground. She saw Bowen first; her eyes went to him instantly. Billy had reached him, was clinging to his knees. She could hear him shouting: "Joan's here—O, hurry, please hurry!"

She looked away from Bowen. He was with two women. One was elderly, with a serene, fine face—probably Ellen Bowen's nurse. She was not in uniform. The other was Ellen Bowen.

She had her husband's arm; it was as if she were a little bewildered, but not unpleasantly so, by the people, the constant movement and life all about her. She looked younger than she was, as if life had stopped for her in the last six years or so. Glorious red hair and a pale skin and great dark eyes—slender and tall. She was, Joan saw at once, much lovelier than her picture.

"Joan," said Bowen, waving his hat.

She walked toward them and a moment later was in the center of the group. "This is Joan, Ellen." And Ellen Bowen was saying in a slow, pretty voice: "I'm so glad; I've heard so much about you."

Her eyes were friendly and untroubled as they met Joan's. She was like a child who has slept a long time and now awakes—a little strange, perhaps, but reassured because she knows that she is protected. And very happy.

HER long, cool hand lay in Joan's for a moment. Now Bowen was presenting the nurse and they were all talking together, with Billy running around in circles, half out of his mind with excitement. Miss Williams put a calming hand on his shoulder. "Steady on," she said. "It's too hot to get all excited and worn out."

Ellen looked down at her child and reached for his hand. Her eyes were shadowed then, as if she feared for him because of his temperament. But then she looked up at her husband and smiled. "It's such a gorgeous day," she said.

Bowen said, "Isn't it?" He smiled at Joan. "It's grand seeing you," he said. "I've missed you."

"How is Martha?" she said.

"Fine. We get along like a house afire."

"We have a house," said Billy dreamily, "but it isn't on fire."

His mother explained, smiling.

"We've taken a little place in Connecticut and are leaving next week. Bill"—she looked at her husband with worship—"swears he won't mind commuting."

It was all so natural, as if pieces of a puzzle had fallen into place. Looking at Ellen, Joan could not believe her eyes. She looked not only young but so astonishingly well. There was nothing fragile about her. You could dismiss the presence of the nurse at her side. Probably she wouldn't be needed long.

"Do come home with us for luncheon," begged Mrs. Bowen. "Bill has told me so much about you, I feel as if I knew you."

Joan said, smiling: "I'd like to, but I can't. I'm meeting Miss Harrington presently," she told Bill.

"You'll hear all the gossip," he said. "But I could have told you that. Tell me, how are you? I fancied you'd be on the island with your people."

She said quickly: "O, no, I'm working in Dr. Deering's office. I do get down occasionally, however."

"Deering, eh? Lucky guy. Give him my respects."

"Dr. Deering," reflected Ellen slowly. "I remember—I think I remember." She looked confused and frightened. And her husband said quickly:

"It was a long time ago. He was an intern in the hospital when Billy was born, darling. Of course, you've forgotten."

She said: "No, I remember. He was very kind."

Joan said, smiling: "I'm so glad to have met you, Mrs. Bowen. I must run along now."

Ellen took her hand again. She said: "Billy's awfully fond of you. I was a little jealous till I saw you. Now I understand. Do come, spend a week-end with us this summer. I'll write you."

"That would be fine," said Joan mendaciously. "Thank you so much." She bent to embrace Billy, but he wriggled out of her arms, interested in a passing ball team composed of very young gentlemen. She smiled at Miss Williams and the other nurse and Bowen. "Good-by," she said.

She was early at her rendezvous with Miss Harrington. She kept thinking, sitting there smoking and waiting, How could I have even dreamed——? Horror shook her. To risk hurting a woman like that, a gentle, frightened woman who was learning to live all over again.

And Bowen. She hadn't known him—not this younger man with the ready laugh, the lines gone from his face, and the eyes of watchful adoration turned to his wife. She had fallen in love—if indeed she had fallen in love with an entirely different person—a bitter, lonely, unhappy man given to bursts of temper, irritable and uncertain—and, she had thought, needing her. But he hadn't needed her. He had thought so for a little while in his ultimate despair. But it had been pure illusion. He had needed no one but Ellen Bowen, and she was restored to him.

And I've been feeling martyred and sacrificial and, yes, blighted, said Joan to herself, remembering how her obstinate thoughts had kept clinging to Bowen, refusing to be dislodged. Like barnacles, she told herself.

But you couldn't keep on clinging to the thought of one man when you realized that Bowen had never been that man. Circumstances had made him seem so. Now he was himself again. A self she had never known.

Miss Harrington, hurrying into the lobby, found her sitting there laughing quietly to herself. "Have you gone out of your mind?" she demanded.

"No, found it. Let's eat, Harry; I'm starved."

She listened to the office gossip with half an ear. A girl marrying, another leaving. Martha, Miss Harrington regretted to state, was getting along very well. But then, she added, Bowen was giving her a pretty free hand. Since his wife's return the firm had taken second place.

"I know," said Joan absently. "I just met them—in the park."

• • •

MISS HARRINGTON looked at her curiously, but held her peace. She had been a little worried about Joan. Now she saw her smiling faintly, her blue eyes gay and free of any cloud, and drew a deep breath.

"How's the new job?"

"It's all right," said Joan. "I haven't enough to do yet. But what I have is interesting. It's more than that; it's really worth while."

"More worth while than importing and exporting?" asked Miss Harrington.

"There isn't any comparison," said Joan soberly. "This is being a mending and patching job—and getting a second-hand glimpse of birth and death."

"And you are happy in it?"

Joan looked at her, and her friend thought she had never seen eyes as candid, as darkly blue and luminous. She replied after a moment, as if she had considered her reply carefully:

"Happier than I've ever been. I hadn't thought about it until you asked. I've been so—occupied and interested."

"You've changed," commented Miss Harrington. "You changed while you were in the office, you know. And now you're different again."

"Just a little chameleon, that's me," said Joan lightly. She began to laugh. "O, I forgot; do you remember my telling you about my little southern cousin, Mary Lou?"

"I think so—didn't she visit your people?"

"She sure did. And stole my oldest, most devoted beau. He followed her south, and mother rang me up this morning to say that they're engaged. I'm awfully glad for them both."

"That's fine,' said Miss Harrington. She looked at Joan, and then away again. "Did—did you notice anything about Bill Bowen —any thing different?"

"Of course I did. He isn't the same man I knew at all."

"I thought you'd discover that," said the older woman. "Yet he is very like the man we all knew when the firm was first founded."

Joan nodded. She said, low: "I think he has been living in a dark dream for a long time. As she has—and now they're awake and it's sunlight again and they are together."

She felt no grief. She had lost nothing. The man she had briefly known, and had perhaps briefly loved, was not Ellen's man, was perhaps a figure of her own imagination, englamored by the excitement of her adventure and by her pity for him. He had perhaps never existed.

The long summer wore on, with torrid periods and times of oppressive storms and of torrential rains. Joan grew a little pale and thin, and Deering became alarmed about her.

"You must have a vacation," he said toward the end of August. "I've hardly been able to drive you away." He looked at her anxiously. "This won't do at all, Joan," he said.

Miss Deakin had taken her vacation and was back again. She and Joan had become good friends. She helped Joan in a hundred small ways and Joan took some of the burden from the older woman's shoulders.

"How about yourself?" she asked him.

"Doctors don't rate vacations."

"You could take a week-end. Coudn't you refer your patients to Dr. Hammond—for that long?"

"I suppose I could.' He frowned, looked at her, and laughed. "But I haven't the vacation habit," he explained. "I wouldn't know what to do."

"I'll make a bargain with you."

She was always making bargains, she thought, little amused.

"What?" he asked cautiously.

"I'll take ten days. And over the last week-end you come to the island. The family will be glad to see you. And you'll be in touch. Doctors' Service can call you or the patients direct. You haven't any obstetrical case scheduled for the first two weeks in September," she reminded him, "so you needn't worry. You can take a holiday."

"Very well," he promised, "if you'll take the week. We'll carry on without you."

"Not as well as if I were here," she told him.

He said: "I've a confession to make. I knew you'd be competent, Joan, but I—that is, the office—didn't really need you." He looked unabashed, but she said swiftly:

"As if I didn't know that, you idiot. Go on."

"Now I couldn't get along without you," he told her. "Doing all the extra niggling things for me—better than I could do them myself. Running my errands to the bank. Checking up on Mrs. Masters upstairs. Shopping for the apartment and the office. Following up my cases—getting Mrs. Timothy's husband a job, and that little girl of Old Man Hampton's. And any success that last article will have will be due you. You've no idea how much you helped."

"I——? What nonsense!"

"It isn't nonsense. You smoothed out all the rough spots. I knew the facts. I didn't know how to present 'em, that's all."

"You flatter me," she said demurely.

"Are—are you happy, Joan?" he asked her, looking up from his desk at her as she stood there beside him.

"Perfectly."

"Not a cloud?"

"Not a cloud. Except you do work too hard, Bob."

"I'd die if I didn't," he said sincerely, and rose to his feet. "Come on," he told her. "I'll stop by and see Mrs. Anderson, and then I'll drive you home. And remember, you're to take that vacation."

Driving toward her apartment, she talked to him about the laboratory. The equipment was in place; the new office room had been made over for it. She said: "I'll be awfully stupid. But perhaps you can train me to do the routine things, Bob. And in the autumn we'll look up some courses for me to take."

"If I can spare you," he said firmly.

She said, half to herself: "If you knew how much I want to be of real use. I believed I was—at the office. But any one could have filled my shoes—better than I. Any one with secretarial training, a memory for faces, and a little tact. But working with you—that's coming to grips with reality, even in the little I am able to do. I see more than I can accomplish, you know. And I am so grateful to you for giving me this chance."

"Thank Aunt Mattie," he said, grinning.

"I do indeed,' she said seriously. "For the opportunity to serve—not only Adelaide's mother but in a small way hundreds of other people—and myself."

He said soberly: "You're a grand kid, Joan. Don't think I don't know it."

In the apartment, all the windows open to the night air which lay like a sodden blanket of heat over the city, Joan undressed and took a shower. Later, wrapped in the thinnest of silk robes, she sat down at her desk to write some letters. But it was too hot.

She pushed the paper and envelopes aside, lighted a cigaret, and presently lay down on the divan. It was too hot to go to bed. She was, she decided, very tired. It would be good to get down to the island for a little while, to swim and play golf and loaf under the trees—but for a little while only. I couldn't go back to it for good, she thought, I couldn't.

Since the day she had talked to him in his office about Bowen, following the South American trip, which seemed so far off, so incredibly remote, as if it had happened in a dream—which, indeed, it had—Bob Deering had not again told her that he loved her. He had said no word and made so sign. And she had been grateful to him and fully content. But now she wondered.

Perhaps, she thought, being with me all the time, seeing me every day—perhaps he's gotten over it.

A month, two months ago she believed that she would have been very glad to think that. That he had recovered, that they could go on being good friends again. But since the advent of Mrs. Elsnore she wasn't so sure.

"I can't be jealous!" she thought incredulously.

But she was.

MRS. ELSNORE was a young widow. A widow with money and a vivacious brunette beauty. She had gone to Deering as a patient some time before Joan came into the office, through a brother who had known him years before. She had moved to Manhattan from the midwest and had looked up Deering at once, socially. And then coming down with the grippe, she had sent for him.

She was inclined to be neurotic, Joan thought, and to summon him since her recovery at all hours. Her head ached, she couldn't sleep, she was nervous. "I'm so terribly high strung, Dr. Deering," she said. Joan had heard her say that one day when she was in the office.

Miss Deakin didn't like Mrs. Elsnore and said so frankly. Very recently she announced to Joan darkly that she felt it in her bones that "that woman" had set her cap for the doctor. Joan had laughed at her. "Nonsense!" she'd said.

"That's as may be. But telephone calls! You've taken a thousand—and letters marked 'personal'!"

"That's so," Joan had admitted, "but it probably doesn't mean a thing—women usually make fools of themselves over their doctors."

"This one's a fool with a mind of her own," said Miss Deakin. "I've heard her talking to him—I couldn't help it. She's lonesome here. She doesn't know many people. She'd like nothing better than to be the wife of a smart Park avenue specialist."

"But Dr. Deering isn't Park avenue or a specialist," Joan reminded her.

"Mark my words, if she gets him she'll see that he's both," said Miss Deakin. "Stranger things have happened. And you must admit the woman is very attractive."

Joan admitted it. Attractive and about twenty-nine, a beautiful figure, magnificent teeth, a fine olive skin. And very well off indeed. She dressed superbly and drove a big car. And more than once in the last few weeks Bob had dined with her.

She had remained in town during the summer, going away week-ends only. Once Joan had heard him tell her in the office, "But why don't you get out of town?—the heat's too hard on you," and she had replied: "But I hate resort hotels—and what would a woman all alone do with a house in the country? Besides, I'm afraid I might be ill or something."

So she stayed in town to be near her doctor.

Joan rose from the divan and went to bed. She thought, I'm certainly going goofy if I begin to be jealous of my employer's patients. It must be the heat.

She went to Southampton for the first week in September. Her parents were almost pathetically glad to see her. The Southampton house was a big, sprawling affair which had belonged to Joan's grandfather. There were wide lawns, old trees and gardens, and a private right of way to the beach. From Joan's windows she could look out over the ocean, blue and sparkling in the clear light of morning.

Her friends came to see her. Men she had known very well turned up, saying reproachfully: "What on earth have you been doing? Heard you'd gone into business. What sort of business? You haven't any business other than sitting still and looking beautiful, as you are doing now."

MEN she had never met before saw her dancing at the club and begged an introduction, danced with her after it was accomplished, and demanded brilliantly, "Where have you been all my life?" And she saw Tommy, who came over from Easthampton, where he was visiting his parents, to tell her how happy he was that he and Mary Lou were to be married in November.

"You might have the grace to conceal your bliss from me," Joan reproved him, laughing.

"Gwan," said Tommy cheerfully, "you never wanted me."

"And——?"

"And Mary Lou does!" he said in triumph.

"You should at least say, 'I owe it all to you.'"

"That's so. But I don't. To your father and mother, really."

"O, yes, you do," said Joan. "If I hadn't kept you safe and sound for Mary Lou another girl might have snapped you up, and not half so attractive, really."

"That's so. She wants you to be maid of honor."

"I know; she wrote me. I can't, Tommy; I've got a job to do."

"Where have I heard that before?" he said, groaning, delighted in his soul to know himself in bondage to a girl whose only job now and henceforth would be himself.

A week-end, a week, and then the second week-end. Bob had promised to come down. He would drive down Friday afternoon if possible; failing that, on Friday night. But about six o'clock he telephoned.

"Joan? This is Bob. I'm so awfully sorry. I was all ready to start when I had word I've got to drive to Larchmont. Mrs. Elsnore is there with friends, and she has been taken very ill. I don't know about tomorrow or Sunday—it depends on how she is."

"That's all right," said Joan. "I'm sorry, too. Let me know if you can come. I'll see you Monday at all events."

She didn't believe Mrs. Elsnore was sick. Perhaps she had one of her headaches! Maybe she knew he had planned to be out of town! Maybe she wasn't ill at all and had asked him to come to Larchmont Maybe——

Good Lord, said Joan to herself, wide-eyed, I've fallen in love with the man!

She spent a week-end crammed to the brim with activities. She swam, and the water was cold, and golfed and played tennis and danced. At least people thought she did these things. She went through all the motions, but she herself was not present at any of her activities.

Bob did not come down, and she thought, driving back to town Monday morning: Well, there's nothing to do but grin and bear it. He hasn't said a word—hasn't shown by the flicker of an eyelash. The trouble with you, my girl, is that you keep falling in love with men too soon, as in the case of Bill Bowen, or too late, as now. And if I can't bear it, well, then, I'll get out. If Mrs. Elsnore comes in I'll probably have to get out anyway.

She walked into the office, and there was Bob. Miss Deakin was nowhere to be seen. He turned from his desk and said crossly, "I've been waiting for you for hours!"

"It's only eleven. Where's Miss Deakin? Why aren't you at the hospital?" asked Joan, tossing her hat aside.

"She went out on an errand, and I've been to the hospital. Joan, if you knew how sorry I was about this past week-end!"

"And how is Mrs. Elsnore?" she said calmly.

"She's all right. I was worried a little. You knew she had a cardiac condition, didn't you?"

"I suspected it," said Joan coldly.

He looked at her, frowning. Then he laughed. And Joan stood there and watched him. Finally she stamped her foot. "Will you stop that?" she cried furiously.

He said: "My darling, forgive me. I forgot that I hadn't given you Mrs. Elsnore's card to copy for the files after her flu, which left her with a bad heart. And I was laughing because it occurred to me that possibly you are jealous, and if so——"

She said meekly, "I am jealous, Bob."

• • •

HE TOOK her in his arms. He said, holding her there: "Thank heaven for that! I've kept such a guard on myself all these long weeks, wanting to be sure, wanting to give you time, before I spoke again. And I've never had much hope, my dear."

She said: "I do love you, Bob. I was afraid you didn't——"

He kissed her. "Are you afraid now?" he asked.

"No. And I won't be jealous again," she promised. "A doctor's wife can't afford to be."

"A doctor's wife can't afford a lot of things. Have you thought how hard it will be, how irritated you will become, how exasperated?" he warned her.

"Yes." She remembered what Mrs. Noonan had said to her. "Nothing matters but you, she told him.

"And you won't get bored and want me to be a very fashionable specialist with regular hours?" he asked anxiously.

"Never."

The telephone rang, and she reached it first. A moment later she said, "It's the hospital—you're wanted back there."

He spoke briefly into the instrument; then he said: "You see—even now I must be interrupted. It will be hard, Joan."

"We'll have each other," she said.

She went to the door with him, and there he turned to take her in his arms and kiss her again. "I swore," he murmured, "that I'd never marry a woman with money, and you—you——"

"We'll spend it," she said, and looked at him radiantly. "We don't need much for ourselves, Bob—comfort, a little luxury perhaps. And security for—for our children; but with it we can do so much for others who have so little——"

She kissed him, watched him out the door, and then, with her heart singing, went into her tiny office. It would be hard. There would be times when she would grow impatient, or feel hurt, or wonder why in the world they didn't give it all up, throw it overboard for a long play time while they were young; but such times wouldn't last long. And they would be together.

The telephone rang, and she picked it up.

"Dr. Deering's office," she said.

(THE END.)

"Possibly you are jealous, and if so——"

Beginning Next Week

A thread of 300-year-old yarn used by the Indians entangles Jean Ferris, modern young business woman, in a dramatic romance and leads her—to a murderer! "Red Threads," vivid serial by Rex Stout, author of "Golden Remedy," "The League of Frightened Men," and many other popular novels, is not only a tremendous love story of faith and courage but a strikingly unusual murder mystery as well. The author's contrasts are original and dramatic—a career woman in love with a half-Indian—a police court grilling about a murder in an Indian princess' mystic tomb—a primitive American at a fashion show. . . . Don't miss "Red Threads," beginning next week in The Sunday Tribune.

By WYNN

Sunday, April 23

A more than usually active week lies ahead; generally favorable for those whose eyes are on the better type of goal; but the latter half of the week brings temptings to squabble. Today: Minor irritations to be walked gracefully around; be social.

From Above

Everywhere in nature we see laws working from higher levels, where they originate, down to their effects, where results are observable. The more powerful force or thought moves that which is less powerful. This indicates to the philosophically minded that the more powerful a man is the more he is responsible for those under him. The strong should protect, not exploit, those weaker than themselves.

Your Year Ahead

Your year ahead, if this is the date you celebrate, has some restrictions, but strict attention to justice and payment of old debts will clear things up. Don't force nor worry. Danger: May 17-July 21, Sept. 15-Oct. 1, and Feb. 7-25, 1940.

Furniture for Outdoor Life Gay, Practical

Miss Winslow has worked out detailed color schemes for six different types of living rooms. They are available in the booklet, "Living Room Color Schemes." Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

Summer is a time of color—bright skies, green grass, the myriad hues of garden flowers. Outdoor furniture is no exception. Colors run riot on the new gliders, sun umbrellas, chaise longues, settees, chairs, and other furnishings that are going to enliven lawns, porches, and terraces this season.

The two favorite materials for the furniture of outdoor living are rattan and metal. There's a great revival of interest in the Victorian lacey iron work of our grandmother's day. And generally it's painted pure white. You can get little settees and curved back chairs exactly like the ones of the balmy period of the 1880's and 90's. They're so heavy that the strongest summer wind can't blow them over and, of course, rain won't hurt them either.

In an old fashioned garden this sort of furniture is especially appropriate. It gives it just the right, old fashioned touch.

Then, there's the more delicate, but equally lasting white metal that is made a good deal like indoor chairs and tables. Huge circular tables in this line have tops of glass and are accompanied by curving benches. You can seat a whole al fresco supper party at one of them.

Others that are smaller have graceful chairs with gayly colored seat cushions. These are covered in sunfast, waterproof fabrics and are removeable. Some of this furniture is so charming it can be used in an informal dining room or breakfast room as well as on the porch or terrace.

In the rattan you'll find that both enamel finishes and light, natural ones are popular this season. Upholsteries are Swedish peasant and Swedish modern in colors and design. Then there's the homespun type of textile and there's the neat, trim plaid and tiny figure sort of thing. Combinations of blues, yellows, greens, and red are good. Chairs and couches are really luxurious with their spring-filled seat and back cushions. Tables are available in any number of sizes and finishes, practically all of them being modern in design.

Smart chaises have adjustable awning tops and are built for one and two occupants. There are clever little beverage carts on rubber tired wheels, and large individual awning tents on frames that can be moved about the lawn.

Gliders, of course, are almost a necessity for summer comfort and nowadays you need not worry about the effects of sun or rain—they will withstand both. And they are certainly built for relaxation, they're so springy and soft.

The photograph today, taken at the American Furniture Mart, shows one of the smartest and most attractive of the 1939 gliders. Notice the nice, broad arms—wide enough to rest a beverage glass and plate on. The cushions are covered with Sanforized, pre-shrunk fabric, guaranteed not to run nor fade, and they're removable, as you can see in the picture, so you can slip them off and scrub them with soap and water. This particular glider is available in a number of color combinations, the favorite ones being coverings in green and white, blue and white, and red and white.

And speaking of new furniture for both outdoor and indoor living, be sure to visit the marvelous new series of rooms which sparkle with clever ideas in interior decoration and which are to home furnishings what the spring fashion shows are to womens' apparel. They're all open to the public now and they're the result of months of elaborate preparation on the part of furniture designers, manufacturers, decorators, and retail dealers and executives. See them while they still have the dew on them!

Contract According to Culbertson

2 No Trump Rebid Shows Strength, Not Weakness

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.)

Last Sunday I mentioned a bid of three in a suit "or its equivalent." The first equivalent bid that springs to mind is a bid of two no trump, two no trump being as hard to make as three-odd with a trump suit.

That accounts for the vast difference between these two bidding situations:

1. South	North	2. South	North
1 diam.	1 spade	1 diam.	2 clubs
1 no trp.		2 no trp.

In example 1 South's one no trump rebid promises no strength beyond his opening bid. In fact, the rebid is distinctly discouraging because, in addition to having perhaps no added honor tricks, South has no unusual suit lengths to show.

In example 2 South's rebid of two no trump proclaims a strong hand and a desire to reach game if North has any fair amount of strength. The two no trump rebid is equivalent to a suit bid of three and why should South push his side up to the three level if he has no hope of game?

Millions of players used to consider the two no trump rebid a minimum or sign-off rebid, as is the one no trump rebid. Sad experience, I fear, rather than anything I wrote, taught them to change their minds. The practice of making two no trump rebids on minimum hands brought them too many big penalty losses.

Reverse bidding is a term which has done no good for bridge. The average player, listening to the ballyhoo of writers and lecturers, has come to think it something mysterious. Actually it is only another example of an equivalent to a bid of three in a suit. Take this example:

South	North
1 diamond	1 no trump
2 spades

Of course South bid only two spades. He did not bid three. But suppose North has:

♠6 2 ♥K J 3 ♦10 7 4 ♣Q 8 6 4 2

South does not want to be left to suffer with two little spades as trump support in North's hand. The diamond suit will be much better and South naturally wants North to show preference and return to three diamonds.

South must have bid two spades in full knowledge that if North were weak in spades and stronger in diamonds the contract would become three diamonds. So by his two spade bid South was reaching up into the level of three-odd all by himself. This being a strong bid, it requires a strong hand.

Bridge Problem

NORTH
♠A 8 5 2
♥A Q 5 4
♦7 4 3

WEST
♠K Q J 10
♥K J 10
♦A Q J
♣Q J 10

EAST
♠9 7 4 3
♥9 8 6 3
♣9 7 5 2

♦K 10 9 6 5 2
♣A K 6 4

South reaches a contract of five diamonds, much to the astonishment of West, who doubles in no uncertain tone. But after the opening lead of the spade king declarer takes in eleven tricks with the greatest of ease. How does he do it?

ANSWER.

Spade ace wins and spade is ruffed. Heart finesse is taken and another spade is ruffed. Second heart honor is cashed and dummy's last spade is ruffed. South cashes the ace and king of clubs, then ruffs a low club in dummy. A heart is led and South ruffs, reducing himself to the K 10 of trumps. South now leads his last club. West, reduced to the A Q J of diamonds, must ruff and return a trump, thereby giving South the diamond king for the fulfilling trick.

There is even a decided difference between these two cases:

1. South	North	2. South	North
1 heart	1 spade	1 heart	2 diam.
2 spades		3 diam.

North's response in each case was forcing, so South had to find some rebid. In example 1 South makes only a nominal rebid. He promises no extra strength, but does say that, while keeping the bidding at its irreducible level, he thinks a spade contract safer than a minimum contract in no trump or some other suit. In example 2, however, South is making a strong bid. He has available a nonforcing, possible minimum rebid [two hearts]. This would permit the bidding to die in its first phase. Instead South deliberately pushes up one trick higher.

If it be argued that South may not have a rebiddable suit, and therefore cannot bid two hearts, I answer that South should have thought of that before.

The only direct game tries are bids at the three level. The truth of this statement will become obvious when you consider that anything lower has already been classified in the minimum zone; anything higher is game.

But there are times when a furtive try for game may be made even at what is ordinarily the minimum zone, when the bidder thinks there is bare hope of getting somewhere, but is not confident enough to risk getting too high.

This bare hope arises from the fact that in such situations as the following the information given by South is very indefinite, so that North is uncertain as to how far he can safely go:

1. South	North	2. South	North
1 heart	1 spade	1 heart	1 spade
2 clubs		2 hearts

In example 1 South may have just under the strength he would require for a strong bid such as two no trump or three hearts. The same is true in example 2. South's rebid is not forcing in either case, but North may have just enough to want to hear more, yet not enough to encourage a game on his own hook:

Example 1. North may hold:

♠A Q 7 3 ♥J 2 ♦Q 10 7 6 ♣8 6 3

North cannot risk two no trump, for an unmakeable contract could be reached if South were weak. North therefore marks time by bidding two diamonds. If South is weak he can pass, return to two spades, or bid two hearts, whichever his hand favors. If South had a maximum two club rebid he now bids two no trump and North gladly raises to game.

Example 2. North may hold:

♠K Q 8 6 4 ♥Q 3 ♦K 9 6 ♣8 6 3

Too weak to raise hearts or bid two no trump, North yet sees that game can be made if South has just under a three heart rebid. North bids two spades, giving South a chance to make another bid without promising a great deal from his own hand.

These bids were made to keep the bidding alive a while longer, and note that South will not consider them rescue bids. It is not necessary to rescue partner from a suit he has rebid, nor when he has shown two biddable suits. In such situations any bid by partner shows genuine rebid values.

In other cases a player has the opposite object: He wants to make a strength showing bid, while the logical rebid on his hand would not sound strong enough. For instance:

1. ♠A K J 6 5 ♥Q 7 4 ♦A 10 5 ♣Q 10
2. ♠A K Q 6 5 ♥Q 6 5 ♦8 3 ♣A J 6

In each case the player bid one spade and his partner responded two clubs. With hand 1 the logical rebid is two spades, but it does not actually reveal the full strength of the hand. The best rebid is two no trump, which is more likely to encourage partner, on a borderline hand, to keep going. On hand 2 a two no trump rebid is not advisable because of the weakness in both the heart and diamond suits, but again two spades sounds too weak and the proper rebid is three clubs, raising partner's suit and, by getting into the higher reaches of the bidding, encourages partner to try for game if he has any added values.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Clothing continues to be a major problem for the poor of the city, including those on direct and work relief, as well as families struggling to exist on inadequate incomes.

The situation is particularly difficult for those individuals who are ill and attending clinics for medical treatment. It is necessary that they keep definite appointments on certain days, and lack of proper clothing works an extra hardship on them.

The case of Mrs. N. is a rather typical one. Deserted by her husband, she and her two small children were forced to obtain relief. She has just been released from the hospital after a serious operation, and it will be necessary for her to attend a clinic for treatment for a long period. She has been borrowing a neighbor's coat in order to make these trips, but as she must see the physician two or three times a week she cannot continue to do so. Can some reader provide her with a coat, size 36? The address is on the northwest side of the city.

Miss D., a case worker, is anxious to obtain clothing for one entire family. The father is attending a clinic for treatment for a cardiac disorder, and needs clothing size 38. He is 5 feet 6 inches. There are two boys in school who wear size 14, both in need of apparel. The mother of the family is seriously ill, and must attend a clinic regularly. She needs clothing size 50.

Miss B., a medical worker, would like to locate a wheel chair for a patient who is on relief and unable to rent or purchase one. He has a serious ailment and is too heavy to assist without a chair. The worker will arrange transportation and the address is on the north side of the city.

Mrs. D. also is ill and in need of clothing. She would appreciate a light weight coat size 50 or 52. Her husband has been ill and unable to work for over a year and will soon be hospitalized. Large sizes such as this are always difficult to obtain, and we have numerous requests for them from all sections of the city.

I sincerely hope that some housewife who is refurnishing her home can respond to Mrs. P.'s request, which is as follows:

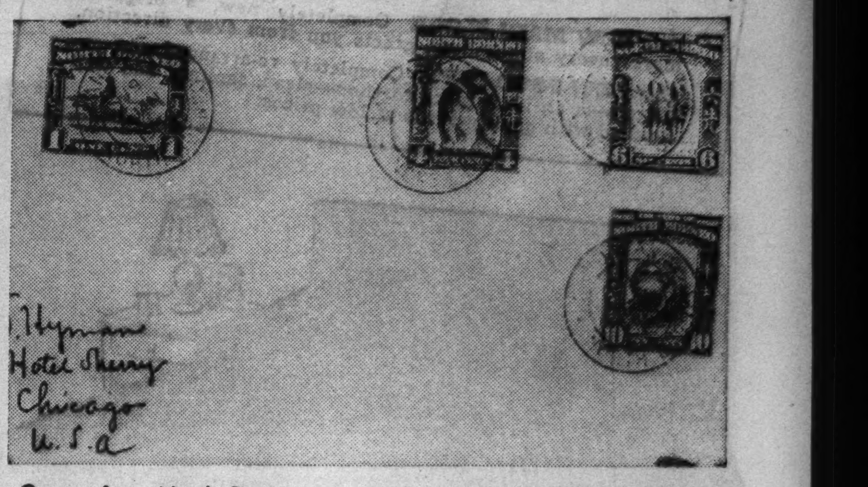
"Dear Miss Brown: I am making a strange request, but I hope it isn't asking too much. My husband, who is past 70, is not employed, and we are now on relief. I am unable to work due to a heart ailment. I like to keep my room looking nice, as I do not go out much. We are living in a basement, in a furnished room, and we have an overstuffed set which is worn and very soiled. I cannot afford to have it replaced, and the building management will not. Has any one a discarded set of slip covers or some unused draperies? I would appreciate them so much, as they would brighten up our room, and life would not seem so desolate. We have no relatives and remain to ourselves and must be indoors most of the time."

The address is on the north side of the city.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



Covers from North Borneo are not common and nearly all of the used stamps in beginners' collections are canceled to order with a black grid. This cover was lent by S. Hyman of Chicago.

On July 1 the 1939 "duck stamp" will be placed on sale at larger postoffices throughout the United States. This is the sixth stamp of the series, which was introduced in 1934 as a means of raising funds for the purchase and maintenance of waterfowl refuges throughout the country. Approximately 90 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of these stamps goes for the actual purpose indicated, while the remainder is used for printing and distributing stamps and for administrative purposes of the migratory bird hunting stamp act, and other federal acts of similar purpose.

The 1939 stamp will show a design by Lynn Bogue Hunt. His subject pictures a male and a female green winged teal standing at the edge of a marsh, while in the background five teal are preparing to alight. Previous designs of the series were prepared by J. N. [Ding] Darling, Frank W. Benson, Richard Bishop, J. D. Knap, and Roland Clark.

The act under which these stamps are issued requires all migratory bird hunters over 16 years of age to carry the stamp validated by their signature. The stamp does not take the place of a local hunting license. It costs $1 and may be purchased at any first or second class postoffice singly, in blocks, or in complete sheets of twenty-eight stamps. Regulations governing the sale of the stamps have been greatly modified since the initial issue of 1934. At that time it was necessary to present a hunting license and to affix and sign the stamp in the presence of a postal official. In that year 635,000 stamps were sold. Since that time some attention has been given to nonhunters who wished to contribute to the fund, with the result that the sales of the stamp of 1937-'38 amounted to more than $783,000, and to date more than 900,000 copies of the 1938-'39 stamp have been sold to hunters, bird lovers, and stamp collectors. Since 1934 more than 3 million dollars has been obtained in this manner.

Although official announcements are lacking, it is fairly well established that a 3 cent violet stamp will be issued to commemorate 100 years of baseball. Since the first announcement of a baseball stamp the postoffice department has been deluged with suggestions regarding the portrait or subject to be shown on the stamp. Before very long it became apparent that there were several candidates for the honor of founding the game, and also that the year of its origin was rather indefinite. For this reason, therefore, the postoffice officials are no longer considering a portrait stamp, but are working on a design which will typify the sport in a manner pleasing to all. This will probably take the form of a view of a baseball diamond with players in position.

Present indications are that the stamp will be placed on first day sale on June 12 at Cooperstown, N. Y., where the first game of baseball under organized rules is believed to have been played.

Stamp Notes.

According to the London Times of March 28, the postmaster general, of the United Kingdom proposes to issue a set of four stamps, ½d, 1d, 1½d, and 2½d, to commemorate the centenary of adhesive postage stamps. He has invited about thirty prominent artists to submit designs.

Carpatho-Ukraine, the former province of Ruthenia in the extinct Czecho-Slovak republic, was independent for a very short time, but at once prepared stamps. These had the name of Cesko-Slovensko at the top, and an inscription ending with the date March 2, 1939, at the bottom. Near the top was an added inscription in Cyrillic characters reading: "Karpatska Ukraina." Before these stamps were placed in use the country was occupied by Hungarian troops and annexed to that country.

All records for first day sales of stamps and for first day covers were broken at New York City on April 1 when the World's Fair stamps were placed on sale. A total of 1,964,743 stamps were sold and 585,565 covers were postmarked with the philatelic cancellation. Other unknown quantities of covers bearing the new stamps received first day postmarks without the distinctive "First Day of Issue" slogan. The previous record for first day sales of stamps was made at Gonzales, Tex., on March 2, 1936, when 1,020,000 Texas centennial stamps were sold, and at Little Rock, Ark., on June 15, 1936, when 376,693 first day Arkansas covers were mailed.

Club Notes.

The final session of the Central States Numismatic conference at the Congress hotel takes place today. The exhibition will be open to the general public from 1 to 3 p. m.

Cachets and Covers.

Edward E. Bryan, P. O. Box 304, Albany, Ore., will sponsor a Memorial day cachet with mailings from battlefields made famous by Generals Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Lee, and Stonewall Jackson. Send covers ready to go, in groups of five, and include 1c additional as a forwarding fee for each cachet desired. Deadline May 10.

Cover collectors who are interested in receiving covers from the 1939 national airmail rose show to be held during the Portland rose festival, June 7 to 10, should send their envelopes, stamped and addressed, to Myron F. McCamley, 2135 North Alberta street, Portland, Ore. Place address to allow left half of cover free for cachet. Deadline June 5.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Are cabinet sinks and cabinet lavatories going to stay in vogue? Are they practical? B. A.

Answer: You get maximum space saving efficiency with a cabinet type sink or lavatory. They are certainly practical—and there is no reason to suppose that they won't stay "in vogue."

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—We are planning to remodel our bathroom and want to ask about metal tiles? Are they durable? Can they be applied to any existing wall surface that is smooth, without tearing out the plaster. And do they come in a variety of attractive colors? MRS. F. H.

Answer: Decidedly—"yes" to all three questions. These enamel metal wall tiles are a charming and practical treatment for your bathroom walls. And for your kitchen walls, too.

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—We are much interested in the modern glass blocks which you can install in a wall. Would they be appropriate for a breakfast corner? Are they too "modern" for a house which isn't ultramodern? H. L. McR.

Answer: Glass blocks are not a wall covering, but set into the wall, they are part of the wall itself. They are frequently used in different parts of a home, even though it is by no means "ultramodern." They admit daylight and sunlight—and your neighbors can't see into your home!

Gay Embroidery Motif Features Peasant Figures

By Nancy Cabot.

Swiss peasant dancers are an inspiring motif for pillows, wall hangings, guest towels, luncheon doilies, and any of the dozen and one household utilities using this type of embroidery work. The hot iron transfer pattern shows the simplicity of the work, with an easy outline stitch necessary to create an effective group. The colors are as gay as the peasants themselves, with red, blue, yellow, and green as possible choices for the costumes.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the Swiss peasant dancers, No. X-904, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220th 5th avenue, New York City.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

The scope of uses for stainless steel increases daily. Now, by way of proving that anything can happen here [in the modernization world], a stainless steel bathtub has made its appearance in a recently remodeled home in Maywood. Like the stainless steel sink in the owners' kitchen, this tub has a beautiful silvery surface which is hard water-resisting and easy to keep clean. It met a particular house problem which demanded a light weight tub so the floor could stand the strain, and is, moreover, free from visible joints, seams and overlapping flanges.

For spring remodeling, and for new work, too, porcelain enamel metal tiles are among us in a galaxy of enticing spring colors. These tiles can be cemented to any smooth surface wall, without ripping out plaster or breaking down wall. A practical treatment, too, for a kitchen or bathroom wall, if you are in the mood for change, or if you are considering type of wall surface for the new home you're planning.

The fight against moisture and condensation in our homes goes on. Insulation finds itself increasingly equipped to wage this battle, and blanket insulation, long a very worthwhile type of weatherproofing, now is available completely—enclosed in water proof material.

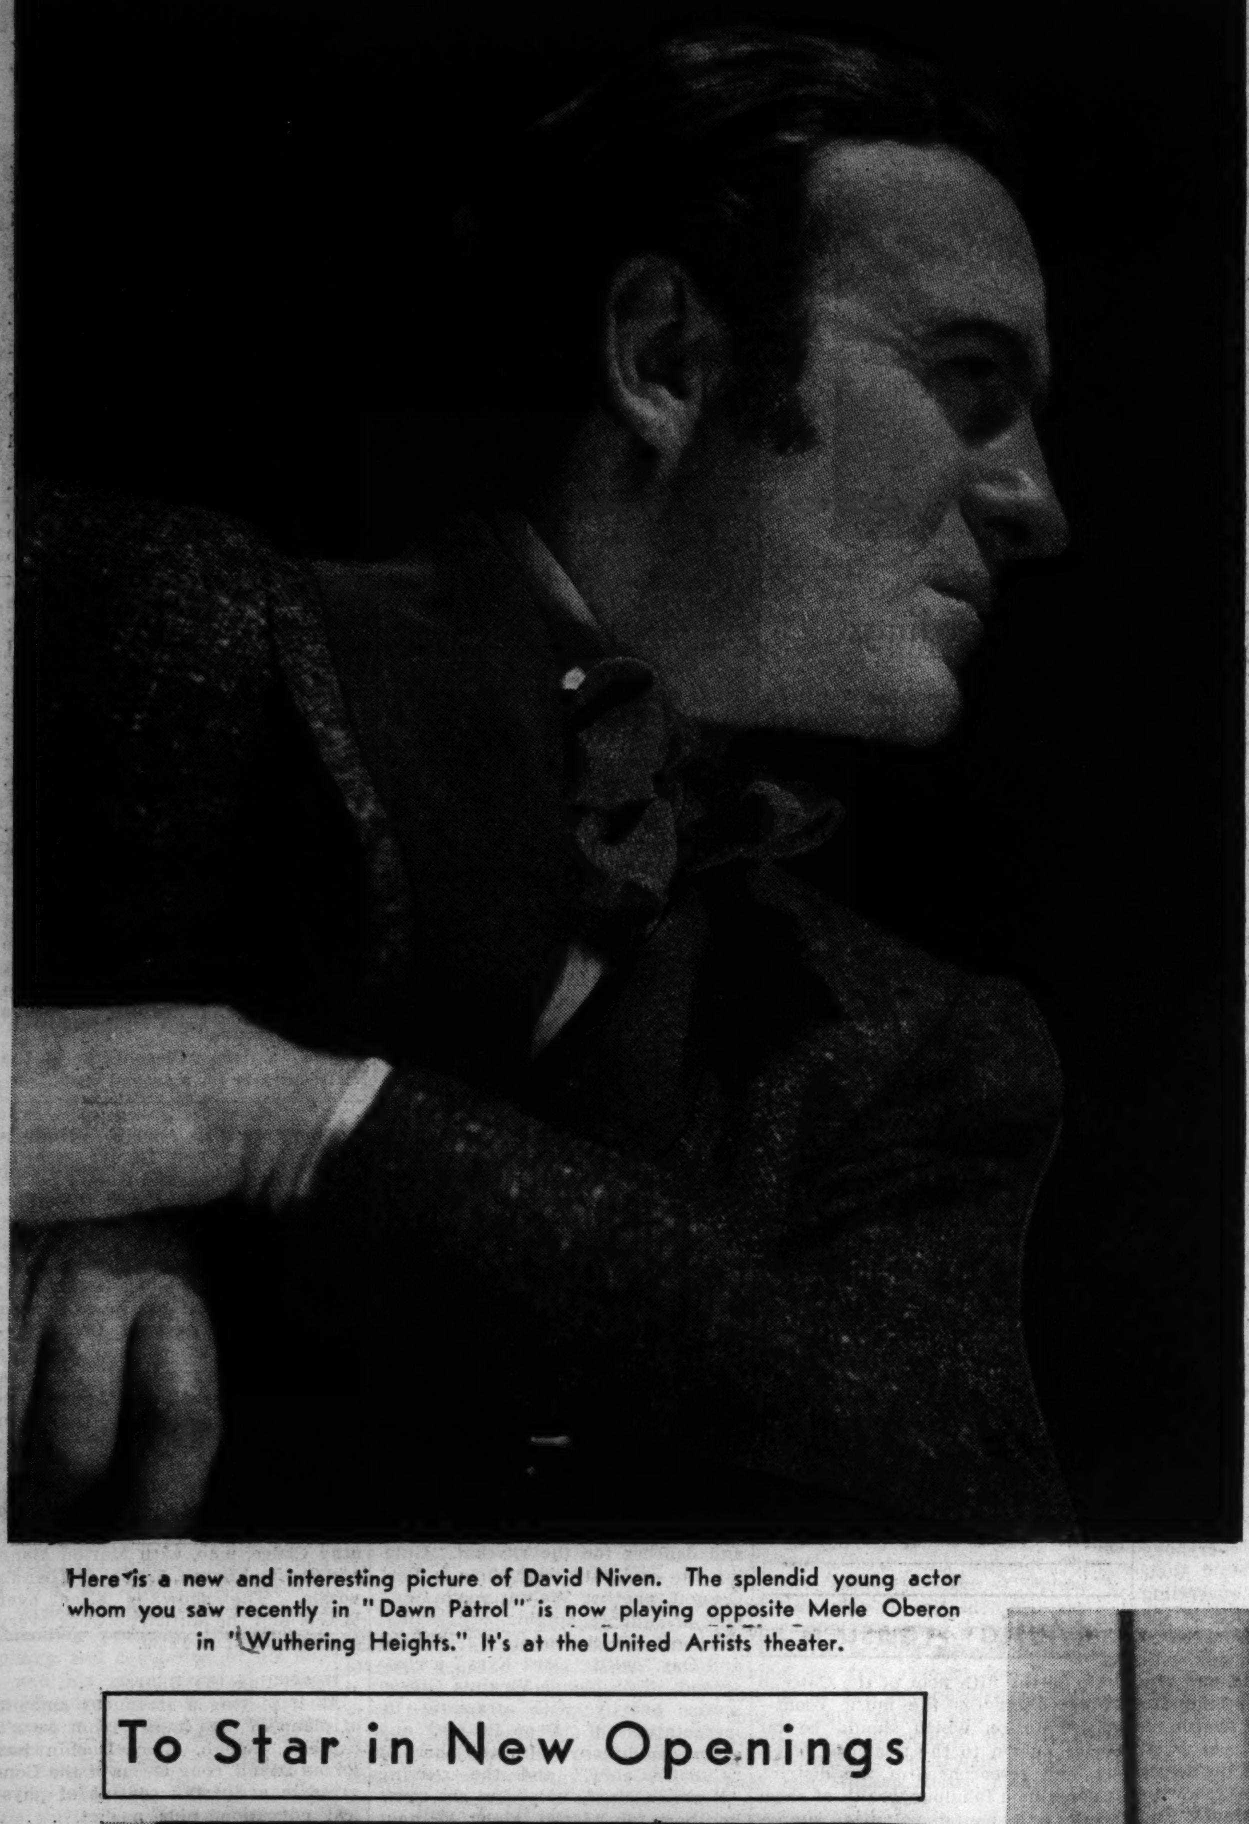
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Part 7 | Drama Music Education

APRIL 23, 1939



Here is a new and interesting picture of David Niven. The splendid young actor whom you saw recently in "Dawn Patrol" is now playing opposite Merle Oberon in "Wuthering Heights." It's at the United Artists theater.

To Star in New Openings

(Seymour photo.)

Gertrude Lawrence returns to Chicago in a brand new comedy, "Skylark," by Samson Raphaelson. It opens at the Harris theater on Monday.

Left: Joan Fontaine has an important role in "Man of Conquest." Attractive young woman, isn't she?

Four United States Presidents Live Again in Forthcoming Motion Picture, "Man of Conquest"

"Man of Conquest," another patriotic film, is about to be released. In this production the life of Sam Houston is dramatized. Also prominent in various portions of the picture are four American Presidents. There's James Madison, who is much in evidence during the War of 1812. He's followed by John Quincy Adams, who appears as the political opponent of Andrew Jackson. Then there's "Old Hickory" himself, and finally Martin Van Buren, who appears as a proponent for the annexation of Texas.

Openings Booked Tonight and Tomorrow for Loop Stages

Walter Huston, Miss Lawrence to Head Casts

By Cecil Smith.

With opening nights of major attractiveness, both tonight and tomorrow, Chicago now enters upon the brightest week of the spring theatrical season. A day of high pressure preparation, coming on the heels of a fast night train trip from Cincinnati, will make possible tonight the première of "Knickerbocker Holiday," the long anticipated musical comedy of early New York starring Walter Huston. And then tomorrow night, almost as a last minute surprise, John Golden will present Gertrude Lawrence at the Harris theater in "Skylark," the vehicle chosen by Miss Lawrence to supplant Rachel Crothers' enormously popular "Susan and God."

The idea of writing "Knickerbocker Holiday" was originally suggested to Maxwell Anderson by Washington Irving's "Father Knickerbocker's History of New York." Washington Irving appears anachronistically in the show, in the shape of Ray Middleton. The others of the dramatis personae are prominent figures among the founding Dutch fathers of New York City in the seventeenth century. Peter Stuyvesant, with his historic silver peg leg, is impersonated by Mr. Huston. Among the other impressive names, some of them memorialized to this day in the streets, parks, and public institutions of New York City and state, are those of Vanderbilt, Van Rensselaer, De Puyster and Roosevelt.

"Knickerbocker Holiday" is no staid historical drama. It is an effervescent modern musical comedy, with book and lyrics by Mr. Anderson and music by Kurt Weill. The production involves all the usual appurtenances of a sumptuous musical show, including chorus girls whose piquancy, it is said, does not require a seventeenth century mood to be appreciated.

The cast is full of singers. Mr. Huston himself, though you may have forgotten it, was an expert song-and-dance man in vaudeville for some fifteen years before embarking on the "straight" career that led to such sober achievements as "Dodsworth" and "Othello." Ray Middleton, a graduate of the University of Illinois and the Juilliard School of Music in New York, has sung leading baritone rôles in opera both at the Metropolitan and here in Chicago. Before undertaking the title part of Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi" and the Giant in Louis Gruenberg's "Jack and the Beanstalk" here he had already made his name in the musical comedy "Roberta."

Richard Kollmar, to be seen as Brom Broeck, had to wait for "Knickerbocker Holiday" to give an account of his baritone voice. In the meantime he played dramatic rôles on the radio. Others in the cast are Jeanne Madden, who was Dick Powell's leading woman in the movie "Stage Struck"; George Watts, Howard Freeman, Harry Meehan, Paul Porter, Charles Arnt, James Phillip, and Detmar Poppen. Maurice de Abravanel, former conductor of French répertoire at the Metropolitan Opera house, conducts the performance. The sets are by Jo Mielziner, designer of "I Married an Angel," and the director is Joshua Logan, who likewise directed the Rogers and Hart musical.

Only three weeks are allotted to Chicago for "Knickerbocker Holiday." The production is now in the middle of a cross-country tour which ultimately leads to California and a late June closing in Los Angeles.

"Skylark" brings forward another comedy from the pen of Samson Raphaelson, remembered favorably for "The Jazz Singer," "Accent on Youth," and "Young Love." Mr. Raphaelson is pretty much of a Chicagoan. He attended high school and Lewis institute here. He finished his schooling at the University of Illinois, and soon became a newspaper reporter in Chicago. Discovering the error of his ways, he turned first to advertising, then to short story writing, and ultimately to playwriting. He spent nine years as a contract writer for a Hollywood studio, working on such scripts as "Trouble in Paradise," "The Smiling Lieutenant," and "The Merry Widow."

So effulgent a luminary as Gertrude Lawrence requires a substantial supporting cast. "Skylark" has two leading men—Donald Cook and Glenn Anders. Mr. Cook's first prominence came when he played a leading rôle with Minnie Maddern Fiske in Sheridan's "The Rivals." After a period in the movies, where his most important rôle was in "Show Boat," he returned to the stage. Chicago last saw him with Miriam Hopkins in S. N. Behrman's "Wine of Choice."

Mr. Anders has visited us more recently. Last fall he spent a few uncomfortable weeks at the Selwyn theater with the cast of "I Am Different," a comedy which survived four weeks only because playgoers were determined to see Tallulah Bankhead at no matter what cost. He would probably prefer to remember his share in Dodie Smith's "Call It a Day," or, longer ago, his appearance with Pauline Lord in Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted."

The first performance of "Skylark took place in the Shubert theater, Boston, in March. Toronto, Washington, and Baltimore are the only other cities which have seen the play. A New York engagement looms ahead, possibly this spring, probably next fall.

In addition to Mr. Anders and Mr. Cook, Miss Lawrence's supporting cast includes Lee Patrick, Walter Gilbert, William David, Robert Burton, Horace Sinclair, Olga Hansen and Ann Driscoll. Donald Oenslager designed the settings.

A third theatrical opening of somewhat restricted interest will take place at the Great Northern theater Friday evening. "Awake and Sing, perhaps the finest play Clifford Odets has yet written, will be acted in Yiddish by an all-Jewish cast from the Federal theater project. This strong, realistic drama of Jewish-American family life in the Bronx should submit itself well to a Yiddish presentation. David Yanover, who plays the leading rôle of Moe Axelrod, is a veteran of Yiddish productions here and in New York, having received some of his first experience under Philip Wiesenfreund, father of Paul Muni. Other prominent players in the cast are Jennie Gartner, David Schenholtz, and Herman Serotzky. The director is Adolf Gartner. "Awake and Sing" will be given nightly, except Monday, with no matinées.

Meanwhile the Federal theater production of Shakespeare's "Othello," starring Ian Keith, continues for one week more at the Blackstone theater. It will close Saturday, to be followed Wednesday, May 3, by "Hamlet," the second drama in Mr. Keith's Shakespearean repertory. In "Hamlet" John Connor will be seen as King Claudius, Albert Carroll as Polonius, and Peggy Joyce as Ophelia.

Next week we shall have a lot to tell about John Barrymore's forthcoming return to the Chicago stage at the Selwyn theater on Monday, May 8. His play is "My Dear Children," by Catherine Turney and Jerry Horwin. Opposite Mr. Barrymore in the cast plays his wife, Elaine Barrie. The supporting company contains many attractive youthful players, among them Lois Hall [here in "Dame Nature"], Dorothy McGuire [here in "Our Town"], and Lloyd Gough [here in "Shadow and Substance"]. Mr. Barrymore has not appeared on the Chicago stage since 1918, when he was seen at the Princess theater in "Peter Ibbetson."

"Having Wonderful Time," Arthur Kober's comedy of a Catskill mountain summer resort, will be presented Saturday, April 29, and Monday, May 1, by the Institute players at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. Kurt Wohlgemuth is in charge of the production.

CITY LIKES HIM

Norman Toker is in "What a Life." The comedy at the Erlanger is extending its run, having discovered the wide audience it deserves.

Critic Asserts You Can't Get Away from Sex

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—You just can't get away from sex; certainly not in the drama. No matter how fine or high-minded or coldly scientific the theme, sooner or later that old debbil biological impulse barges in and what happens? You know very well what happens. A romantic drama happens. A good romantic drama, perhaps, or just a weak excuse for a drama which the author hopes the employment of the sex motif will save.

"The Flashing Stream," a recent new play offering in New York which closed after a week's run, is the particular case we have in mind. It was written by Charles Morgan, the scholarly drama critic of the London Times, whose best selling novel was one called "The Fountain." In London "The Flashing Stream" ran for six months and was highly thought of.

The situation in this play is unique. On a small, rocky island outpost in the Atlantic the British admiralty has set up an experiment station. The station has been taken over by a group of British scientists devoted to their jobs and their country. They are headed by Commander Edward Ferrers, an impassioned 40 year old who has dedicated himself and his fellows to a life of monastic severity to continue until they have perfected the invention of an aerial torpedo known as a scorpion.

Up to the opening of the play they have suffered a failure or two. In one test Commander Ferrers' best friend, a chap named Selby, has been killed. Now the admiralty has sent Selby's sister, Karen, herself one of the six best mathematicians in the world, to take her brother's place. Naturally the scientific celibates are disturbed.

Orders are orders, however, and Karen Selby moves in. She is fine, sensitive, and gifted. To her the higher reaches of mathematics are her life and also the music of the spheres. But she also has a great hankering for male society and realizes the moment she meets Commander Ferrers that there is to be no peace for either of them until their love is declared and acknowledged.

They come to a second test of the scorpion, which is to buzz through the heavens, attracted by the vibrations of attacking airplanes, and, finding them, collide with them and blow them up. This test, too, is a failure. Another young scientist is killed. The admiralty is in a dither. An investigation is ordered and Commander Ferrers urged to admit that the failure can be traced to errors in his figures. But the commander clings passionately to his conviction that his figures cannot lie.

When it appears likely that the admiralty is to order the discontinuance of the experiment and the dismantling of the station Karen Selby steps in and does the lying for the commander. There have been errors, she says, and she can prove them. Whereupon the admiralty gives her the chance and the station is saved.

For a scene or two Commander Ferrers is crazed by the thought that he has failed, but when Karen explains that she has lied, and lied to give him another chance, all is well. At least all is promising.

"The Flashing Stream" is not a very convincing drama. Too baffling a problem scientifically for the average playgoer, too obvious a setup romantically to stir the interest it should. Nice cast: Godfrey Tearle, younger half brother of the late Conway Tearle, is the Ferrers, and Margaret Rawlings, attractive brunette who played Kitty O'Shea in "Parnell" a couple of years ago, is the Karen.

Another of the new and not quite good enough dramas is called "The Happiest Days." You may recall, or perhaps you did not see, newspaper reports of a particularly pathetic suicide pact entered into a year ago by two Long Island high school students who found themselves facing parenthood. The boy was to shoot the girl and then himself. He shot the girl, but could not carry through the other part of the bargain. A sympathetic and understanding jury, influenced by the attitude of the dead girl's parents, who bore no resentment, gave the boy his freedom.

"The Happiest Days" is the retelling of that story in terms of the theater. The author, Charlotte Armstrong, does not stray far from the record, but she does strive to read beauty into the story.

The children, Jeff Chapin and Edith Donovan, 17, have, with their parents' full consent, been in the habit of doing their studying together in Jeff's studio bedroom. Life and love to them are beautiful. It is hard for them to understand the general inharmony of married life they see about them. When Edith realizes her condition and tells Jeff neither of them knows what to do.

They try to get a justice of the peace to marry them, but he only laughs at them. They try to win the confidence of their parents, only to be embarrassingly repulsed. Finally [influenced, it was said in the case of the original pair, by a moving picture describing the death of the royal lovers of Mayerling], they agree to die rather than suffer the destruction of the happiness that has been theirs.

As the date they have set for the suicide draws near Edith has a new idea. She is ready, even eager, to die. But she wants Jeff to live on that he may explain to everybody what their happiness has been and how important it was that everybody should know and profit from their experience and not go on quarreling and living so ignobly. This is the explanation to which Jeff clings when he fails to die. The play ends with his acquittal by the courts and the beginning of his family's attempt to bring him back to normal health.

"The Happiest Days" is well played. Uta Hagen, one of the newer ingénues who scored a success with the Lunts in their revival of "The Sea Gull" last season, plays Edith with a rapt and luminous gift in projecting adolescence. John Craven, Frank Craven's son, who was the young bridegroom in "Our Town," is the boy. It is not so good a part, the boy being held to rather steady mooning over his predicament and his responsibility, but young Craven does as well as could be expected with it.

And then we have had a crazy bit of poetic fantasy called "My Heart's in the Highlands," written by that flashing young Armenian, William Saroyan, whose "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze," "Inhale and Exhale," and other poetic outbreaks have excited the intellectual front from time to time.

As near as I could make out it was a sort of allegory suggesting that poets have a hard time because they refuse to work at anything but their poetry, which nobody wants and few understand. A poet and his son and the boy's Armenian grandmother struggle along on such food as they can beg or steal and a crazed old man wanders by and plays tunes for them on a golden bugle. Symbolic, I suppose, if you happen to be good at that sort of thing.

The neighbors, hearing the old man, come bearing gifts of vegetables which they did not throw at any of the actors. This, as a symbol, must have represented forbearance. Finally the old man dies and the poet and his family rent their house and take to the road. Goofy, I called it. And when I did Mr. Saroyan wired me that he had felt the same way at first. But afterward it began to haunt him and he decided it was great.

BISMARCK BEAUTY

Gloria Lee is one of the five Jane Hadley dancers appearing in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel, where Phil Levant and his orchestra headline a new spring revue.

[Bloom Photo.]

Feature Anderson

The Pasadena Community playhouse will devote its fifth annual Midsummer Drama festival to the works of Maxwell Anderson. Eight plays will be presented, each running for one week, with the first beginning on June 26. The American playwright will be represented by "Elizabeth the Queen," "Valley Forge," "The Wingless Victory," "The Masque of Kings," "Both Your Houses," "Gods of the Lightning," "Winterset," and "The Star Wagon."

Recordings

Only in recent years has American familiarity with ballet reached a point where the recording companies could hope to find a large public interested in regular releases of ballet music. Victor has taken clever advantage of this new wide acceptance of ballet and has included in one little booklet an astonishingly long list of music which the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo has made familiar.

There is a complete recording of the music to "Aurora's Wedding" [Tschaikowsky], by the London Philharmonic orchestra directed by Efrem Kurtz. Mr. Kurtz is the Ballet Russe's regular conductor. The same composer's exquisite "Swan Lake" is to be found in a recording by the same orchestra—this time under John Barbirolli's direction. The complete "Sylphides" [Chopin's music] is available in a Victor album made by the London Philharmonic orchestra, Malcolm Sargent directing.

"Scheherazade," "Prince Igor," "Petrouchka," "Spectre de la Rose," "The Afternoon of a Faun," "Le Beau Danube," "Three Cornered Hat"—these are some of the ballets whose music is found, in whole or in part, in the Victor catalog. Several of these works, of course, are standard concert pieces which have long been popular but which have reached an even wider public these last few years through the popularity of the ballet.

Music Treasure

Up on the fifth floor of the Chicago Public library is the music room—an institution which should be far better known to the students, teachers, and researchers of the district. It contains a fabulous wealth of sheet music and bound volumes, supplemented by reference works, books on music, and interesting historical documents. Any one holding a public library card is eligible to draw music, and the regulations as to the length of time such music may be kept are generous in the extreme.

The music room of the public library does not cater to one type of student or musician at the expense of another. There are vast quantities of vocal and piano music, large collections for other instruments and combinations of instruments. Orchestral and operatic scores, oratorios, concertos—all of these may be found on the shelves or hunted up by obliging attendants. Various odd examples of rare or out of print collections give the music room a definite historical value.

Not on public display but available to any bona fide researcher are musical mementoes of an earlier Chicago. Organizations which have perished in the course of the years or which have successfully come through to a brilliant present [the Apollo club and the Chicago Symphony orchestra among the latter] are represented by yellowed programs full of quaint, late nineteenth century advertisments.

Weems Takes Drake Throne as King Leaves

When the King of the Gold Coast room abdicated, the Drake hotel ministry offered Wayne's throne to another member of Chicago's musical royalty—Ted Weems, thereby effecting what Maitre Frank Amstadt attests was a coup d'état.

The Weems band, stressing a very definite preference for the rhythmic rather than the symphonic, is loaded with entertainers. Perry Como scores first with "The Masquerade Is Over," and similar ballads in his persuasive style; Elmo Tanner presents his famous whistling version of "Nola," and Red Ingle brings his violin into play for a one note symphony. Ingle and Tanner collaborate in a revival of their well remembered Martin-Coy feud. Newest of the band's entertainers is Marvel Maxwell, and her personal triumph comes in a rangy version of "Hold Tight."

Burton Pierce furnishes the artistic highlight of the floor show with a vivid series of tap interpretations ranging from a ballet number rich with difficult leaps and turns to a clever pantomine of a shine boy finding a dollar bill. A comedy turn is offered by Robberts and White, a dance team with a flair for caricature.

There is subtle comedy, there is ironi comedy, there is obvious comedy, and there are the Yacht Club Boys over at the Colony club. Four singers without a single voice, they harmonize perfectly in their notion of what indelicately is called "screwball" comedy. This quartet is not satisfied with swinging the classics. It completely abolishes them, and substitutes such opuses as "Dr. Schlenner from Vienner," a four way lecture on anatomy such as never was heard outside of Dr. Rockwell's insanatorium; "NRA," which has nothing to do with government problems, and "The Great American Tourist," a clef note on "how to see America worst."

Lew Fidler continues his popular run as a swing producer, and Jose Manzanares keeps the Goldstone-Dean club high in the favor of rhumba fans.

A musical revue in miniature is ushering in the belated spring season at the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. Phil Levant's all-Chicago orchestra, back from a two year tour of the country, has the knack of modulating its swing so that diners may enjoy it for the musical values, and dancers for the rhythm. Guiding the sprightly floor show is Bert Granoff, another Walnut room "ex," and an affable singing personality. His most effective number is "Night and Day," with "Dark Eyes" a close second. Tall, blonde Virginia Gibson scores heavily with dramatic interpretations of "Deep Purple," and a Russian lullaby, with the cheerful "Cuban Cabby," and the stirring "Night in Manhattan," but she saves her best for "I Get Along Without You Very Well." She and Granoff have several popular duets and Patricia Long, Red Fields, Fred Smith, and Herby Walsh, all of Levant's troupe, contribute handsomely to the vocal répertoire.

Mel Ody is a juggler with a sense of humor. His patter and individual touches make even routine tricks highly entertaining.

Rounding out the show are the Jane Hadley dancers, featuring Pauline Swann. The group is well trained and beautifully costumed and its répertoire ranges from a sprightly tap number in which the steps are as fiery as the girls' red jackets, to a soft lighted ballet to the moody "Deep Purple."

Betty Grey, organist, continues to be a popular star of the Walnut room program, both as part of the floor show and as an intermission entertainer.

Jack Durant, knockabout alumnus of the comedy team of Mitchell and Durant, the tumbling sailors of stage and screen, opened at the Chez Paree Friday night, replacing the Weire Brothers in the five star spring show. Durant is literally a fall guy, his act being one of the most strenuous the Chez has ever booked. Russ Morgan's music, Adelaide Moffet's singing, Cross and Dunn's comedy vocals, Mary Raye, and Naldi's poetic dance interpretations, and the Adorables continue their popular way.

The Blackhawk's most recent addition to the long list of audience participation shows it has made famous ever since the days of Coon Sanders' Nighthawks is Bob Crosby's "Bandstand Grandstand." It is a quiz with a baseball motif, more nonsensical than technical. Clews to baseball questions are found in pieces played by the band, and teams score runs on the basis of their answers. An amusing bit of atmosphere is the popcorn vending by pert little Dorothy Claire, who, with Marion Mann and Crosby himself, handle the band's vocals. The show is aired over W-G-N and the Mutual network every Monday night at 11:30.

Boswelling the Bistros . . .

As if playing a strenuous amount of piano in the Empire room wasn't exercise enough, Eddy Duchin has joined friend Tony Owen of the Congress in a Spartan routine of physical education, plus a diet. . . . "Happy Birthday," spelled out in flame topped ice letters, greeted Gene Krupa Tuesday night at the Panther room. It had been 365 days since the gang first played under the Krupa banner. . . . Credit Jimmy Craig with giving a new spark to the Yacht Club Boys, and credit a movie studio with giving him to the boys. Jimmy, under his real name of Robbins, was scheduled for movie stardom until the studio overplayed its hand by billing him as the second Cagney, according to Craig. . . . Freddie Fisher's band at the Rose Bowl used to be known as the Schnickelfritz gang, the tall-corniest orchestra in the country, according to its own billing. Now it's the Movieland band. . . . Until Josephine Bernhardt and Clive Graham came to the Continental room of the Stevens hotel they observed a one hour "zone of silence" before and after each show to prevent jangled nerves from leading to discord. But so lavish is the Stevens with shows that the team found it had no time to talk at all, so the old system has been successfully amended. . . .

Vaudeville

The screen's "perfect butler," in the person of Arthur Treacher, headlines the current stage bill at the Chicago theater. He is assisted in a skit by Jack Norton. Also featured are the Briants, a continental comedy team; Cass Daley, singing comedienne, and Merriel Abbott's troupe of dancing girls just back from a long tour of South America and Europe. On the screen is "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell," starring Don Ameche, Loretta Young, and Henry Fonda.

Film and stage attractions are being shown for a third week at the Palace theater. The stage bill has the Roxyettes, the Randall sisters, Frank Paris and his marionettes, Peggy Taylor & Co., and Brown & Ames. "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle" on the screen stars Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

At the State-Lake theater the vaudeville program includes Jackson, Stone, and Reeve [Jackson was the second of the famous comedy trio of Clayton, Jackson, and Durante]; Jue Fong, Chinese tenor; Jack la Vier, the man on the flying trapeze; Alice Dawn, rhythm singer; Paul Bauer and company in novelty dances; Alice Kavan; Flagg and Arnold, and Dick and Dot Remmy. The screen presentation will be "The Three Musketeers," with the Ritz brothers, Don Ameche, and Binnie Barnes.

Hugh Herbert, the popular comedian of the movies, heads the stage show at the Oriental theater. Other acts include the Dancing Sweethearts; Faith, Hope, and Zingo; Freda and Anthony; the Condos brothers; Verne Buck and his orchestra. Richard Dix and Lucille Ball are to be seen in the single film feature, "Twelve Crowded Hours."

Rose La Rose will continue at the Rialto theater for a second week.

Lawrence Tibbett to Be Choral Society Soloist Friday

Business Men's Orchestra Will Play Tomorrow

By Edward Barry.

Three large scale concerts in Orchestra hall this week bolster up the faltering spring music schedule. Tomorrow night the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, George Dasch, conductor, plays the last program of its season. Friday the Marshall Field & Co. Choral society, under Edgar Nelson's direction and with Lawrence Tibbett serving as baritone soloist, gives its annual public concert. Saturday the Finlandia Male chorus, a hand picked group of Finland's choral singers, makes its first Chicago appearance.

Founded by George Lytton in 1921, the Business Men's orchestra tomorrow completes its eighteenth year of activity. The 115 men who compose the orchestra are none of them professional musicians. For the most part, they make their livings in business and industry and play together only because they like to. The result of this policy is an orchestra possessed of an aliveness and enthusiasm which many a professional unit might envy.

With the assistance of Mary Ann Kaufman, resident soprano, the business men tomorrow will present the following program:

Overture to "A Life for the Czar" ... Glinka
Symphony No. 8, B minor ["Unfinished"] ... Schubert
Recitative and aria of Lia, from "L'Enfant Prodigue" ... Debussy
Miss Kaufman.
Fantasy, "A Night on Bare Mountain" ... Moussorgsky
A sketch of the steppes of Central Asia ... Borodin
Tableau musical, "Baba-Yaga" ... Liadow
Songs: "Zueignung," "Morgen," "Ständchen" ... Strauss
Miss Kaufman.
Overture, "Carneval" ... Dvorak

The Marshall Field & Co. Choral society, another organization of nonprofessional musicians who foregather primarily because of their liking for music, enlists the aid this Friday of an American baritone whose successes have been won in such diverse fields as movies and opera. Lawrence Tibbett has steadily, if not very slowly, won his way to a place where his countrymen accept him as cheerfully and enthusiastically as they would a foreigner.

Most of Mr. Tibbett's recent Chicago appearances have been in opera. His rôles have included Iago ["Otello"] and Rigoletto ["Rigoletto"]. The virile beauty of his voice, his commanding presence, the growing simplicity and conviction of his acting, and his great personal charm have conspired to make him one of the greatest box office draws in the business.

Mr. Tibbett was born in California forty-two years ago. The big moment of his earlier career came when he sang Ford in a 1925 production of "Falstaff" at the Metropolitan and, young and almost unknown as he was, created a sensation that carried his name across the country. He has made many such moments since then.

The complete program follows:

Sanctus from mass in B minor ... Bach
Evening hymn of the Moravian monks ... Traditional
"Then Round About the Starry Throne" ... Handel
Aria, "Cortigiani" ["Rigoletto"] ... Verdi
Mr. Tibbett.
Barcarolle ... Delibes
March militaire [choral arrangement] ... Schubert
Bell chorus from "Stradella" ... Flotow
"The Lost Chord" ... Sullivan
Mr. Tibbett and chorus.
"Invitation to the Waltz" [choral arrangement] ... Weber
Solos:
[a] "The Pilgrim's Song" ... Tschaikowsky
[b] "None but the Lonely Heart" ... Tschaikowsky
[c] "Maidens Are Like the Wind" ... Loewe
[d] "Edward" ... Loewe
Mr. Tibbett.
Military polonaise [choral arrangement] ... Chopin
"Auld Lang Syne" ... Fearis
Chorus and audience.

Most of the seats for this concert have, alas, been taken by Marshall Field employés, their families and friends. However, there were some at last report available to the public.

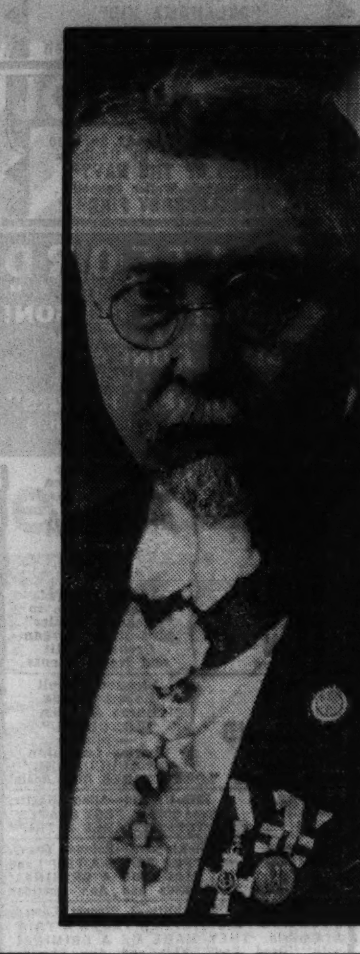
The Finlandia Male chorus, which comes to Orchestra hall Saturday, consists of men who have been chosen from among Finland's various singing organizations and who will represent their country musically at the New York World's Fair.

Finland is noted for the quality of its choral groups. Therefore the cream of such groups, when conducted by an able man, may reasonably be expected to be something extraordinary. Heikki Klemetti, who directs the Finlandia chorus, is undoubtedly such a man. He has been a pioneer in the task of establishing his country's high choral standard.

The program Saturday consists entirely, or almost entirely, of the works of Finnish composers. Only two of these, Selim Palmgren and Jean Sibelius, are familiar throughout the world.



WILL CONDUCT CHORUS

Prof. Heikki Klemetti is the conductor of the Finlandia male chorus which will make its first Chicago appearance on Saturday night at Orchestra hall.

Current Music News

Chicago's musical public will be the recipient of a worthy gift when the university college of Northwestern university offers Engel Lund in recital at Thorne hall on Thursday. There will be no admission charge to the concert. Any one may obtain admission cards by writing to the offices of the college, 313 East Chicago avenue.

Engel Lund is a folk song interpreter, well remembered by those who heard her first recital here a year and a half ago. She was born in Iceland of Danish parents. Although she started her concert career as a lieder singer she discovered that folk songs had a special appeal for her and she subsequently devoted all her attention to them. Her répertoire has been gleaned through research in libraries and oral transmission.

At least eight of the dozen languages Miss Lund has had to acquire for the presentation of her material will be used on Thursday. Songs from France, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Palestine, Scotland, Denmark, Sweden, and Iceland will be sung. Dr. Ferdinand Rauter will accompany the singer.

A joint recital will be given in Kimball hall on Thursday night by Josef Cristea, tenor, and Lorraine Mareen, soprano. The former came to Chicago from Rumania and studied voice here while working as a cab driver. Five years ago he went to Italy to continue his vocal training and begin concertizing. This will be his first appearance in Chicago since his return. Miss Mareen is an 18 year old student at Trinity High school in River Forest.

Two more joint recitals will take place in Kimball hall this week. Tonight the winners of the Manischwitz radio contest, Anne Gershon, coloratura soprano, and Charles Sheldon, baritone, will appear together. Both will be making their debuts.

On Friday Walter Hillig, tenor, and Helen Hanneman, pianist, will be the artists sharing the program in the recital hall.

Verdi's justly popular opera, "La Traviata," will be given by the Chicago Concert and Opera guild at the Woman's club theater on Saturday evening. Although sung in the conventional Italian, the staging, scenery and dress will be modern. The three leading rôles have been intrusted to Estelle White, soprano; Louis Jacobi, tenor, and Erwin Feld, baritone. The supporting cast consists of Esther Kaplin, Esther Block, Frank Lakowski, John Backlund, Arthur Wilkinsen, and A. J. Bragagnolo. Silvio Insana will conduct. On May 1 and 2 the guild will repeat this production in St. Joseph, Mich., as part of the annual blossom festival.

A concert will be given by the Oak Park-River Forest Symphony orchestra on Tuesday night at the Oak Park club, Oak Park avenue and Ontario street. Under Gladys Welge's direction the ensemble will play the overture to Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker" Suite, and the "Capriccio Italien," and Johann Strauss' "Wine, Woman and Song" waltz. Kathryn Witwer will be the soprano soloist, singing the aria, "Il est doux, il est bon," from Massenet's "Hérodiade," and a group of songs in English.

Fifteen instrumental instructors from its school of music compose the University of Michigan Little Symphony which plays in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago this afternoon. Conducting the group is Thor Johnson, who has studied with such distinguished Europeans as Bruno Walter, Felix Weingartner and Nicolai Malko. The program, scheduled for 3:30, is as follows:

Overture to "Joseph" ... Méhul
Symphony No. 12, E Major ... Haydn
Adagio, Op. 3 ... Lekeu
Five pieces from "For the Children" ... Tansman
Interlude in an Ancient Mode ... Glazounoff
"A Musical Snuff-Box" ... Liadoff
"The Girl with the Flaxen Hair" ... Debussy
Suite, F Major ... Franck

Schubert's Sonatina, D Major, op. 137, No. 1; Brahms' String Quartet, A minor, op. 51, No. 2, and Haydn's String Quartet, B flat major, op. 76, No. 4, will be played on the program of chamber music at the Federal Music Concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street, on Tuesday night, starting at 8:15 o'clock.

The Keep Singing club will give two performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," at the Auditorium recital hall, one on Friday and one on Saturday night. The director is Charles H. Keep.

Bethuel Gross will conduct the Northern Illinois College of Optometry Glee club in two identical programs today. The first will be at the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue, at 4:30 o'clock; the second will be at the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and Michigan avenue, at 6:30 o'clock. Soloists at the concerts will be Arwein Schweig, bass, and Mildred Henry, pianist.

For its ninth annual concert the Choral society of Rosary college, River Forest, will offer two soloists. Mary Coleman, one of the rare double bass soloists, and Ann Howe, violinist, will be the guest artists. The choral group will contribute music by Bach, Schwedoff, Boughton, Vittoria, and Holst. Gregory Konold is the conductor. Eight o'clock is the scheduled hour of the program, held in the social hall of the college.

On Tuesday the Civic choral society of Chicago will begin its fifth annual concert in the Studebaker theater. William Mullen conducts this amateur group, which has sung frequently on the radio and has won awards in the Tribune music festivals.

Organ music will be played by Robert Kee for visitors to the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, 59th street and Woodlawn avenue, this afternoon, starting at 4:30 o'clock. Mr. Kee is organist of St. Mary's church, Park Ridge.

In a note on these pages not long ago reference was made to an "unnamed Louisville composer," whose opera, "The Lady of the Lake," will be premièred in Cincinnati this summer. A member of the American Opera Society of Chicago was kind enough to inform us that the composer is Karl Schmidt. The opera was given a concert performance here by the society in 1931. On that occasion Mr. Schmidt came to Chicago to be presented with a David Bispham medal in recognition of his services to the cause of American opera.

Three excerpts from Mendelssohn's oratorio, "St. Paul," will be sung by the Sunday Evening Club choir at Orchestra hall tonight. Mark Love, bass, and Virginia Auyer, contralto, will take the solo parts. Edgar Nelson will conduct.

City's Dancers to Hold Joint Concert Today

By Cecil Smith.

The Chicago Dance council is sponsoring a unique event in the Goodman theater this afternoon. Seven of the city's leading modern dancers have agreed to bury whatever hatchet, real or imaginary, may have existed in the past, and to contribute their talents to a joint dance concert.

The seven participants, all known to local followers of the dance, are Frances Allis, Katherine Dunham, Ana Kurgans, Leyah Lucatsky, Eloise Moore, Ann Port, and Mildred Zook. Miss Dunham, whose material is too unique to submit itself to the treatment of a heterogeneous dance group, will offer her version of the biguine-biguine, a composition resulting from her study of West Indies dance movements.

The remaining six dancers will appear both separately and as a group. The group compositions have been variously choreographed by Miss Allis, Miss Kurgans, Miss Lucatsky, and Miss Port. A bevy of accompanists will participate in the program—Verna Trine, Sonia Himoff, Ella Heimbrodt, Mary Nieman, and Alene Walters.

It will be interesting to see what comes out of the pooling of these six dancers' separate ideas and diverse techniques. No single schooling or point of view binds their work together. Miss Allis had her early training with Adolph Bolm and Harald Kreutzberg. Miss Kurgans studied with Lester Horton out on the west coast. Miss Lucatsky, once a member of the Pavley-Oukrainsky ballet when that group danced in performances of the San Carlo Opera company, obtained her groundwork in the modern dance from Doris Humphrey and Martha Graham. Eloise Moore is a former pupil of Berta Ochsner. Ann Port's work stems from the tradition of Mary Wigman, with whom she studied. Mildred Zook attended the Bennington, Vt., summer school of the dance, where she studied under Hanya Holm, Doris Humphrey, and Martha Graham.

This venture in coöperative performance is a highly commendable move on the part both of the dancers involved and of the sponsoring Chicago Dance council. It is not the primary purpose of the Dance council to enter the business of concert management. Yet in pursuing its policy of promoting local dance activity, it could find no other way to bring such a program as this afternoon's before the public. This concert, along with the other two in the Goodman theater series, of which it is a part, represents a financial risk to the council, and deserves the attention of all those who want to know where the modern dance is moving right here in Chicago.

The detailed program of today's concert follows:

Overture, Bourree and Chorale ... Bach
Danced by group; choreography by Frances Allis.
Song Mimes ... Hosmer; Horsman
Danced and composed by Mildred Zook.
Waltz in March Time ... Ravel
Danced and composed by Ana Kurgans.
Biguine-Biguine ... Native airs
Danced and composed by Katherine Dunham.
Fugue ... Bach
Danced by group; choreography by Frances Allis.
Celebration ...
Percussion accompaniment.
Danced and composed by Leyah Lucatsky and Ann Port.
La Campesina ... Kogon
Danced by group; choreography by Ana Kurgans.
Summertime; Plenty of Nothing ... Gershwin
Danced and composed by Frances Allis.
Dances to Poetry ...
Danced and composed by Eloise Moore.
Swing Tempo ... Anderson
Danced by group; choreography by Leyah Lucatsky and Ann Port.

With two important concerts this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon, Hans Lange makes his last appearance as conductor until the Northwestern festival in Evanston next month.

The Civic orchestra reaches the last of its series of Sunday afternoon orchestral programs in Orchestra hall this afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel the final subscription concert of the Hans Lange Chamber orchestra takes place.

Two members of Hans Lange's Civic orchestra conducting class will have a share in this afternoon's concert. Lela Hammer, conductor of the Symphony Woods orchestra in Western Springs, will direct the overture to Gluck's "Iphigenia in Aulis." Sam Raphling will conduct the nocturne and scherzo from Mendelssohn's incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The symphony of the day will be the Second of Brahms. Mr. Lange will conduct both this standard work and the less familiar Suite for wind instruments, percussions, and harp, by Albert Noelte. When Dr. Noelte is not busy either with his classes at Northwestern university or with his composing he may be discovered at Orchestra hall instilling proper principles of musical theory into the minds of the Civic orchestra's budding young instrumentalists.

After today's concert the Civic players will continue their studies and their daily rehearsals. They will appear once more in public next month in a more incidental capacity when they play accompaniments for the children participating in the Civic Music festival.

A new composer appears above the horizon in tomorrow's program of the Hans Lange Chamber orchestra. Howard Ferguson's Octet for clarinet, bassoon, horn, and string quintet will be played for the first time in Chicago. Mr. Ferguson is a young British composer, born in Belfast, Ireland, and educated at the Royal College of Music in London. He studied piano with Harold Samuel until the celebrated pianist's death in 1937. The Octet is the first of his works to be heard in Chicago.

Mr. Lange's program includes only one other composition, the famous Octet by Franz Schubert, employing the same combination of instruments required for the Ferguson work.

SOLOIST MONDAY

Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano, will be the soloist when the Chicago Business Men's orchestra gives its final concert of the season on Monday in Orchestra hall. [Maurice Photo.]

Notes of Music and Musicians

Elizabeth Biro, a Chicago soprano of Hungarian descent, will make her debut this afternoon in a Kimball hall recital. Following the first group of classic arias she will sing five Schubert lieder—"Du bist die Ruh," "Auf dem Wasser zu Singen," "Der Lindenbaum," "Frühlingsglaube," and "Wohin?" Four Russian songs, arias from "Don Giovanni" and "La Bohême," and two songs by a Hungarian composer, Kurucz, will lead into the final group of English and American songs. Lois Rhea is the accompanist.

The current production of Georg Philipp Telemann's opera, "Pimpinone," by the music department of the University of Chicago will be given its two final performances tonight and tomorrow night at the Reynolds club theater, University avenue and 57th street. This short, three act musical farce has the admirable services of Joy Fairman, soprano, and Roy Schuessler, baritone, in the only two rôles. The accompaniment is limited to string quartet and spinet, played by the conductor, Dr. Siegmund Levarie.

Two debutantes will share the program at the Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club this afternoon. Dorthe Paulsen, soprano, will be heard in operatic arias by Mozart, Gounod, and Massenet, and songs by Sinding, Edwards, Wolf, and Coates. Florence Klein, pianist, will play numbers by Bach, Scarlatti, Chopin, Henselt, Brazelton, Arensky, and Dohnanyi.

The dramatization of Mendelssohn's famous oratorio, "Elijah," which has become a tradition at the New First Congregational church, was revived this year on the 14th and 16th of this month and will be given its final presentation of the year tonight at 8 o'clock. George L. Tenney directs these performances, which are sung and acted by the United choir and the following individuals: Raymund Koch, Adelaide B. Tenney, Lucy Hartman Delano, Walter Boydston, Ethel Heide Wishover, Catherine Tenney, and T. S. Ford. The church is at Ashland and Washington boulevards. There is no admission charge.

Arcule Sheasby, violinist, will play Bruch's second concerto, in D minor, with the University Symphony orchestra of Northwestern when it gives its third concert of the season today at 4 o'clock. Dr. Albert Noelte, theory teacher at the music school, will have his suite for strings and tympani played on the program. The piece was written in 1928 and given its first performance in that year by the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The rest of the concert will be devoted to Schumann's First ["Spring"] symphony and the overture to Weber's "Euryanthe." George Dasch will conduct. The auditorium of the National College of Education, 2770 Sheridan road, Evanston, will house the concert, which is free.

The Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists will present its weekly Friday noon organ recital in Kimball hall with Allen W. Bogen as the performer. Lemare's concert fantasia on the hymn tune, "Hanover," and pieces by De la Tombelle, Bach, Mailly, and Widor will be played.

There will be no concert by the Illinois Symphony orchestra in the Great Northern theater today. The organization is in the midst of a spring tour of Illinois and it will play in Charleston this afternoon. Izler Solomon and Albert Goldberg, the regular conductors, are sharing the baton during the tour. Fritz Siegal, concertmaster, and Jenska Slebos, principal cellist, will be soloists at various concerts. Next Sunday the orchestra will be back. At that time Albert Goldberg will conduct and Stanley Fletcher, pianist, will play.

College Young, but It Builds Its Own Tradition

[Dr. Evans' booklet, "Higher Education: A Guide to Students in the Selection of a College or University," may be bought at Tribune Public Service offices for ten cents or fifteen cents by mail. The second edition is nearly exhausted.]

By the Rev. John Evans.

All college administrators agree that an education is more than book learning or classroom work. Like religion, some of the most important elements of a college education are found in association with cultured and learned faculty members, "college tradition," etc.

For instance, a shiny new dormitory may be a grand acquisition to a campus, but it won't be an educational asset of greatest value until a dozen or so generations of students have lived in it.

Stones in sidewalks and dormitory doorknobs can in time become educational assets.

Sentimentality, you say. Certainly! It is just like the sentimentality of the flag that holds the Union indissoluble, or the British crown that binds an empire together. It also can be the flavor of the personality that distinguishes between a thing and a person.

It's not all nonsense to hear of students who would die for dear old Rutgers.

The educational administrator who, not having an old college, is doing a unique job in creating "atmosphere" on his campus is Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla. Students and faculty members traverse a "Walk of Fame" as they go to and from classes, and are reminded of scores of men and women who have made the world better.

The walk is flanked by stones of all colors and contours, on which are carved the names of famous men or women, their homes or places whence the stones were taken. Dr. Holt explained that almost any time during the day he can look from his office window and see students or visitors on the walk with faces down, reading the inscriptions on the graven stones.

The walk began with a nucleus of about twenty stones, Dr. Holt said, but it has now increased to more than 600, with more coming in every day. No local celebrities or Floridians, as such, are admitted to the walk of fame.

"We have made it an invariable rule that only stones for nationally or internationally known men and women can be admitted to the walk. As a rule, we accept only stones from the homes of persons who come up, or nearly so, to being household words.

"Even so, I find that some of the stones are seldom known by our visitors, though they ought to be. For instance, almost no visitor to our walk knows that Paul Morphy was the greatest chess player that ever lived; that Prof. Willard Gibbs of Yale was undoubtedly the greatest modern mathematician of pre-Einstein days.

"Others do not know of Dr. Morton of Sterling, Mass., who discovered ether [my father told me that when my grandfather, the old country doctor, heard of the discovery of ether, he wept to think he would not have to torture people again when operating on them]. I was once explaining the walk to a large group of students, and when I came to the Adelina Patti stone I asked how many had never heard of her. About thirty raised their hands."

Dr. Holt explained that everybody in Rollins college is now a member of the committee to bring in stones. He said that no one now disputes that virtually all Americans of undisputed first rank are now represented, and about thirty or forty of second rank. All of the Presidents and chief justices of the United States and half of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, he said, are represented.

Kings of foreign countries and United States senators are not admitted ex-officio, Dr. Holt stated. They have to be kings and senators, plus, he added.

"It is a curious fact," said Dr. Holt, "that only two men out of 600 in the walk got there as a result of material achievement and success. These are John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie. Every other man and woman had to achieve supremely in the realm of the mind or the spirit. To be immortal, one must found a republic, win a war, paint a Sistine Madonna, compose of "Parsifal," write a "Hamlet," fly over the pole, or preserve the human voice in wax."

4 Fellowships

Four composers were among those granted fellowships by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation this year. They are Anis Fuleihan, Paul Creston, William Schumann, and Ernst Bacon. Robert Donaldson Darrell, author of "The Gramophone Shop Encyclopedia of Recorded Music," was likewise given an award for the purpose of preparing a book for the layman giving a new approach to musical experience through the use of the phonograph, radio, and sound film. These fellowships are worth approximately $2,500 a year.

Good Morning!

Another finely etched biography of a great man has come to our screens! It is "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell."

In no way does the film "go Hollywood." It is an honest, unglossed, and therefore tremendously interesting tale of the young Scotchman who arrived in Boston by way of Canada, became "an American citizen by choice," started work on a multiple telegraph instrument, and, while thus occupied, conceived the idea which centered his attention on the invention of a machine that would transmit sound by wire.

For more than ten years Bell and a young electrician friend, Thomas Watson, starved and worked, worked and starved. And, upon one occasion, the former, sick with yearning for a normal, comfortable life, would have thrown everything to the winds but for the encouragement of his deaf fiancée, who insisted that he persevere and whose faith in his ultimate success never wavered.

Mabel was the daughter of Gardner Hubbard, who had invested in Bell's multiple telegraph, but who refused to have anything to do with the telephone proposition . . . [at first!].

When the news of the notion is sprung on him he goes stern parent with a vengeance. . . . Bell is a visionary! . . . He must cease coming to the Hubbard residence and courting the Hubbard daughter. . . .

But—and here is a moving episode—Bell has taught the beloved little deaf mute son of the prominent and wealthy Thomas Sanders to speak.

And Sanders is not one to forget. . . . With Mabel he stands by through vicissitudes which, of course, are eventually swallowed up in triumph.

Mabel becomes Mrs. Bell when the youthful scientist is summoned to England to demonstrate his telephone to Queen Victoria. . . .

Don Ameche has never accomplished anything so fine as his portrayal of Bell. . . . Patient and persistent direction did away with one annoying mannerism and he gives a sympathetic, believable, and entirely sincere characterization. His enthusiasm is infectious—his despair—the saddest thing . . . ! And wistful little boy, determined man, and rapt genius are cunningly combined in his depiction.

Loretta Young is lovely and lovable as Bell's great white light. Arresting performances are contributed by Charles Coburn, Gene Lockhart, little Bobs Watson, and Henry Fonda. You'll approve of the entire cast.

As for staging, direction, costumes, photography—the best, my friends, the BEST!

Item: Picture's a little too long. There are several places where shears could have been used to advantage.

See you tomorrow.

Above: Mrs. James H. Dunbar is one of a large committee working for the success of the South Shore Country club horse show to be held June 10 and 11 for the benefit of three centers of the Infant Welfare society, the Beverly Hills, the Kenwood Social Service club, and the South Shore.

Below: Mrs. Justin A. Stanley and other wives of Dartmouth alumni are making plans to attend the Chicago Dartmouth club's scholarship benefit dance on May 13 in the ballroom of the Drake. The party is one of the gayest on the spring calendar.

Above: Mrs. James C. Bowman is a member of the La Grange center of the Infant Welfare society which is sponsoring two parties on May 5, a luncheon, bridge and style show at the Edgewood Valley Country club and a hobo party with dancing and roller skating at Mellody Mill.

Above: Miss Jean Ericson, daughter of the Chester F. Ericsons of Lake Shore drive, will act as a salesgirl at a white elephant sale the directors of Grove House, Evanston, are giving at 1307 Chicago avenue, Evanston, on Thursday. Doors will open at 8:30 o'clock.

(TRIBUNE PHOTOS.)

Discovers April Days Are Rainy, but Never Dull

By Cousin Eve.

April days are by no means dull, though swift rains patter and north winds blow. So, too, does it rain in California, and even the south is murky.

The John A. Carpenters, all set for the spring at Eze, in an eagle's aerie at the top of the rocky cliff back of Cap Ferat, are coming Chicagoward instead, for the month of May. But Charles and Suzette Dewey left on the Normandie before Easter and have been in Poland, their second home. Warsaw is a compact, brilliant, not overlarge capital, and at this season the noble landowners are still in town.

The American ambassador, Tony Biddle, and his wealthy wife are the greatest party givers Warsaw has ever seen. They occupy the Raczynski palace, a square, vast building almost impossible to heat, and are a gay, attractive pair. Count and Countess Zamoiski are close friends of the Deweys and have a wonderful palace with a gorgeous foyer whose walls are covered with silken standards, embroidered tent hangings, and trophies of gold taken by the Poles at the battle of Vienna when Europe was saved from the Turk. The Polish nobility, after that battle, divided up enough gold plate to enrich their posterity.

A strange thing happened one day last season when the Deweys were calling upon Countess Zamoiska. They were before the fire in the magnificent library chatting about the great Polish patriot, Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, who was a protégé of the Zamoiski family. In running his eye over the book shelves Charles Dewey drew a volume at random, opened it, found a sheet of paper marking a page. This sheet was scratched up with a battle plan and signed Kosciusko. It was a sketch of the battle of Saratoga where Burgoyne was defeated Oct. 17, 1777, and Kosciusko, returning to Warsaw 160 years ago, made a sketch of his strategy for his friends and patrons, the Zamoiskis. The paper had been folded away in a book for a century and a half, unknown to the family.

Mrs. Frank Hibbard again is chairman of something new and nice, a spring white elephant party at the Esquire theater.

As usual, the price of admission is a gift to the charity which is the Children's Memorial hospital, 90 per cent free. This gift may be money, clothing which has ceased to please, or objects of art, as the case may be. Mary Chase in Lake Forest writes a letter that would touch a heart of stone. "We are a swell board, we work hard and deserve a helping hand." I think it will be a cute party, and hope to go. Movies of the committee with explanatory verses by Mrs. Chase, and instead of the usual elaborate tea, sweets passed in the lobby.

Women of this board, as I recall them, are: Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Augustus Maxwell, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Nelson Barnes, Mrs. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Harold Howard, Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. William Greenlee.

Chicago women are celebrated for their charitable work, and not only do they do a lot of good in this world, but they have a good time doing it. Nobody works harder than the Red Cross group, or raises more money. And yet they do not pull long faces by any means. The ladies of this board had a costume dinner-dance in the winter, where several of our distinguished social leaders were so well wigged, painted, and disguised that nobody knew them.

On Tuesday Mrs. Frederic Upham and Irene Sidley headed for Washington by motor for the Red Cross annual meeting. And Mrs. Charles Garfield King and Mrs. Richardson Dunham, two other delegates, went on via New York. Mrs. King had stayed over in Chicago for the announcement of her son Garfield's engagement to lovely young Kay Goodman, second daughter of Mrs. James Hopkins.

Secretary of State Hull is to address the Red Cross meeting this year, and Miss Mabel Boardman, première spinster and great hostess of Washington, whose mansion is still run in the grand manner, dines the delegates and stirs up social excitements for their leisure hours.

Sorting over invites and engagement pad, the week to come has variety and good times aplenty.

Tomorrow afternoon at 209 Lake Shore drive, chez Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, American Friends of China will meet up with the Chinese Cultural Theater group. Then we shall discover just what this word "cultural" means. The company will give a performance in Orchestra hall Wednesday night called "An Evening in Cathay."

At 9 o'clock tomorrow night guests of Consul General of Denmark and Mrs. Reimund Baumann, invited to meet the crown prince and princess of that fair realm, must be seated in the ballroom by 9:20. After that precise minute only the elevators carrying the royal party will go aloft. The program of music will last forty minutes, and several dinners will go before, one that Dr. and Mrs. Baumann are giving for the royalties, and another given by Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Small.

On Tuesday evening the grand banquet at the Stevens given by the Danish colony in compliment to the royal couple is interesting mostly to Danes, but a few Americans who have Danish connections and friends are expecting to be present.

The Arts club has today, its nicest party of the year when the professional members show their canvases and sculpture. The hours are from half after four, and a most hefty buffet supper completes the occasion. There is always a crowd, and the same is true of the evening to follow, when the Playwright's theater presents an adaptation by Helen Stambaugh on Thursday, April 27. These plays are always amusing and terrifically jammed.

WILL BE WED IN FALL

Miss Jane-Ellen Cavanagh, whose engagement to Frank Crowe has been announced by her mother, Mrs. James Alfred Cavanagh. · The wedding will take place in the fall.

Mrs. Jacob Baur had a quite large luncheon Tuesday in honor of the wives of our commanding generals, the party going on later to the Cercle Français bridge at the Woman's Athletic club. We are very lucky in Chicago for the charming people sent here to live by the war department. At the present moment we have Gen. and Mrs. Stanley Ford, the general commanding the 6th corps area and living in town. Gen. and Mrs. Karl Truesdell are on the post at Fort Sheridan. Both army wives are vivid women of social graces and charming looks. Others at the luncheon were Mrs. Maj. Cooke, Mrs. Besse, Mrs. Royden Williamson, who has come lately from Istanbul where the major was military attaché. Mrs. Williamson is a French woman, most distinguished, with interesting recollections of Kemal Ataturk, late dictator of Turkey.

Others of the group were Mrs. William Ming and Mrs. Thuis, whose husband, Col. Charles Thuis, had just that day got orders from the war department to proceed to Lincoln, Neb. There he will head the military department at the University of Nebraska. Col. and Mrs. Thuis have lived in Chicago for more than eight years, partaking of our joys and sorrows and making friends in all cricles. We shall miss them much. And Maj. and Mrs. Cooke, who are going to the University of Florida; also Admiral and Mrs. Hayne Ellis, who are leaving Great Lakes. The admiral confided this news some weeks ago, radiating more delight and joy at leaving Chicago than was exactly flattering. However, he explained that it was his turn at sea, and being a sailor at heart and no landlubber, he was naturally happy. The Ellises are a most handsome, decorative family. When the admiral has on formal dress and all his regalia, also a few of his lovely children in the offing, my word but we are proud of our Georgia products.

Following hard on this military luncheon in Mrs. Baur's museum or repository of butterflies, which she calls home, was one of the best teas the English speaking union has had, ever. The guest of honor, who addressed the party after tea, was David Hardman, a Scotsman and lecturer and author.

He is young and rated "the most brilliant speaker who ever has been president of the Cambridge union, famous debating society at the English university." Mr. Hardman is professor of English literature at Cambridge and his topic was "What About Shakespeare?" That he spoke entrancingly on this far from new subject is proved by this: One went home and, having dined, jerked out of its oblivion a volume of Shakespeare that has been in the family almost a hundred years and read and read.

Were Shakespeare alive today, he would enjoy royalties of more than $500,000 a year and movie rights of something less. Hamlet, said Mr. Hardman, was the most fascinating and thrilling of all the great poet's plays. And of all fifteen Hamlets he had seen playing up and down the English speaking world, that of Maurice Evans was the best, the only one neither effeminate nor lacking in fire and correct interpretation.

Something of an actor himself, Hardman spellbound his hearers, explaining the excellence of the triple Elizabethan stage, the beauty of passages from Merry Wives, Richard II., Winter's Tale, and Romeo and Juliet.

The English union has a nice way of late of giving the honored guest tea at the top table, where later he stands and speaks. At this table were seated President Samuel M. Rinaker, Mrs. Rinaker, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Solomon Smith Jr., Mrs. Russell Kelley, Mrs. Henry Field. Nearby were Mrs. William Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loesch, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Frederick de Long, Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Mrs. Harney Bassett, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, and Mrs. Lewis Bernays.

Much better news from the popular British Consul General Lewis Bernays, whose desperate illness since last May when he returned from a quick trip to London, has kept him abed. Just now he is making a good recovery at Billings Memorial hospital, and his pretty wife and three stalwart boys are looking far more cheerful. Grand news also from New York where our old friends the Godfrey Haggards have the consular post after having five years in Paris. Some luck, I should say, for the Haggards are charming and full of life and are sure to take like wildfire. Godfrey Haggard is a nephew of that old novelist, who in a past decade shattered the world with a story called "She."—Sir Rider Haggard.

Chicago has gained in Gallic charm since Renée came last autumn, Renée being the little name of Mrs. Leander McCormick. Renée comes near being the rage, that is if the times were better and people were given the rush as in days of yore. As it is, a party without Renée's delightful wit and even more delightful face, is a dullish affair. But even more fascinating than the two above mentioned charms, is her way of speaking English, the things she says in Anglo-Saxon. People hold their breath lest they miss something. So radio, stretching out its long tentacles, has found Renée, and one day she will sing for us, in Gallic accents, and then we will want television to see the face behind the mike.

Leander McCormick has adopted his young step-daughter, Marie Blanche, who has been going about this season with the young sub-debs of our society, and she is now Marie Blanche McCormick.

These April showers will be bringing forth fall pleasures as well as spring flowers, for women's committees are now digging in for intensive work. Kate Bartholomay Osborne, one of the three ladies whose names appear with that exalted musical group, "Members of the Orchestral association," has sounded the clarion call for the grand get together of the sales committees, of which she is chairman. But the lovely Mrs. Osborne will, alack, not be here for the start, as she is still lingering on a ranch in New Mexico. Her vice chairman, Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, will, however, carry on in her place.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr. became president last year, representing a younger group, and a marked number of young setters has since been seen in the audiences. The Harvard Glee club innovation a fortnight ago, singing the Good Friday choruses, was the proof of a desire for change in the musical routine of these concerts. It was most diverting to see two rows of young collegians in the usual bare space back of the orchestra. For twenty years Harvard's Glee club has sworn off from "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" and other glee club ditties in favor of Bach, Brahms, Schuman, etc. Whether Arthur Cable, Harvard graduate and third vice president, brought the Harvard lads here, or President Ryerson, a Yale alumnus,, it was a welcome change abetted as it was by the solos of William Miller and Lillian Knowles.

Illinois Music Clubs to Hold 3 Day Meeting

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will summon musicians and music enthusiasts from all parts of the state to its annual convention next Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday at Springfield. Headquarters will be at the Abraham Lincoln hotel.

Contest finals for junior musicians and a dinner with male choruses featured on the program are scheduled for Sunday. The formal opening session Monday morning will be followed by a luncheon, a program of Illinois composers' works, and a tea at the governor's mansion.

On Monday evening young artist winners of the district contest recently sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs will be presented at a formal banquet. Miss Elizabeth Brown, singer; Thaddeus Kozuch, pianist, and David Moll, violinist, are the winners.

Elections, other business, and a luncheon with presidents of the federation's member clubs as special guests will fill Tuesday's sessions. Mrs. Ira Linwood McKinnie of Springfield, state president, will conduct the sessions.

The song that won Mrs. Marjorie Elliott first prize in the state composers' contest just sponsored by the federation will be included with several other songs by her on the Illinois' composers program Monday. A trio, including Thelma Olmsted, soprano; Margaret Abbey, violinist, and Mrs. Elliott, pianist, all members of the Lake View Musical society, will appear on this program.

Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, dean of American women composers of opera, also will take part in this program with Mae Doelling Schmidt, pianist; Gladys Porter, soprano, will sing several compositons of Mrs. H. L. Engle.

Other Chicago district members who will be presented on the convention program are Mrs. Madeline Seymour, soprano; Margaret Derr, pianist, and the Rejebian duo pianists, including Tilda Rejebian Davidson and Margaret Struve. Mrs. Frank P. Whitmore, president of the federation's Chicago district, will head a large delegation from the Chicago area.

It was announced last week that Irwin Fischer, Chicago pianist and composer, won the federation's contest for piano compositions.

The famous Finlandia male chorus of seventy voices will be entertained at a reception and supper next Saturday evening following its concert at Orchestra hall. The Finnish Civic Association of Chicago will be host at the party at 11 o'clock in the north ballroom of the Stevens hotel. The chorus was organized three years ago specifically to make this American tour. Heikki Keemetti is the conductor.

Present to greet the chorus will be Dr. Viljo K. Nikander, president of Suomi college, Hancock, Mich. Elmer A. Forsberg, president of the association; W. M. Kolehmainen, chairman of the reception committe; Miss Edna M. Hyttinen, chairman of hostesses; Henry E. Voegeli, Frank E. Nelson, and Mrs. Joseph P. Varkala are among those active in arrangments for the party.

Women Voters' Leaders Will Meet in Capital

The League of Women Voters will consider how best both to expand and intensify its activities when leaders gather Thursday in Washington, D. C., for the biennial general council meeting.

A banquet Friday evening, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Judge Florence E. Allen, first woman judge of a United States Circuit Court of Appeals, as speakers and Mrs. Robert A. Taft as toastmistress, will be an event of the three day meeting.

Mrs. Roosevelt formerly was an active member of the New York League of Women Voters. Judge Allen, once a worker for woman's suffrage, later was the first woman to be elected judge of a court of general jurisdiction. Mrs. Taft was a member of the league's national board until she resigned to campaign for her husband, the Ohio senator.

Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright of Chicago, the league's national chairman of government and foreign policy, also will speak on "The Duties of a Citizen in a Present-Day Democracy in Relation to the World Situation."

Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister and Miss Marian Martin, who respectively direct the women's activities of the Democratic and Republican parties, will be guests at the dinner.

The Illinois League of Women Voters already is busy with preparations for its eighteenth annual state convention to be held May 8, 9, and 10 in Urbana, Ill. Mrs. Wright will speak at the opening luncheon on "America's Stake in Foreign Policy."

Mrs. Paul Eliel, secretary of the national league, also will be on the program. This remarkable woman has served on the governor's committee to study government and taxation in California, has been connected with the state employment service in an advisory capacity, and has worked for legislative reform in her state without missing a legislative session since 1923. She also founded an experimental school in Berkeley, Cal., and is a former president of the Berkeley board of education.

Dr. Charles E. Shulman, rabbi of North Shore Congregational Israel in Glencoe, will speak at the banquet session May 9. His topic will be "What Does Democracy Mean?"

Mrs. Robert C. McNamara of Winnetka has been appointed convention chairman. Committees assisting her are headed by Mrs. Arthur Hamilton of Urbana, local arrangements; Mrs. Guy Stewart, Champaign, credentials; Mrs. L. W. Sager, Champaign, meals; Mrs. Theodore Pease, Urbana, information; Miss Mary Davis, Urbana, membership; Mrs. W. C. Rose, Urbana, sightseeing; Mrs. A. J. Janata, Urbana, tea; Mrs. D. P. Locklin, Urbana, transportation; Mrs. James Capel, Champaign, ushers.

Other committees are headed by Mrs. Walter J. Rubens, Highland Park, amusement; Mrs. Herbert E. Lawson, Chicago, exhibits; Mrs. Robert J. Phillips, Glen Ellyn, state publications; Mrs. J. L. Williamson, Urbana, local publications. Mrs. Raymond S. Simons, Highland Park, state publicity; Mrs. Charles N. Drenckhahn, Champaign, local publicity; Mrs. O. N. Foreman, Jacksonville, resolutions; Miss Hilda Stein, Carbondale, rules; Mrs. Donald Mann, Evanston, by-laws; Mrs. E. H. Reeder, Champaign, timekeeper; Mrs. L. Cass Brown, La Grange, parliamentarian.

WILL LIVE IN JANESVILLE

Mrs. Cleland Phelps Fisher is the former June Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lincoln Guilford of Chicago. Mr. Fisher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Fisher of Janesville, Wis. Mr. Fisher and his bride will make their home in Janesville after a wedding trip in the south.

Townsendia Daisies Do Well in Soil That Is Dry, Sandy

Townsendia is a low growing herbaceous plant with daisy-like flowers. Native to the Rocky Mountains, it seems to be worthy of being better known among gardeners in search of something different. There is, of course, a large quantity of these aster or daisy flowered plants to choose from. But here is one that should commend itself to those whose soil is poor, dry, and sandy.

The flowers are bright blue to violet, with individual rays about a half inch long. Fully developed plants are about ten to fourteen inches high, some being biennial, while others of the genus are perennial. It is native from Nebraska to Colorado and New Mexico, and blooms in late summer and early fall.

Revival of Herbs Stirs Interest in Scented Leaves

The revival of interest in herb gardens has also brought increased interest in scented leaved plants. It is true that in some sections the call for herbs has dropped. But a few varieties are going to continue to be in favor.

Such old timers as rosemary, sage, and thyme are easily grown from seeds. With the exception of rosemary, the plants are tolerably hardy. Santolina is another useful and popular herb, also much used for bedding. This plant is easily grown from cuttings.

In addition to the aforementioned plants, there are both lemon scented verbenas and scented leaved geraniums. Of the latter there are probably 100 or more varieties, but what is called the rose leaved geranium is easily the most popular.

Island of the Apocalypse.

Tourists on Mediterranean cruises often have the opportunity not only to see Palestine but to visit Patmos, the little island where Saint John received the visions recorded in the Book of Revelation.

Club Women on Qui Vive; It's Election Time

By Betty Browning.

Even club women have their revolutions. This is the season for them. Just as French governments always step softly through July, with memories of the Bastille and the street barricades of 1830 still vividly in mind, so the powers that rule every woman's club keep vigilant watch during March and April. It's election time.

Mrs. J. Albert M. Robinson. [Hartough Photo.]

The other day the conservative Beverly Hills Woman's club had the most successful revolution within the memory of this club editor. From it a seasoned leader, Mrs. J. Albert M. Robinson, emerged as both president and program chairman. This unprecedented concentration of power was due to the fact that Mrs. Robinson had the support of the revolutionaries for the former office, of the unhorsed party for the latter.

What happened, briefly, was this: The nominating committee, forced to choose between two strong candidates for president, compromised on a third. But the rank and file rebelled. They wrote Mrs. Robinson's name on the ballot. The nominating committee had nominated her for program chairman, however. So, at the same time that the revolutionaries elected her president, the conservatives elected her program chairman.

The aim of the entire club world is to maintain a united front to the outer world. "We are all working together toward a common goal," is the official point of view of conscientious club members.

One way to preserve this harmonious front is to relegate differences to the comparative privacy of the nominating committee's sessions. Within the confines of this small group of picked club leaders rival factions contend with each other for the presidency and other offices. By the time the members at large learn of the struggle it is over. One set of candidates emerges for them to vote on without opposition.

But occasionally there is an uprising. Thus, last spring the Chicago Society of Ohio Women unexpectedly elected Mrs. Park Q. Wray president in much the fashion that Mrs. Robinson was elected.

This chic, pretty woman had served her fellow Ohioans in a number of offices, and also had had presidential experience at the helm of the Rogers Park Neighborhood c'·b.

Nor could the wisdom of the Beverly Hills club's choice be questioned, even by supporters of the defeated candidate. For years Mrs. Robinson had served this strong organization of 500, which, by the way, has that rarest of indorsements, a waiting list. Mrs. Robinson had been program chairman and publicity chairman, to mention but two of her long list of activities. She, of course, has resigned the office of program chairman to be president.

Just now the rival candidacies of two women for the vice presidency of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs are furnishing the most exhilarating news prior to that organization's annual convention next week at the Hotel Sherman. This office ranks second only to the presidency, for the successful candidate will have jurisdiction over the entire northern region of the state.

Neutral observers give Mrs. Fred M. Tuckerman an edge over her opponent, Mrs. George A. Harriman, for Mrs. Tuckerman has become particularly well known throughout the state as the federation's recording secretary for the last three years. A candidate of the 9th district, she also has the prestige of active leadership in the Chicago Woman's club. Her executive ability is particularly stressed by her supporters.

Mrs. Harriman has the backing of the powerful 7th district, numbering fifty-three northwest side and suburban clubs, of which she is a former president. She has served the federation in such varied capacities as chairman of literature, member of the executive and resolution committees, and district chairman of juniors. She also gives book reviews. Her own club is the Irving Park Woman's club.

Although rivalry is keen, the contest is proceeding most decorously, for Mrs. William T. Bruckner, state president, has banned electioneering. That has ruled out the customary introduction of candidates at district and club meetings; that is, the introduction of candidates as such. Likewise, all solicitation of support officially is limited to listing the candidates' qualifications in the federation bulletin.

MARRIED TO EASTERNER

Mrs. Alexander Crane Burgess is the former Miss Mary Lois McMullen, daughter of Mrs. Frederic Bogart McMullen of Scarsdale, N. Y., formerly of Evanston, and a granddaughter of the late James Bates McMullen, Chicago publisher. Her marriage to the son of Mrs. Thomas F. Burgess of Scarsdale took place March 11.

Next Friday the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organizations will elect officers and hear reports at an all day meeting at headquarters, 209 South State street. Luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. Henry W. Hartough is president.

The Big Sisters will go to the Convent of Our Lady of the Cenacle at Warrenville, Ill., Tuesday morning to hold their annual meeting and luncheon. Preceding the meeting holy mass will be held at 10 o'clock in memory of Mrs. Edward Hines and Miss Anna R. Ward. Mrs. George V. McIntyre heads the organization.

Prof. Sam B. Sloan, for forty years a member of the University of Iowa English department, will speak at the final luncheon meeting of the Friends of American Writers Wednesday at the Chicago Athletic association. Prof. Sloan's subject will be "Tendencies in Modern American Fiction." Max Siegal, author of "Boys' Club," also will be a guest.

Preceding the luncheon officers will report on the year's activities. Mrs. James D. Cooney, retiring president, will turn over her responsibilities to Mrs. Charles H. Stresenreuter. Other incoming officers are Mrs. William G. Wise, first vice president; Mrs. Arthur E. Joslyn, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur R. Webber, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George L. Webster, treasurer. Mrs. George B. Van Buren becomes vice president and chairman of the Foundation for Literature committee, through which the Friends award $1,000 each year to an outstanding author.

Season in Art Hits High Point in Grant Show

By Eleanor Jewett.

The exhibition of recent paintings by Frederic M. Grant in the Anderson galleries is an outstanding event of the season. Mr. Grant is probably the greatest colorist Chicago has. For years he has been noted for the rich brilliancy of his palette and the dramatic fashion in which he builds up his pictures. They suggest Brangwyn a little, and yet borrow nothing from that world famous painter.

At the time of Chicago's Century of Progress exposition it was Frederic Grant who told the story of the fair the most beautifully of any of his fellow artists who also took it as their theme. The twenty or so paintings of the fair by Mr. Grant were shown in the Anderson galleries and later the Art institute was begged in vain to give them gallery room. They should have been bought by the institute or the city to be kept as a group, so that some token other than the memory of Sally Rand might have been handed down for later generations to judge us by. The Columbian exposition left us the heritage of the Field museum, now the Rosenwald Museum of Industrial Art. A Century of Progress exposition has only the solitary little dark Fort Dearborn on the lake front to bear modest witness to the colorful pageant we staged not a handful of years ago.

In the current exhibition of Mr. Grant's work is one painting of the "1933—Chicago Fair." It is a stunning picture, but does not replace the series of smaller pictures which were his first comment on the exposition. There are a number of little canvases in the show, chiefly of Balinese subjects: "Pottery," "Juggler," and "Bridge." Each is fascinating, a wealth of engaging detail in a web of rich and luscious color.

There are many brilliant large paintings on the walls. The romantic landscapes with towering trees and full clouds, the people grouped or sauntering in the foreground, with walls or gateways making a dramatic backdrop, are in the manner to which earlier paintings by Mr. Grant have accustomed us. The several magnificently handled still life arrangements—"Roses and Old Print," "Petunias and Old China," "Brass and Fruit"—are in a newer vein and are among his most intriguing achievements. In texture, color, and composition they put him in the front rank of any lineup of American painters, including Hovsep Pushman. The solitary abstraction, "Orchestration," is a triumphant canvas with an atmosphere of marching banners. You can feel the lift to it, up, up and higher yet—a victor's song of unwritten music.

Another exhibition of particular importance this month is the showing of recent paintings by Lane K. Newberry at the Drake hotel under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. Many of the paintings are of western landscapes, giving us glimpses of the Mormon trek from Illinois so many years ago. There are covered wagons and pioneers, and now and again a little homestead. The pictures were painted in part in the South Pass country, a strip of comparatively unknown territory in Wyoming; it is the only spot where the Mormon and Oregon trails are still exactly as they were 100 years ago.

For some reason South Pass, which is one of the lowest passes in the Rocky mountains, has never been crossed by a railroad or a hard road. These paintings of it introduce a stretch of country about which most of us are ignorant. According to them, it is a land of purple mountains and green valleys, a rugged country, lonely, but well worth finding. Mr. Newberry sets fire to the imagination, both in what he reveals and in what he leaves untold. The pictures are among the finest he has done. The very finest, to some minds, will prove to be the large canvas at the far end of the gallery, which shows water, boats, a dock, and house and people. There is a great deal of solid, sound, good painting in this. It has a distinct atmosphere and an urgent summons. Another noteworthy canvas, a small one, is "Sunning," old men on a bench. You cannot pass it without a smile and a backward look.

The spring exhibition of paintings by members of the South Side Art association is current in the mezzanine gallery of the Auditorium hotel. It is an unusually good show, with many sparkling and pleasing pictures. First prize went to the "Lamont," by Tunis Ponsen; second place was awarded the brilliant "Cannas," by Florence Ezzell Stevenson, and the third prize was given to "South African Flowers," by Carolyne B. McCracken. This last is a delightful canvas. The flowers really were brought from South Africa and lived long enough for the artist to paint them, an interesting fact.

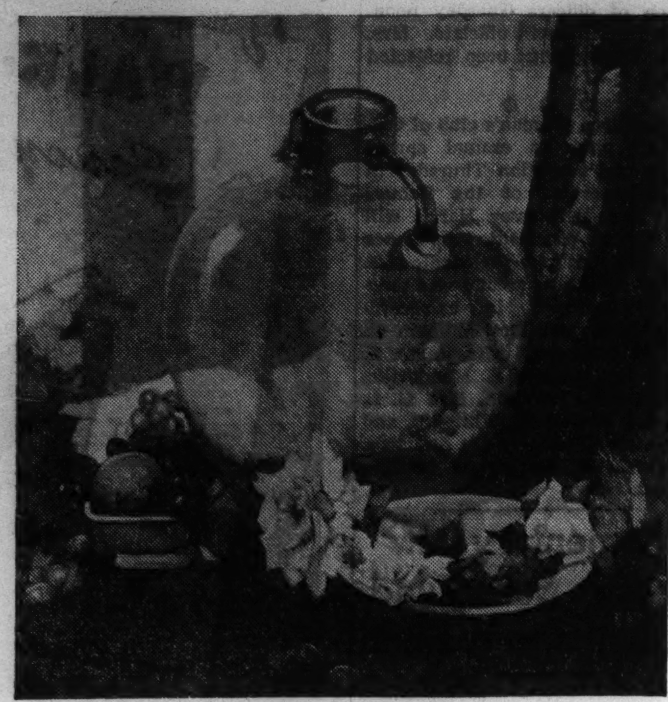
Signe Palmblad, who is 69 years old now, and whose Swedish paintings and American landscapes we have followed with pleasure for a number of years, is having an exhibit for two weeks from April 20 at the Sheridan theater.

The Renaissance society of the University of Chicago is sponsoring an exhibition of paintings by L. Moholy-Nagy, director of the school of design, daily, including Sundays, from 2 to 5, at 109 Goodspeed hall. The show will continue to May 7. The artist is one of the famous group of Bauhaus painters, very advanced, ultra modern.



GRANT'S "VENETIAN BOTTLE"

The finest colorist in Chicago, Frederic M. Grant, is showing a group of recent paintings in the Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue, through April. This is his first one-man exhibit in two years.

Many Benefits to Aid Chicago Clubs Planned

Twenty-four hours a day the Chicago Maternity center sends its physicians and nurses to the aid of impoverished mothers. In garrets and basements babies are ushered into the world with a skill that has established a record low maternal and baby mortality rate for the country. Last year alone 3,073 babies were delivered by the center.

The board of directors, headed by Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, founder of the center, last week began a drive for $50,000 to carry on this work. The center, which never refuses a call for help, in turn is appealing to the general public for help to meet the increasing demands on its services. Besides delivering the babies in their homes, the center cares for them until they are 30 days old, insuring them a healthy start in life. Prenatal care also is given the mothers. Each year some 13,500 mothers and babies are treated at the clinics. Another function of the center is to train hundreds of young physicians and nurses.

Clark J. Lawrence is vice chairman of the drive, with Daggett Harvey, treasurer, and Mrs. George Henry Schulz, secretary.

A survey recently conducted among pupils of twelve Chicago elementary schools has revealed that 96 per cent have defective teeth. Through a card party Wednesday evening the Mouth Hygiene council, which coöperated in making the survey, will raise funds to help finance its campaign to educate parents and children in the care of the teeth. The party will be held at the Morrison hotel with Mrs. Warner Sivyer in charge.

Dr. David W. Adams, president of the Chicago Dental society; Dr. Harold Welch, the society's president elect, and A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education of the Chicago board of education, are among those interested in the event.

Miss Cora Deng, for eight years industrial secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in China, will describe the rôle of young people in China today when she addresses a scholarship luncheon under the auspices of the industrial and business women's departments of the Y. W. C. A. Thursday noon at the Central branch, 59 East Monroe street. Proceeds of the meeting will go toward scholarships to send young Chicago workers to the Bryn Mawr and the University of Wisconsin summer schools for industrial and office workers.

The Junior Business and Professional Women's club will give a benefit dessert bridge party next Sunday at the home of its counselor, Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, 5341 North Glenwood avenue. The club maintains a scholarship fund to help young girls obtain business training.

The De Paul settlement and day nursery will receive the proceeds of the auxiliary's annual card party Saturday afternoon at the Drake hotel. Mrs. John A. Donahue, president, is working on arrangements with Mrs. Edward R. Diederich, general chairman; Mrs. Bernard P. Barasa, cochairman, and a large committee.

The annual sale of merchandise made by needy blind persons will be held under the auspices of the Blind Service association Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at Mandel Brothers' store. Mrs. William Prentiss is chairman of the sale, with Mrs. Richard Fuchs and Mrs. Milton D. Smith, co-chairmen, and Miss Mary Howell, Mrs. A. Orwin, Mrs. Sydney Eckstone, Mrs. L. Weil, Mrs. Carl Lang, Mrs. Herbert Mintz, Mrs. Emanuel M. Schwartz, and Mrs. Joseph A. Weil assisting.

Next Saturday evening the association will be host to the blind of the city and their escorts at a party at the Douglas park refectory. There will be waltzes and other dances with prizes. Art Notes

The Sanity in Art exhibition, under the leadership of Mrs. Frank G. Logan, will open May 1 at the Stevens hotel, to continue to June 1.

The North Shore Art league announces an exhibition of paintings by Rudolph Ingerle at Community house, Winnetka, from April 21 to April 30.

Elizabeth Orton Jones, whose entrancing "Sewing Circle" is a great favorite in the current Chicago Society of Etchers' brilliant exhibition at the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building, is enjoying a one-man show of her prints at the Smithsonian institution, Washington, D. C.

The fourteenth annual Chicago No-Jury Society of Artists exhibit will open April 30 in the Garfield park museum, to remain on view to May 15.

The masterpiece of the month at the Art institute is a rare covered jade bowl with stand of the Chinese Chien-lung period [1736-1796 A. D.]. It is an exquisite piece. It is said to have come from the summer palace of the emperors at Jehol.

No Wearing o' the Green.

At Gleneagles, Scottish golfing resort, there is a special course with unusually tough grass where beginners may swing and hack with drivers and mashies to their hearts' content without injuring the turf.

Final Days of Season Near at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

It's open season on bargains along Worth avenue, the State street of Palm Beach. Every time a coconut falls from one of the swaying trees that grow out of the middle of the sidewalk another discount drops. Some of the shops already are closing, and window displays feature dark ballet skirted travel ensembles topped with hats that mark an all-time high in the A. A. A.—absurdity, audacity, and arrogance—with absolutely nothing plowed under.

The Alibi, exotic little cocktail bar which was such a popular and fashionable rendezvous all season, has closed its portals, and the cellophane palms trees that framed the doorway have been packed in mothballs or whatever is used to pack away a cellophane palm tree. George, the Everglades club bartender who keeps a diary, has departed hence, taking with him the little book in which he jotted down those priceless impressions of the people he served with such an impassive countenance.

The Bath and Tennis club remains open, its doorman, who used to be coachman for Stuyvesant Fish, smiling a welcome to all. Miss Emily Spear gave a luncheon there, having among her guests Mrs. Walter Scott Leeds, Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, Mrs. Grant Warren Spear, and Robert F. Carr. Mr. Carr left early last week for Chicago.

Mrs. Marvin Hughitt entertained Saturday with a luncheon at the Bath and Tennis. Mr. and Mrs. Hughitt will remain in Palm Beach until early May. They will divide their summer between Chicago and their farm at Bourbonnais.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr. will leave in a few days for Baltimore to attend the Maryland Hunt club race before returning to their home in Lake Forest.

George Albert Eddy joined Mrs. Eddy this week at their villa. They left Saturday for New York accompanied by their daughter, Miss Lorraine Eddy, and their son, George Albert Eddy Jr., and later will return to their home in Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wright Stewart are remaining at Villa d'Alja in Ocean Ridge until some time in May, meantime going to New York for a week in the near future. Mr. Stewart's father, Col. Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, will be their guest for a fortnight. Col. Stewart gave a family dinner at Cap's Place, a quaint little sea food restaurant several miles south of Palm Beach which has a Tahitian atmosphere.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr. entertained at luncheon for Col. Stewart on Wednesday.

Mrs. Vilas Norton and her small son, David Vilas, will leave April 25 for her home in Chicago. Mrs. Norton won the women's Everglades golf championship this season for the second consecutive time.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rich and children are spending the week-end cruising among the keys on board the Idle Hour.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum are remaining at their Ocean way residence until May 1 before going to their home in Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nuveen are returning to Chicago this week-end after spending more than three months at Villa Bleu on Ocean boulevard.

The wedding of Miss Ann Poeller and Ralph Norton of Chicago is scheduled to take place later this year in Connecticut.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert was hostess to a small party of friends for tea on Saturday at Lyndon. Mrs. Hert is remaining until May and then is going to her home in Louisville, Ky. She plans to return to Palm Beach next December.

2,000 Girl Scout Leaders to Attend Convention Here

Some 2,000 Girl Scout leaders of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin will attend the fifteenth annual Great Lakes region conference opening next Sunday at the Palmer House. The Chicago Girl Scout council will be hostess at the three day meeting, together with the Wilmette, Winnetka, Highland Park, Glencoe, Rockford, and Hammond councils.

Mrs. Frederick Edey.

Chicago Girl Scouts will take part in a "Scouts Own" ceremony Sunday afternoon, and a regional committee meeting and supper will follow. More than 300 Chicago Girl Scout leaders will take part in a ceremony formally opening the convention Monday morning and closing it Tuesday afternoon. A banquet will held Monday evening, with Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., as speaker. Dr. Gilbreth, mother of eleven children, an engineer, and trustee of Purdue university, will speak on "Three Quarters of a Million Homemakers." She is acting chairman of the national board of Girl Scouts and chairman of the personnel division.

Mrs. Frederick Edey of Bellport, Long Island, national commissioner of Girl Scouts and chairman of the international committee, also will be a speaker. Mrs. John G. Ralston of Chicago and Dixon, chairman of the Great Lakes region, will preside at the conference.

Here's a Method by Which You Can Plant One Seed at a Time

In sowing such seeds as tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, cabbage, marigolds, zinnias, and asters, which need space because they grow large, it is convenient and economical to plant just one seed in a place.

It may be suggested that this is easier said than done. However, there is a simple, easy and speedy way to do this. One sharpens a small wooden stick, dips the end in water or even mud. The seed can be picked up by the wet end and placed where wanted. A slight pressure will release it from the stick and make it adhere to the soil. It works well. The point of the stick will pick up a seed as a magnet takes up a needle.

Jewish Groups to Discuss Aid for Refugees

The suffering of their brethren abroad will promote action by two Jewish organizations this week. The National Council of Jewish Women, which has played a leading rôle in bringing refugees to this country, will rally middle western members at an all day conference on immigration Wednesday at the Covenant club. Hadassah, which has helped to settle thousands of other refugees in Palestine, will culminate its annual fund raising campaign with a "Give and Get" luncheon Tuesday at the Stevens hotel.

Miss Cecilia Razovsky of New York, perhaps the foremost authority in this country on problems of Jewish immigration, will speak at the conference's luncheon session on "Refuge for Refugees—Where?" Miss Razovsky is executive director of the National Coördinating committee, representing Jewish agencies serving immigrant refugees. She also is the National council's associate director.

How refugees are helped to establish themselves in various parts of the country will be described by Dr. S. C. Kohs, executive director of the Coördinating committee's resettlement division, at a dinner session Wednesday. His topic will be "Resettlement—What Is Being Done—What Can Be Done." An open forum will follow.

Mrs. Kenneth F. Rich, director of the Immigrants' Protective league, will address a morning session on "Present Day Problems of Immigration, Deportation and Naturalization." Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris, president of the council's Chicago section, will preside.

A round table on immigration problems will be led by Mrs. Sarah B. Schaar, supervisor of legal aid of the Jewish Social Service bureau, following the luncheon. Mrs. Eugene A. Weinberg, Chicago chairman of the national council's department of service to the foreign born, will preside at these two sessions, and Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, at the dinner session.

Since Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon founded the National Council of Jewish Women forty-six years ago service to the foreign born has been one of its important activities. To meet today's crisis the council greatly has enlarged and developed this department. Through the council immigrants are helped to achieve citizenship and to take their place in American life.

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

The emergency needs of Jews in Europe have led Chicago members of Hadassah, Women's Zionist organization, to redouble their efforts to raise funds during the annual tithe campaign culminating Tuesday. Approximately 4,200 children have been brought to Palestine through the world-wide Youth Aliyah movement, which Hadassah represents in America. Hadassah's medical and public health services in Palestine also will share in proceeds of the drive.

More than 1,800 women are expected to attend the luncheon Tuesday. Rabbi Solomon Goldman will speak, and the Yar Russian orchestra will furnish music. Mrs. Hattie Callner will have charge of the luncheon. Mrs. James H. Olshan is chairman of the drive, with Mrs. Adolph Braude vice chairman; Mrs. A. Albert Weinberg treasurer; Mrs. Philip Sissman rcorder; and Mrs. Joseph Checkers chairman of filing. Mrs. Harry M. Fisher heads the Chicago chapter, and Mrs. Fred Bernstein is publicity chairman.

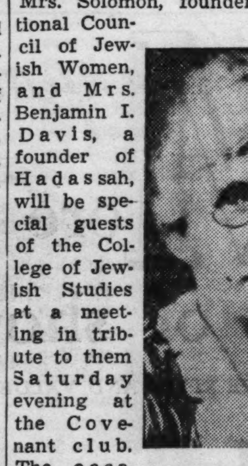
On May 9 the formal opening of the Rothschild-Hadassah University hospital in Palestine will occasion celebrations throughout the country. A dinner will be given that evening at the Congress hotel under the joint auspices of Hadassah, the Hebrew university society, headed by Dr. Maurice Lewison, and the Chicago branch of the Hebrew university's department of education, of which Miss Mary Zimmerman is president.

Two distinguished octogenarians, Mrs. Solomon, founder of the National Council of Jewish Women, and Mrs. Benjamin I. Davis, a founder of Hadassah, will be special guests of the College of Jewish Studies at a meeting in tribute to them Saturday evening at the Covenant club. The occasion will be the "melaveh malkah," or ceremonial social gathering, of the college's Alumni association.



Mrs. Benjamin Davis.

The program, dedicated to "Women in Israel," will include a pageant of that title, written by Ben Aronin, author and dramatic instructor at the college. Rabbi Samuel M. Blumenfield, dean of the college, and Dr. Leo L. Honor, executive director of the board of Jewish education, will speak. Max Janowski will present piano compositions, and dancers led by Frances Posner, student at the college, will interpret ancient and modern dances of Palestine. Evelyn Hattis Fox will lead a mass recital of Biblical and contemporary Hebrew dramatic recitations. Sidney J. Jacobs, managing editor of the Chicago Jewish weekly, the Advocate, will preside.

The Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations will hold its annual meeting at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow at 316 North Michigan avenue. Following reports of officers and chairmen Lilyan Padorr Insana will sing to Mrs. Martin Gordon's accompaniments, and Anne Kohn, pianist, will play. Mrs. Charles Segal is president.

Chicago Junior Hadassah's 1,260 members will hear Rabbi Charles E. Shulman of North Shore Congregation Israel in Glencoe speak at their meeting at 2:30 o'clock today in the north ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Miss Schulamith Burman and Karl Reckzeh, duo pianists, will give a program. Miss Sarah Leifer, fund raising chairman, will report on the progress of the eleven Chicago groups toward raising their $11,000 quota by the end of May.

The Willing Workers Women's club will install Mrs. Harry King as president at its annual meeting at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Standard club. She recently was reëlected president. Mrs. Herbert Nebenzahl was elected first vice president; Mrs. Samuel Levitetz, second vice president; Mrs. R. P. Hartenstein, third vice president; Mrs. Max Lehman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Leo Stone, financial secretary; Mrs. Maurice Newman, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph Baumstark, treasurer. Reports also will be submitted at the meeting.

Near Tragedy

By Eleanor Jewett.

Do you know—I've lost a baby!
It's a hard thing to believe,
But I've shaken every jacket
And I've peered up every sleeve.

I've looked through all her dresses
And I've searched along the floor
And I've opened box and cupboard
And I've looked behind the door.

I've looked behind the table
And the chairs on which she sat—
I think I've looked most everywhere
A baby might be at!

But I've simply lost that baby,
And the loss would drive me wild—
But in her place today I found
A gentle-mannered child!

Child Not Too Young to Learn Social Rules

Who invites the family's friends and relatives to a wedding? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, gives the answer to this and many other questions about wedding customs in her booklet "The Home Wedding." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. Price 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Our invitation to send in pet peeves, so that the rest of the readers might benefit, resulted in several responses from both men and women who contributed to the list. From these peeves we have picked out one suggested by Miss A. M. for mention and elaboration in our column.

"Will you please write in your column about mothers who sit back and say nothing while their children climb over other folks' furniture with food in their hands?" says Miss A. M.

We'll be glad to, Miss M. It's a worthy cause.

This is a brand of carelessness that doesn't get the scathing publicity that it deserves, or the criticism necessary to help stamp it out. Neither am I sure that public criticism would do a great deal of permanent good, because I am convinced there will always be doting mothers who will never be persuaded that their children are anything but little angels, no matter how strong the language used against them. They are quite willing to sit back and permit all manner of destruction [innocently done, of course] from dirty little shoes or sticky, greasy fingers . . . sit back without uttering a word of correction or without seeming to notice. And some mothers, if they do notice the devastation that is being wrought, are so lacking in authority and discipline that the little darlings keep right on bringing about the ruin, with the soft words of the mother floating off unheard.

It is possible that these children are permitted the same liberties in their own home. And I suppose if a woman has no interest in her personal belongings it is no one else's business if they are ruined by carelessness. It is a crying shame, though, that such habits should be permitted to develop in a child. The child is not to blame for the inadequate guidance he has received. Yet the child is the one that people fume against, and it is the child who will suffer most from the unpopularity that is sure to be the result.

While "how to bring up the baby" is hardly the business of this column, the uncouthness that results from this lack of bringing-up is. And if by mentioning it here we can persuade mothers to take a long distance view of their children and see them as other people do . . . then do them the favor of a little parental training in the manner of firm discipline . . . a lot of pain will be spared the child, the proud mother, and the injured neighbor.

Mothers who want their children to be loved and appreciated should teach them the art of living in this complex society by training them to respect the opinions and the properties of others.

Santoses Say Good-by at Large Party

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Miami's unpredictable season has decided to wane. Farewell parties take unusual and exciting turns as new arrivals furnish an excuse for continuance of smart parties of major proportions. The most spectacular going away party was one given for themselves by the Alberto Santos [Jan Johnson] who also was the first Mrs. Carl Fisher in the days when the Fishers were building from a mangrove swamp the paradise now known as Miami Beach]. Sixty friends accompanied the Santos when they left for New York on their yacht Jane.

Disembarking at Delray Beach, the friends motored back to Miami. Going to their estate, Sobre Mundo, the hosts will enjoy their beloved cows and chickens until next fall. Mrs. Stevenson Clark was among the sixty friends on the short farewell cruise.

It has remained for Florida's No. 1 bachelor, Dwight Paul of New York, to establish an annual party which has become a tradition here. For ten years Mr. Paul has staged a "last roundup," growing bigger and better each year. This year, with his mother, Mrs. Staunton-Hoagland, as gracious and charming hostess, he held the party Friday at his Mexican type home on a man made island in Biscayne bay, with approximately 200 guests present, including a number from Chicago.

Mr. Paul also has fathered a backgammon-bridge club for sixty members. He is president, and hopes the club will be in full swing by Nov. 1, with limited activities and facilities during the summer. Mr. Paul was in charge of the exceedingly popular backgammon tournament at the Surf club this year and won two championships at the Everglades club at Palm Beach.

Nature lovers from Chicagoland now lingering in the tropics who would like to see the Everglades National park expanded and perpetuated as were the Cook county forest preserves were dismayed this week when Dame Rumor announced that the present drilling in the Everglades, forty-five miles west of Miami, now had reached a depth of 7,200 feet. If drillers should strike oil, there is a grave possibility that the state may withdraw state owned lands from the area of the proposed park, to be sold to private interests—lands which otherwise might be given to the park.

Mrs. Herbert W. Young, after returning from a never to be forgotten West Indies cruise on the North Star, with special courtesies extended by government officials in each port, is far too busy packing in preparation for the homeward journey this week to take time out for any more social activities. She will go almost immediately after her arrival in Chicago to the Virginia Hot Springs, where nothing but rest will be given a place on her calendar. She then will spend two weeks in New York before returning to Chicago for the remainder of the summer.

The Otto K. Eitels arrived from Chicago Friday for an extended stay as house guests of Commodore E. A. McDonald and Mrs. McDonald. Commodore McDonald will arrive by plane Thursday. Fishing and a possible cruise to Havana are among the pleasures planned for the visitors. The McDonalds will spend August, as is their custom, on their Georgian bay island, where the commander has spent twenty Augusts.

The Charles A. McCullochs left Wednesday morning, Mrs. McCulloch going as far as Washington with Mr. McCulloch, then returning to Miami Beach to remain until the middle of May.

The John Kisers of Chicago, who are guests of the Walter Richards, are enjoying the exciting sport of bonefishing, more intriguing than going after the elusive sailfish, according to many. A beautiful buffet supper and dance was given for the Kisers at the new Richards home on Indian creek following their arrival, when they were introduced to some eighty friends of the hosts. Palms, blooming shrubs, and multicolored lights on upper and lower terraces overlooking the water added to the enchantment of the setting.

Mrs. Harold Milton and Mrs. Robert Armstrong are among hostesses who have entertained for the visitors.

A garden party and linen shower at the home of Mrs. R. E. McManus last Sunday honored Miss Betty Claire Hester, whose marriage to John Bleyer of Chicago will take place today, with Mrs. McManus and Miss Mary Fowler as hostesses.

Musical Miami always has appreciated Chicago musicians, and, though sometimes overshadowed by sports and other spectacular events, the cultural life of Miami makes up a major part of the winter time attractions of this resort. Now Miami will send two musicians to Chicago for the summer. Mrs. Charles L. Krum, head of the voice department of the University of Miami, when she leaves next Saturday to open her vocal studio in the Fine Arts building there, will be accompanied by Annie Laurie Lee and Joseph Barklay, who will be associated with her this summer, Mrs. Lee as accompanist and Mr. Barklay as vocalist.

Mrs. Lee has been organist in the First Presbyterian church here, where Mr. Barklay was director of the choir. The church was founded by Henry M. Flagler, who established the "empire" of south Florida when he extended his railroad across trackless sands to Miami and then on to Key West.

A number of Chicagoans were in the group giving a luncheon at the Tatem hotel for Mrs. Earl R. Reynolds of Chicago, president of the National Council of Catholic Women, before her departure for Greenville, N. C., where she stopped at the Charleston diocesan council en route to Washington to attend a parole conference called by Frank Murphy, United States attorney general.

WILL BE JUNE BRIDE

Miss Alice Catherine Shanahan, whose engagement to Harold Eugene Rosensteel has been announced by her father, John E. Shanahan of 10001 South Seeley avenue. Mr. Rosensteel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Rosensteel of Bloomington. The wedding will take place in June.

Architecture Runs Riot in Desert Camp

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

The cryptic signs of labyrinthine pattern which have puzzled motorists around Phoenix this year lead out across the desert to the camp of Frank Lloyd Wright.

Last winter Mr. and Mrs. Wright and thirty-five of his students took possession of six hundred acres of virgin desert. Their first nights were spent on bed rolls, with no better protection than a desert wash and the tall Sahuaros. Now there is a new creation in the desert. It has a bit of old Egypt, a touch of the Mayan temple, a reminiscence of Japan, but essentially it is something new—Mr. Wright's conception of man-made structures which fit into the desert scheme.

The camp has been built in six short months, chiefly by the students. Far from complete, it now has a main building, the center of which is a colossal hall in which the young architects work. How a room of this size could be both friendly and livable only a great architect could say. Perhaps the sloping roof of red and white canvas accounts for its informality as well as for its perfect light. The roof is made in overlapping sections, which can be raised to leave the hall open to the stars and desert air. Surrounding the hall are the sleeping cubicles of the apprentices and a kitchen equipped in the most modern manner, and topping all is a sun deck from which one can look out upon miles of desert. There are a great stone patio, a swimming pool, a theater, and a tiny house of Japanese character, in which the Wrights live.

The cacti which have possessed the desert so long have received delicate consideration from these new desert dwellers. Where a Sahuaro or a prickly pear was in the way the builders have gone around it. In just reward for this consideration the new camp has an old established cactus garden, and right now is glorified by the gorgeous blooming of its friendly neighbors.

Easterners who come to Arizona for vacations often find themselves at home and in business here. John C. Lincoln of Cleveland has spent eleven years in Phoenix, dividing his time between mines, citrus groves, and the active ownership of Camelback inn. Curtis C. Cooper of Bronxville, N. Y., has lived in Phoenix for twelve years and finds his desert paintings fully as satisfying and time consuming as big business. His son, Curtis C. Cooper Jr., following in his footsteps, is president and manager of El Coronado ranch, down on the Mexican border. This cattle ranch, situated in beautiful mountain country, recently has opened its doors to guests.

Clarence Buddington Kelland has made Arizona his own. He lives in it, writes about it, and is active in the life of Phoenix. Barney Ork of Cleveland owns and lives on the Seven V. ranch outside Prescott. He also operates the Cross Triangle guest ranch, where the dudes go to rest and end up by riding from sunup to sundown in the cattle activities of the ranch. Edward Loomis Bowes, portrait photographer from Chicago, owns and manages a citrus grove in Arcadia and has found time besides to design and take an active part in the building of Camelback inn.

Every year the list grows of those who come out from the east in search of pleasure or health and remain to establish their interests in this state.

Apparently that is the history of Arizona. As far back as 1896 John Calhoun Adams, who had been practicing law in Illinois, came out to what was then Arizona territory. He found too many lawyers in Phoenix but only one hotel. So he built the Adams hotel, which has been and continues to be the stopping and meeting place of those who do business here. When the original building burned in 1910 Mr. Adams wanted to build his inn out over the street. There was a city ordinance in the way, but he was mayor of Phoenix, and resourceful. The ordinance was repealed for a day and the building permit issued. Today even the newest comer to Phoenix can find the Adams, for it commands the main business street.

One who waits in the lobby of the Adams finds himself listening in on snatches of conversation dealing with the buying and selling of cattle, the transfer of ranches, gold mining, and all the colorful business life in Arizona. In January wool buyers from the east gather there for the wool auctions—quiet little affairs conducted with complete informality but involving the top wool buying of the country. Just at this time motorists in Arizona may see the flocks of sheep on their way to the high pastures, there to spend the summer, and to return in the winter to the valley for the lambing and shearing.

The Adams hotel is a family as well as an Arizona tradition. It has known only three managers—the founder, his son-in-law, Foster Rockwell, and the present manager, his grandson, John C. Rockwell.

El Rancho Grande, well known to Chicagoans, has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie [Kay Thorne]. The beautiful mountain ranch will no longer take guests, but will be a private estate.

Mrs. Gillespie won the putting tournament last week at the annual roundup of hotel and dude ranch managers at the San Marcos hotel. The festivities ended Saturday night in a banquet and dinner-dance. Clarence Buddington Kelland was toastmaster and Gov. Robert Jones and Eddie MacNamara were the speakers. Frank Haberl, manager of the Westward Ho, took office as president of the association, succeeding John F. Proctor, manager of the Pioneer hotel of Tucson.

FUTURE BRIDE

Miss Arlene Mallams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Mallams of 1054 West Garfield boulevard, whose engagement to Richard Talbot Keller, son of Dr. Walter Keller of 4552 North Winchester avenue, has been announced by her parents. Miss Mallams attended the University of Illinois, from which Mr. Keller was graduated. The wedding will take place June 3 in the First Presbyterian church.

[Beecher Studio.]

Lorna Vera Ohan Will Wed Alfred M. Basten

The Rev. and Mrs. William J. Ohan of 1819 North Whipple street announce the engagement of their daughter, Lorna Vera, to Alfred M. Basten of Chicago. Miss Ohan is a graduate of the University of Chicago. Mr. Basten was graduated from La Verne college, La Verne, Cal.

MacMurrays Return from a World Tour

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Home from their 'round the world honeymoon are Dr. and Mrs. James E. MacMurray [Kathryn Titus Smith]. Having taken most of their friends completely by surprise when they were married quietly at Dr. MacMurray's home in Orange Grove avenue last fall, and having departed immediately for Chicago and soon thereafter for a long cruise, friends have had no opportunity as yet to fête them. Then, still imbued with the desire to be traveling, Dr. MacMurray and his bride picked up Dr. and Mrs. Merle N. Smith almost before they had unpacked their bags. [Dr. Smith is her brother-in-law and pastor emeritus of the First Methodist church] and were off on a motor trip to see the wild flowers, Yosemite, the Golden Gate exposition, and home by way of Del Monte and Santa Maria inn.

Reminiscences of the MacMurrays' world tour are unhappily punctuated by memories of warlike scenes, for in Rome they witnessed small boys drilling on Saturday afternoons and Sundays and, standing in the garden of Gethsemane on their trip to the Holy Land, they witnessed the irony of machine guns rolling past on the road to Jericho. The MacMurrays were members of the first small party of tourists admitted to Palestine after the recent outbreak and their train from Port Said to Lydia was preceded and followed by mounted machine guns a quarter mile removed. From Lydia to Jerusalem they motored under heavy guard of British soldiers.

The mention of wild flowers in California at this time of year sends off into rhapsodies any one who has motored to their various haunts. The flat ocean of blue lupin mingled with purple owl clover that stretches as far as the eye can see north from the Grapevine grade on the approach to Bakersfield is one of California's most famous bits of wild flower pageantry. The almost crimson California poppies to the east, near Lancaster, is an off-the-main-highway treat for all who seek them out. In the opposite direction from Pasadena the Palm Springs desert to the south is purple with sand verbena and the tips of the candlelike ocotillo are now blooming as though red with fire.

One of the most charming trips for spring, before the southern California grasses are burned golden, is that to Palomar mountain where the 200 inch telescope is soon to be placed. Dr. Robert A. Millikan and those at California Institute of Technology, who are actively identified with Palomar, make frequent trips. One of the most active scientists "on the ground" to date is Dr. Fritz Zwicky, Caltech astronomer-physicist, and first man to make observations at the Palomar astrophysical laboratory. He is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt [Tirzah Gates], formerly of Pasadena and now of Long Island.

One route to Palomar takes you through the Ramona country, past the little Mission Assistienca at Pala where a brief visit on the day before Easter found an Indian matriarch wetting down the worn tile floor with a watering can while a small grandchild scrubbed with a stubby broom. Two little Indian girls brought paper lilies and roses to adorn the altar for the morrow when the bell in the garden campanile would be rung for services in the 123 year old mission.

The road away from Palomar takes one on through green mountain pastures and pine darkened canyons to an outlook upon Lake Henshaw, water supply for San Diego county, which is a sapphire set in a grassy valley. Looking upon the camp site from above reminds one of a Paul Sample painting with its flat washes of color.

Guests at the Huntington have a floral display of their own just now. They shared it last week with many other guests at the annual fashion show held around the pool in the sunken gardens.

The famed "picture bridge" makes the south wall for this outdoor "dining room," and is festooned with long spikes of wistaria. Terraces rise up on the east, to the very windows of the real dining room, spangled with massed snapdragons. Woodsy rock-gardens on the west shelter vivid orange clevia and gay primroses.

In this setting spring and summer wardrobes were paraded before the diners, among whom were Mrs. Iris Masters Rogers and her guests who included Mrs. Edward C. Crossett of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Dillon and their party, which included Mrs. Eugene E. Andrews and her daughter, Mrs. Harlan B. Eldred, and Mrs. J. M. Caldwell, mother of Mrs. C. H. Matthiessen Jr. At other tables were Mrs. George E. Marcy, Mrs. Stephens McIver, Mrs. Robert T. Newberry, Mrs. Henry M. Wheaton, and Mrs. Harley G. Higbie.

Dana Hall's new alumnæ club reserved a table and enjoyed the fashion revue as a part of their first meeting. Mrs. Kenneth Colborn [Julia Rounds], formerly of Chicago, is on the advisory board.

Added to the growing list of golden wedding celebrants are Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw, who once made Chicago their home and now reside at the Green hotel. They entertained a group of friends to celebrate the anniversary.

When Chicago Was Young:

The Editor Goes Forth in Search of Spring

By Herma Clark

(The editor of this column sees some old southern houses.)

"Go Dixieward in blossomtime,
In blossomtime, in blossomtime;
Go Dixieward in blossomtime,
It's not far from Chicago."

Parodying Alfred Noyes thus, we left Chicago on a cold Saturday in April, with a few snowflakes flying, and started south to meet spring. At Paducah, Ky., Irvin S. Cobb's town, spring was hanging her banners in the redbud trees. At Greenville, Miss., tulips and hyacinths adorned the front yards, showing that her rule was undisputed. At Natchez she had left summer to reign in her stead. It is an experience to be remembered, going forth to meet spring.

The pilgrimages to Natchez were over when we arrived, but houses were still open for inspection, and we reveled in the romantic atmosphere which here, more than in any other place in America, is all-pervasive. So much has been written of late concerning Natchez that it is unnecessary to recite here its story and its glory.

Especially interesting to Chicagoans is stately D'Evereux, owned by Miss Myra Smith, Chicago schoolteacher, which rises like a Greek temple in the midst of a grove. The master of D'Evereux was a friend of Henry Clay, and in this mansion he gave, in honor of the Kentucky statesman, one of the most magnificent balls ever seen in Mississippi.

Thus, when Miss Smith retires she will live in not only one of the most beautiful houses in America but also one which has remarkable historical associations.

We couldn't forbear entering famous Glenwood, now known as Goat castle, ancestral home of Richard Dana, a member of one of America's notable families, the editor of the New York Sun and the author of "Two Years Before the Mast" being members of this clan, while Richard Dana's father was a prominent Episcopal bishop.

The house is now a dreadful ruin, the front "gallery," which we should call a porch, sagging woefully; window panes broken; a forlorn single buggy standing on the porch; goats ambling freely about. A Negro boy takes your money [it's twenty-five cents to see the lower floor] and you are shown a strange collection of trash. Almost nothing valuable or interesting is found in these rooms, but there is a lamp which belonged to the lovely Varina Howell, who became the second wife of Jefferson Davis, and there is an autographed photograph of Robert E. Lee, whose private chaplain Richard Dana's father was.

Richard Dana, now dwelling in a world of dreams and shadows, loves to talk of the past, telling of the wallpapers which hang precariously on the walls of the house, or of the fashions of yesterday. He plays for you on the old upright piano, which looks as if it would not respond even to a Paderewski. Ruin though it is, a sweet tone comes from it. Miss Octavia Dockery, daughter of a confederate general, lives in the house, too, and like her host, moves in a dream world, looking back to the days when she wrote poetry, which, she says, she found easy to dispose.

Some day Glenwood will be bought and restored by a lover of the classic architecture which prevails in Natchez, for the location of the house is beautiful and the live oaks which surround it are noble ornaments for a home. But in such a restoration one could wish that these two ancient companions, the present occupants of the house, symbols of a day that has vanished, might also be restored. We should like to see Richard Dana sitting, dressed in an immaculate white suit and broad brimmed hat, on the front porch, and Miss Octavia Dockery in flowing garments, with a sprig of laurel in her hand, à la Madame de Stael, dominating a salon, as in her youthful days.

Leaving Natchez in the early morning of a rainy day we motor south, not expecting to enter any more old homes, when suddenly at the side of the road near St. Francisville, La., appears a figure so picturesque that we rub our eyes and stop.

"That must be Uncle Tom in his palmy days as a slave in the St. Clair family," we gasp as the figure takes clearer shape before us. Surely this is Uncle Tom in top hat and tailed coat waiting to take little Eva for a ride. He walks with dignity across the road, holding aloft an umbrella to keep off the rain, and, as we slow down, he gestures to us to stop and see Afton Villa. The avenue of trees hung with Spanish moss is so mysteriously attractive that we yield and drive toward the house, not really meaning to go in, but at the front door stands a companion piece to the guardian of the gate and her ample form and beaming face are irresistible, as she assures us that this rain [which is coming down in buckets] ain't nothin' at all, and she'll give us umbrells so we won't git wet. Her name is Aunt Shug, she tells us.

So we get out and enter Afton Villa, which is quite unlike the Natchez houses, being of French Gothic architecture, built in 1849 by David Barrow for his second wife. It is a replica of a villa in Tours, and has an imposing hallway and a ballroom on the first floor, where parties costing thousands of dollars were given, with caterers and orchestras coming from New Orleans.

But Uncle Melton, whose likeness to Uncle Tom had startled us as we approached the entrance, and Aunt Shug are the best part of the place, we think. They are first cousins and typical of the southern Negro met in every novel of the old south . . . dignified and trustworthy, shrewd and devoted to the family they serve. Aunt Shug tells us that last year's pilgrimage brought 3,700 people to Afton Villa, and that this year there have been more.

One can only rejoice that new interest in the south and its architecture has begun to bring a degree of prosperity to the owners of these fine old homes, which cost so much to keep up, but which should not be allowed to fall into decay.

Beg Your Pardon

In a story from Paris in last Sunday's TRIBUNE reference was made to the reëlection, in 1931, of President Paul Doumergue of France and his assassination a year later. President Gaston Doumergue retired as president of France in 1931 and was succeeded by President Paul Doumer. It was the latter who was assassinated.

France Is Waiting Next Move in the European Drama

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

Theatergoers in France will remember their first surprise at hearing the three taps which mean that the curtain is about to go up. Usually some bustling could be heard on the stage, sounds of some falling or bumping object, and then, sometimes after another long wait, the three strokes that signify the beginning of the play.

After the noise of preparation, in the great European drama, every one here is asking if the three taps are about to sound. It is bluff, or the prelude to an overwhelming stroke?

In any case, in these grave hours, some ironic eposides occur. France felt special resentment that the Easter holidays should have been troubled. And we heard here recently that Pierpont Morgan, soon after arriving in England, saw Neville Chamberlain and asked him if he — the financier—could safely take the archbishop of Canterbury on a yacht cruise, presumably in the Mediterranean. We understand the British minister assured Mr. Morgan that all signs were fair.

There have been some rumors here that Mr. Morgan's daughter, Frances, and her husband, Paul Pennoyer, were contemplating a divorce. In recent years they have been living in Paris in the Square du Bois de Boulogne, occupying a house that formerly belonged to the late Mrs. Charles B. Alexander. Mr. Pennoyer is a member of a law firm in Paris.

Arthur Schmon, president of the Ontario Paper company, and Mrs. Schmon, have been traveling for several weeks in Europe. A few days ago they went to Germany, and after their return said they found nothing in the German papers, nor did they hear in conversation, anything of the Italian invasion of Albania.

Tips for Dressmakers.

If fine materials like georgette, chiffons, and silk crêpe are stitched on trips of paper, the cloth will not pucker. The paper, held under the material while it is being stitched, is easily pulled off when the stitching is completed.

LOVELY LADY LOOKS IN THE MIRROR

Not so good today. Must get to Elizabeth Arden as quickly as possible. Lies back and relaxes while deft hands soften away all the "tight" feeling, stir up the circulation the right way. Now her face is all aglow, refreshed and rested. "Been on a holiday?" her friends ask. She smiles. "Just Elizabeth Arden."

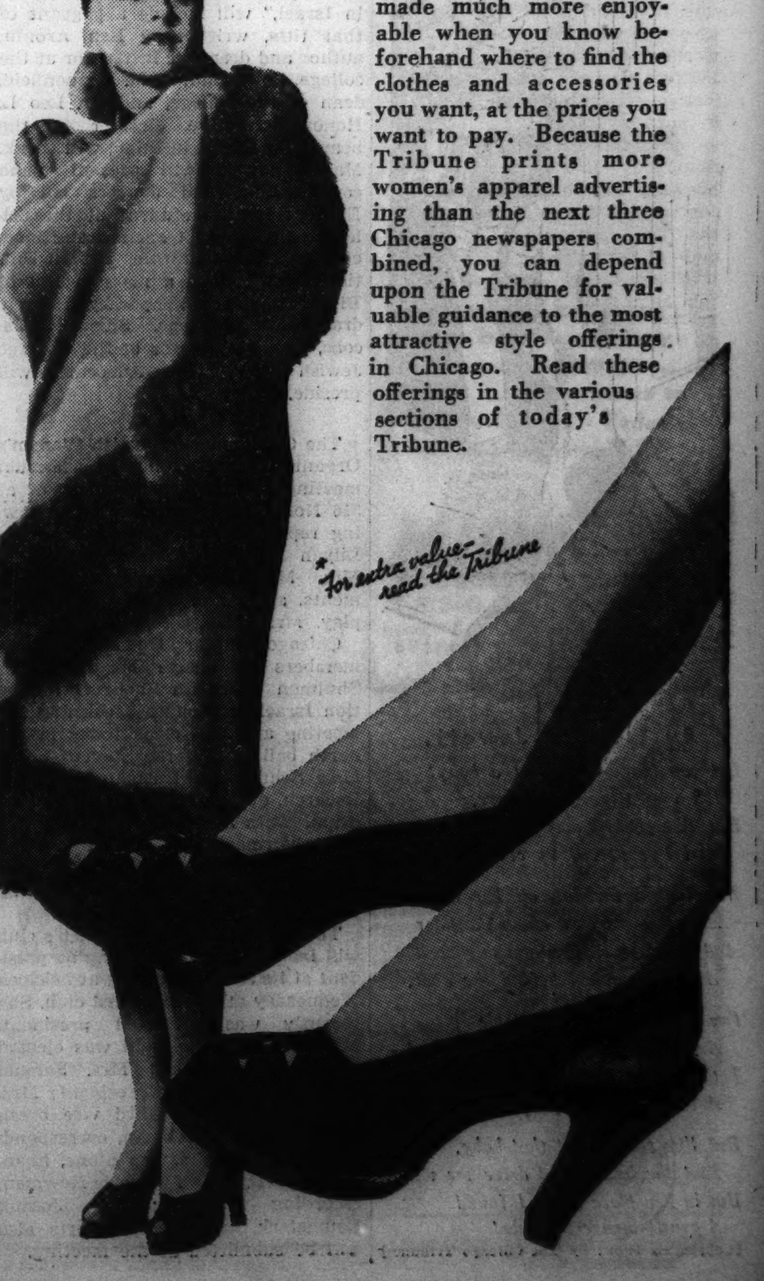
More fun out of shopping

AND MORE STYLE AND VALUE FOR YOUR DRESS DOLLARS



When you go to see a show you usually plan the evening's entertainment in advance to be sure to get the most out of it. Shopping, likewise, can be made much more enjoyable when you know beforehand where to find the clothes and accessories you want, at the prices you want to pay. Because the Tribune prints more women's apparel advertising than the next three Chicago newspapers combined, you can depend upon the Tribune for valuable guidance to the most attractive style offerings in Chicago. Read these offerings in the various sections of today's Tribune.

This Harbor Is Like View From Arabian Nights

By Frederic Babcock.

ISTANBUL, TURKEY

The finest thing about a trip to Istanbul is the view from the harbor; the most disappointing thing is a tour of the sultan's harem.

Rio de Janeiro and Naples have it all over this city when it comes to the natural beauty of their harbors, but for man-made splendor the entrance to Istanbul from the Marmora sea is without a serious rival. The only sight that can compare with it is that of New York's skyscrapers as viewed from below the Battery—and those buildings, being of comparatively recent origin, have no history. Relics housed in this city's structures can trace the story of human progress through more than thirty centuries.

From our cruise ship we thought we were seeing a vision out of the Arabian nights. Silhouetted against the sky was an almost endless array of stone spindles. Beneath these lofty minarets were the yellowish brown domes of huge mosques. And filling in the scene was a great expanse of cream colored buildings. No painting or word picture could exaggerate the effect.

The illusion was shattered when we went ashore and got a closeup view. Istanbul has plenty of magnificence, but it doesn't look exactly the way it's shown in the movies and in the romantic novels. Take the harem, for instance.

If other Americans are like this one, they must have an idea—until they come here and see for themselves—that the harem's quarters were the last word in oriental elegance. We found them [or what's left of them], garish, tawdry, downright ugly. We wandered through reception halls, dining rooms, dance salons, and bedrooms, and our impression was that their decorations and furnishings were as badly overdone as if they'd been conceived by a barbarian suddenly grown rich and determined to show the world that he had acquired culture.

Here once lived and plotted and cavorted the most beautiful women to be had. The sultans and their harems bought up all the gaudy luxury they could find, but they forgot to install the comforts of home. Adequate heating, for example. The braziers that still stand in the corners must have provided rather cold comfort.

The most dismal quarters of all were those of the eunuchs. They were nothing more than tiers of cells equipped with hard benches and barred windows, along with bastinadoes for use whenever the victims grew obstreperous.

As for the rest of Istanbul: it proved to be a study in contradictions. There is nothing more trite than the expression: "The city is a strange mixture of ancient and modern." Yet that describes this one.

The soldiers one sees everywhere on the streets appear to be dressed in gunny sacks; the traffic police, on the other hand, are all dolled up like Roman legionnaires. The fabled Golden Horn no doubt was golden in its day, but that day is long since past; nowadays the horn is filled with dirty sailing boats. The Turks have recently abolished the Arabic letters and adopted the Latin, so that today nobody can read much of either. They have done away with their veils and fezzes—thereby forfeiting their former picturesqueness; yet they still cling to their old-time customs and superstitions.

St. Sophia mosque is undoubtedly the world's best example of Byzantine architecture; but, from the outside, it might be mistaken for a factory or warehouse. [One of the world's largest churches, it shoots 180 feet skyward and its dome is 107 feet in diameter.] Inside, the effect is more favorable. The 126 pillars—stolen from the temples of the ancient gods—lend an air of immensity, even if of nothing else. Eight serpentine columns were plundered from the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, and eight of porphyry from the Temple of the Sun at Baalbek. The building job required 10,000 workmen; the total cost—including the graft—was something like 60 million dollars.

There are 500 mosques in Istanbul, and all are interesting—if you like mosques. In most of them you have to don slippers and shuffle around in an awkward attempt to keep them on. If you lose them your feet desecrate the sacred confines. In St. Sophia this practice no longer holds; the building is now a museum.

Of far greater interest to most tourists [especially the women] is the Seraglio palace, boasting, as it does, of such items as the Persian shah's throne, of massive gold and set with rubies, and a collection of pearls, sapphires, emeralds, and diamonds so large and perfect that no one has ever been able to compute their worth. The women, and even the men, likewise are taken in by the Grand Bazaar, which is a city in itself and which, covered partly as an arcade, is a maze of streets, lanes, and alleys.

A quarter of a century ago Istanbul [then known, of course, as Constantinople] was a filthy, smelly place, whose sanitation was taken care of by more than 100,000 stray dogs. These pests were allowed to eat at will, for the simple reason that without them the city would be ravaged by pestilence. The visitor who expects to find such a condition today is in for a surprise. The former capital of Turkey is clean, modern, and no more smelly than the other cities of the near east. The few dogs visible are usually either leashed or muzzled. Whatever else Kemal Ataturk may have been, he was a man of action. He forced his country, "the sick man of Europe," to recover and to keep pace with its rivals.

But the strangest tourist attraction here is not what one sees, but what one hears. Five times a day—at daybreak, at the meridian [when the figure casts no shadow], in the afternoon [at the time the shadow is twice the size of the image], at sunset, and when the light goes out—a muezzin appears in the balcony of each of the minarets and sends out his call to prayer. Whereupon the faithful cleanse themselves in the ablution fountains, enter the mosques, and, as they have done for centuries, face east, kneel, and kiss the rug as they mumble their litany.

The muezzin's cry is weird and high pitched. It is worth traveling 6,000 miles to hear:

Allah is greatest! Allah is greatest!
I testify that there is no god but Allah!
I testify that Mohammed is the prophet of Allah!
Come to prayer! Come to salvation!
Allah is greatest! Allah is greatest!

Blossom Time in Michigan Begins Next Sunday

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—This region's annual race with the weather took an unusual turn when the Blossom festival committee moved up the observance one week. This year's dates are April 30 to May 7.

Each year the authorities on climate and horticulture are asked to help the committee set the dates so that the fête will be held at the peak of the blossoms in this southern Michigan fruit belt. Then the weather man tosses all kinds of queer bundles into the hopper in an attempt to cross up the prognosticators, and the managers sit back to gnaw their finger nails and hope that two and two make four and the blossoms and the festival will arrive simultaneously.

This year the committee did its best to throw the weather man for a loss by setting the dates up one week. This was because the indications were that there would be an early spring.

Some of the high spots on the program will be the coronation of the blossom queen and the ball on May 3 at St. Joseph, the children's parade and ball at St. Joseph on May 5, the pooch parade in Benton Harbor on May 5, and the Nite o' Knights Mardi Gras parade in the Twin Cities on the same date. The climax will be the Blossom festival floral parade on Saturday, May 6.

Travelers See Prison of "Man in Iron Mask"

The Island of Ste. Marguerite, near Cannes on the French Riviera, is attracting many visitors since the recent showing of the educational film, "The Man in the Iron Mask." Here it was that during the reign of Louis XIV., in this rock bound monastery, rising out of the sea, one of the strangest mysteries of French history was lived out for forty years by the "man in the iron mask," whose tragic identity still is unknown.

Treated with royal honor, in so far as his physical care was concerned, his face hidden behind a fitted iron mask that was never lifted, as a prisoner all those years this unknown man kept his lonely vigil of the sea until at last death set him free and he was taken to his grave.

Historians have never found the answer. Some have surmised that it was twin brother to the king . . . that it was Fouquet . . . that it was a royal betrayer . . . that it was a self imposed penance. . . . But no one knows. And mystery lovers go to Ste. Marguerite to wander through the apartments of the strange Unknown, and are fascinated by the tragic loneliness of his fate.

Old French Custom

PARIS, France . . . Absence may make the heart grow fonder in other lands, but no so in southwestern France. When a young man there does not show up to kiss the waters of a famous well with his sweetheart the match is off.

According to custom, betrothed couples often take themselves to the well in the La Double forest near Riviera, kissing the water as a symbol of their future union. If the young woman in the case becomes impatient at not being invited to the forest, she can test her sweetheart by suggesting the excursion. Should he fail to come, however, she knows that the match is definitly off.

Child's Diary Recalls Days on the Riviera

By Eleanor Page.

All life along the Riviera seems to lead to the sea. Rivers rush down from the mountains. Country folk descend for marketing and fête days. Fashionables who own villas with views come down in their limousines to play at the smart casinos, to take luncheon at boulevard cafés, and to order clothes from branch shops of famed Paris coutouriers.

Strangers from hotels and pensions spill seaward out onto the boardwalks of Cannes and Nice—throngs of cosmopolitans and natives enjoying the midday sun. Long, shiny automobiles line up before restaurants at tea time; carriages and taxis are busy; music and gigolos attract unescorted feminine dancers.

Just over the sea wall from this worldly atmosphere fishermen beach their boats and pull in their nets. Students from a school for American girls perform gymnastics on the Cannes beach. Exclusive Cap d'Antibes beaches are reserved for the wealthy who own property there, and their friends. But any one may enjoy the superb view from the Grand Corniche drive which crowns the highest ridge from Ventimille at the Italian border to Cannes.

The Italian Riviera towns of Bordighera and San Remo are less known, but steadily popular. A more quiet life is led there. Many English families own villas; they run the tennis clubs and give tea parties. They go to Monte Carlo or Nice for operas and concerts or to the Casino at San Remo for night life.

Although I have been in Cannes many times, the following pages from a diary of my first visit will give a better account of the seashore resorts and hill towns than any from memory. I was 12 then.

"Cannes is a lovely old city with little streets and stores. Funny street cars, and a little harbor lined with saloons and wine storage houses. The boardwalk goes along the sea by the Casino.

"We hired a private car and rode along the coast to Juan les Pins and then into the hills to the Gorges du Loup where we had lunch. The river Loup has many waterfalls and is very beautiful. We went miles and miles up in the air to get to Gourdon, a town built on the highest pinnacle in that part of the country. On clear days one can see into Italy.

"Next we went to Grasse and visited the perfume factories. The factory wasn't being operated that day, but we saw the different processes of work. We bought some perfume and when he came out we were sick of the smell of perfume, because they sprinkled a little bit of every kind on you. Our party smelled to heaven every time we wore those clothes.

"Vence was a tipical ancient French village. They sold pottery. We bought our cat there. All the women were washing their clothes in the pure mountain drinking water that flowed into a fountain in the town square.

"We took a trip along the Upper Corniche drive to Menton and Monte Carlo. The views were gorgeous and filled one with awe. At Monte Carlo mother and the others went in the Casino. I am too young to go in, so I drove around town, but didn't care much for it as it was dirty and ugly. Then I played cards with the chauffeur until the others returned.

"Went to the movies for the first time in France. The English and Americans sit upstairs and the French downstairs. Smoking is allowed and dogs are abundant. They sell stuff to eat during the intermissions.

"Went to Opera Thais in the Casino. There was dancing in the entr'actes."

Illinois Third in U. S. Passports

Figures released by the state department in Washington last week showed that Illinois was third in the list of passports and renewals issued in 1938. Its total was 10,233. New York was first, with 40,213; Califorina second, with 11,839; Pennsylvania fourth, with 10,017, and New Jersey fifth, with 9,283.

The grand total was 134,737. It was pointed out that this did not indicate the numbers of Americans who went abroad last year, inasmuch as a large number of passports were issued for more than one person and many persons traveled on foreign permits or used permits previously issued. The number who went to Europe was figured at around 267,000.

As usual, housewives led all other classifications. Next in order were skilled laborers, students, and teachers. By far the largest number of applicants for passports gave "pleasure" as the object of their trips. "Personal business" ranked second.

Castle Home of Normandy Dukes

The old castle in Falaise, France, was the residence of the early dukes of Normandy and the birthplace of William the Conqueror. It dates from the twelfth century. The Fontaine d'Arlette is a well at the foot of the castle hill where Arlette, the mother of William the Conqueror, is said to have met his father, Robert le Diable.

Old Faithful Only One of the Many Park Attractions

Mountains, lakes, falls, canyons, geysers, hot springs, mud volcanoes, and paint pots help constitute Yellowstone park, the best known of America's playgrounds.

Old Faithful geyser, familiar to almost every school child, erupts regularly every sixty-five minutes. But it must share the stage with many other natural phenomena. There are hundreds of hot springs, cold springs, violently boiling ponds, uncanny caverns that steam and hiss, along with other geysers, a mountain that roars, a lake that appears to be burning, and a waterfall twice the height of Niagara.

Wild life abounds among these natural wonders. The streams and lakes are filled with fish; the fields and forests have bears, elk, deer, and mountain sheep. For those who hunt with a camera, Yellowstone is a happy hunting ground.

1939 Events Near French Papal Palace

High above the strong, swift tide of the Rhone, at Avignon in southern France, there stands the Palais des Papes, the most magnificent and imposing structure of its kind in the world. Built in the fourteenth century, most of it during a period of twentyfive years, with walls thirteen feet thick, this awesome fortress-palace-cathedral was for nearly seventy years the papal throne and from it during that time there reigned seven French popes, all of whom were the chief patrons of art through France during that century.

The first of the Avignon popes was Clement V., born at Bordeaux, and later archbishop there. Through him the Gothic choir of the St. André's cathedral at Bordeaux, and the cathedral of St. Bertrand-de-Comminges were built. His successor, John XXII., built, or helped to build, the most beautiful bridge of the middle ages at Cahors, where he was born.

The building of the Palais des Papes was really begun by Benedict XII. and finished twenty-five years yater by Innocent VI., after Clement VI. had added the beautiful conclave gallery, the pontifical chapel, and the audience chamber, as well as rebuilding the church of his former abbey, La Chaise Dieu in the Forez mountains. Here he also built his own magnificient monument.

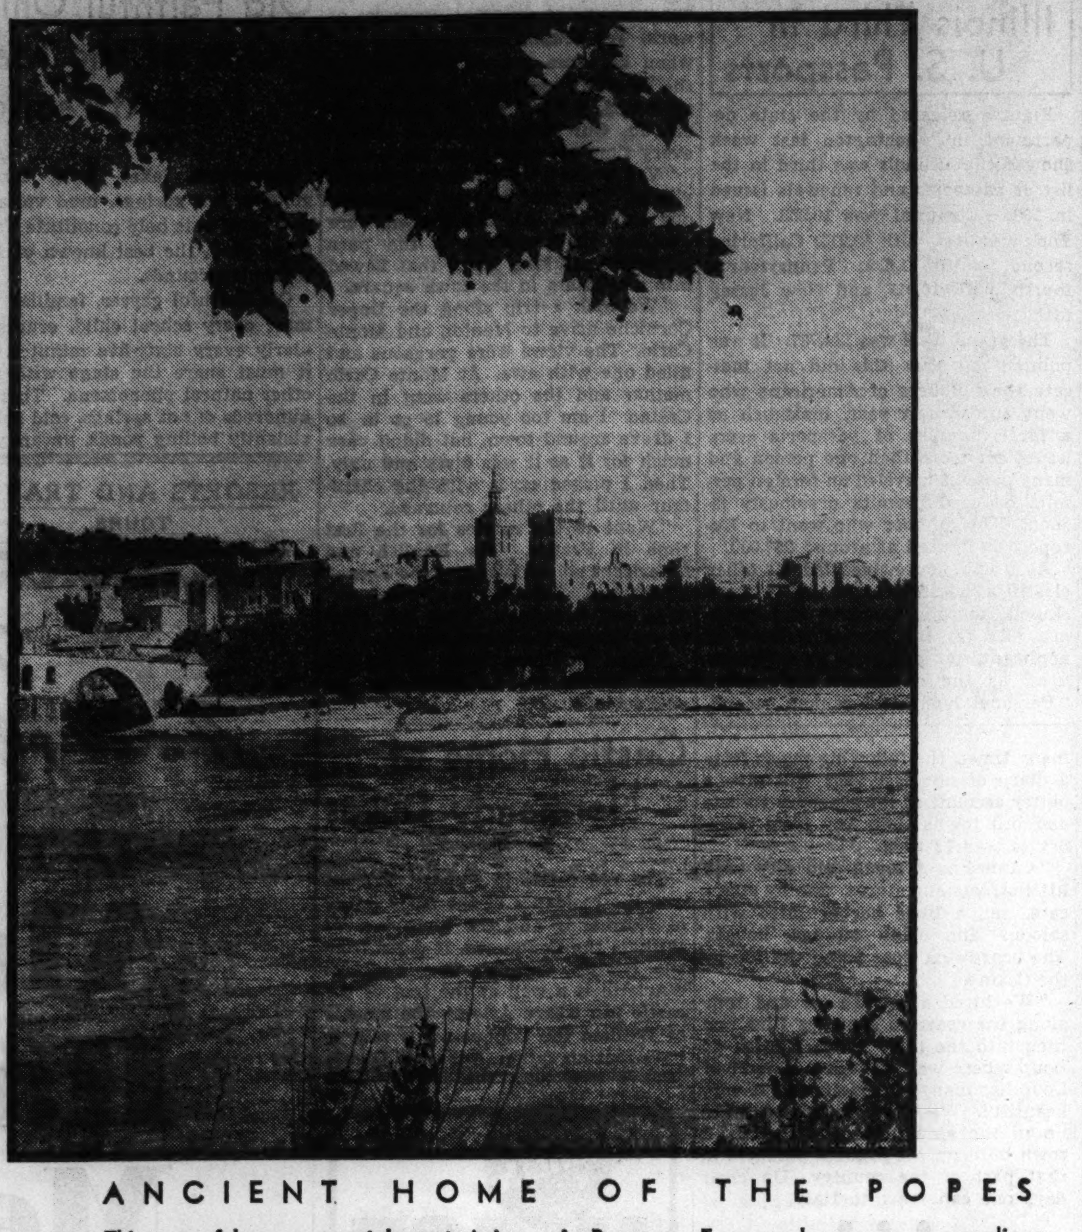
Pope Urban V., the sixth of the Avignon papal sovereigns, was educated at Montpellier and here, as well as at Marseilles, is found his contribution to the cathedrals of France. At Avignon he continued the building of the fortifications and turrets that are so strange a contrast to the grace and beauty of the interior. Urban it was, though, who renewed the progress of the art and law departments, and reëstablished the prestige of the famous medical school at Montpellier, where he had once taught law.

There are thirty-nine towers to the Palais des Papes, and this huge Romanesque edifice, part of it merging into the fortress chapel guarding the famous Pont d'Avignon [and the road to the Mediterranean], reigning proudly over the beautiful Rhone valley with its verdant, fertile plains, makes the turbulent days of medieval France seem more real than the modern hotels and motor filled roads.

● ● ●

Among interesting events scheduled for 1939 at and near Avignon are:

April 29 to May 7—Spring fair at Avignon.
May 14—Battle of flowers and parade at Aix-en Provence.
May 15—Fête of St. Etienne-des-Grés at Tarascon.
May 24 and 25—Les Saintes Maries de la Mer Gypsy pilgrimage and blessing of the sea.
May 28 and 29—Spring festival at Orange.
May 28—Bull fights at Nimes.
June 1—St. Vinage "Parade of Bottles" at Tarascon.
June 5 to 8—Festival of St. Francois, plays in the arenas at Frejus.
July 29 to 31—Presentations in the Antique theater at Orange.



ANCIENT HOME OF THE POPES

This peaceful scene was taken at Avignon in Provence, France, where seven succeeding popes reigned in the magnificent palace-fortress for nearly seventy years in the 14th century.

Please give a brief description of Elba. —T. M. P.

It is the largest of the Tuscan island group between Corsica and the northwest coast of Italy, but, even at that, it is not much larger than the District of Columbia. Napoleon, looking down upon it from a mountain height, commented dryly: "My island is somewhat small." In less than a hundred square miles the isle has three mountain ridges. Their slopes bristle with evergreen shrubs and are dotted with white villas of wealthy Italians from the mainland and with weather stained villages. There are about 25,000 Tuscan natives. Except for its iron deposits—renowned ever since they supplied 300 suits of armor for the Trojan war—Elba's chief claim to fame is the greatness thrust upon it as the only scrap of his empire that the overthrown Napoleon could retain. In 1814 his realm was reduced from a sizable slice of Europe to a single rock in the Mediterranean. Today it looks like an irregular red and green lump rising abruptly from the sea.

I have seen the Big Ben clock in London, but now I am told that England also has a big timepiece called Big Tom. What and where is it? —B. H. H.

It is the curfew bell at Oxford. It gives 101 strokes every night at 9:30, when the university gates are closed. It weighs 7½ tons, and is 700 years old.

I have heard that Bermuda is one of the hardest places in the world for foreigners to buy land. Is this so? —L. D. R.

Yes. In 1938 the purchases by citizens of the United States amounted to only 105 acres. The total price, however, exceeded $500,000.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL.

Marquette, Mich., April 18.—To the Travel Editor: The "Voice of the Traveler" is a highly interesting department of your great newspaper. In fact, it is more than interesting, for it is the medium of exchange whereby many a shut-in has been made happier. When kindly and generous persons understand the sorrows of others they are more than willing to help in any way they can. In the case at issue letters and picture postcards have been sent to ailing ones by the thousands. And who can gauge the infinite good that THE TRIBUNE has made possible because of its immense circulation and willingness to help?

Now, I have something else on my mind. Let's try to make the traveling public understand that there are worth while places to visit right in our own United States.

Why go to Europe, Asia, South America, or Africa to see nature's wonders when we can more than match all their attractions, with the possible exception of things surrounded by the glamor of age, dubious history, and even superstition? If travelers want to see mountains, what can surpass the sublime Rockies and the national parks? What has any country got, in the way of color and beauty and climate, that California and Arizona and Florida haven't? If one wishes outdoor sports, what can surpass northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota?

Our land is full of scenic wonders, great cities, health resorts. If you like big trees, California has them. If you want mountains, crystal lakes, and rushing streams, Colorado has them. If magnificent scenery of hill and mountain and plain dotted with enchanting lakes is the thing you like, New England has it. If you desire bathing beaches, what's wrong with those on both the Pacific and the Atlantic? If you revel in the marvels of great cities, what's the matter with Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and many others?

Chicago is one of the world's most beautiful cities. If you don't think so, take a ride around to its parks, through its residential streets, inspect its public buildings, its bathing spots on the lake. It is on its way to supremacy, not alone in population and industrial activities but in art, education, and all the finer things of life.

ARTHUR J. RICHARDSON.

INFORMATION REQUESTED.

Chicago, April 16.—To the Travel Editor: Having read a similar letter in your issue of Feb. 19, and wishing to make an auto trip of the west this summer, I should like to add a plea for information. My sister and I are planning to drive to California by way of the northern route and we would appreciate hearing from any of your readers who could tell us what places we "shouldn't miss"—eating places, tourist camps, cabins and room accommodations, what national parks to "take in," etc. The return trip would be south out of Los Angeles. My address is 5240 Kenmore avenue.

HELEN R. MATTHEWS.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, April 15.—To the Travel Editor: Your kindness in publishing the recent list of shut-ins I sent to you has resulted in many lovely letters and cards being sent to them. THE TRIBUNE is doing a wonderful work in bringing cheer to unfortunates.

I have the name of a young man whose back was broken in 1935 when a crane fell on him. He gets very lonesome. He is Martin Horvath Jr., room 225, Kenosha hospital, Kenosha, Wis.

Miss Ellen Witt, 4821 West Lake street, Chicago, has been ill for several years with heart trouble. She would like to hear from some of your readers.

Other shut-ins who also would be delighted to hear from travelers are Dorothy Morris, Municipal sanitarium, 5601 North Pulaski road, Chicago; Mrs. Helen Butler, room 259, Oak Forest sanitarium, Oak Forest, Ill.; Mrs. Altha Church, Hastings, Ia., and Miss Loretta Leel, Lenora, Kas.

I would appreciate it if you could find space to print their names. These people are badly in need of cheer.

HELEN BADE.

Tame Vesuvius.

Vesuvius, Italy's famous volcano, is still active, but a government observatory "keeps tabs" on it, and ordinarily it is calm enough so that tourists may walk right down onto the floor of the crater.

Drawbridge Still Works.

The castle of Lourdes, in southern France, is one of the oldest in Europe, and its great drawbridge works as well for visiting tourists today as it did for knights in armor 600 years ago.

Chicagoans on Spring Cruise to Old World

The Kungsholm sailed out of New York Friday on a cruise that, in the course of thirty-five days, will call on ports all the way from Madeira and Morocco to Scandinavia. Among the passengers from Chicago and vicinity were Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Manny, Miss Mary Jane Manny, Mr. and Mrs. Allan D. Donnell and their children, John, Jean and Patricia; Miss Lauretta A. Seaman, Mrs. George B. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Verschoor, Mr. and Mrs. Clement J. Raft, Mrs. Ralph W. Jackman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Kohlbusch, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gerding, Miss Jacqueline Gerding, Jules Gerding Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Thwaits, Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Catlin, Mrs. J. Curtis Lyter, Mrs. Chester John Krauthoefer, H. L. Kadish, L. A. Snetcamp, Miss Dorothy Stroud, Miss Addie Haglund, Miss M. Beatrice Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Ira Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Dulaney Logan, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Mathias, Mrs. H. H. Rice, Mrs. J. Brian Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. M. Woldenberg and their son, Jay; Miss Josephine Reid, and Miss Candace Thoman.

Mrs. Amelia Stirling, Miss Barbara Gunn, and Miss Mary Jane MacTavish, were on the Cameronia when it left for Belfast and Glasgow Thursday. Mrs. Flora Richardson embarked for Mediterranean ports yesterday on the Exochorda. Miss M. Jayne Gamble started for Europe Friday on the Statendam.

Gibraltar, Naples, Cannes, and Genoa were the ports of call scheduled for the Rex when it sailed yesterday. On board were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Driscoll, whose spring holiday plans include Sorrento, the Italian lakes, Switzerland, and the French Riviera. Other Chicago passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferro and their daughter, Mrs. T. Ferro Espinosa, bound for Gibraltar. Joseph Marsali, Mrs. Josephine Alfieri, and the Rev. J. J. Schanahan, all of Milwaukee, and Charles W. Douglas of St. Joseph, Mich., also chose the Rex for their Atlantic crossing.

Leaving for Bermuda last Monday on the Monarch of Bermuda were Miss Martha Borland, Miss Bonnie Jean Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Post, Miss Kathryn LaMire, and Miss Evelyn Harder, all of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jung and Mrs. Otto Kuhl of Milwaukee. On the Queen of Bermuda, sailing Wednesday, were Mr. and Mrs. H. Heitman and Miss E. Swanston.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gerderer and Mrs. S. S. Butler were on the Transylvania when it started out Tuesday for a West Indies cruise.

On the Queen Mary when it left for England Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen and their daughter, Betty; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cauley, Arthur Milnes and Robert White. Mr. and Mrs. Kieth Tunks and Charles F. Taylor will stop off in England on their way around the world, and Miss Maude Abernathy will visit England as a prelude to a trip to Paris and the tulip fields of Holland. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyering and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Mueller will visit both England and France.

Sailing on the Georgic Tuesday were J. E. Smart of Milwaukee and Mrs. Gertrude Neilson of Tomahawk, Wis. Mrs. Jeanne Borman and Mrs. Margaret Pennucci embarked on the same ship for a visit in Italy.

England also was the choice of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas H. Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Anderson, Miss Adelyn S. Overton, C. O. Swanson, R. D. Brown, A. T. Persson, S. B. Neltnor, and H. O. Gillies, all of this city. They left Thursday on the Washington. Other passengers included Mrs. Mary Overstake of Cerro Gordo, Ill., en route to visit her son at Bony, France; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bulkley of Abingdon, Ill., and Charles Kramer of Chicago.

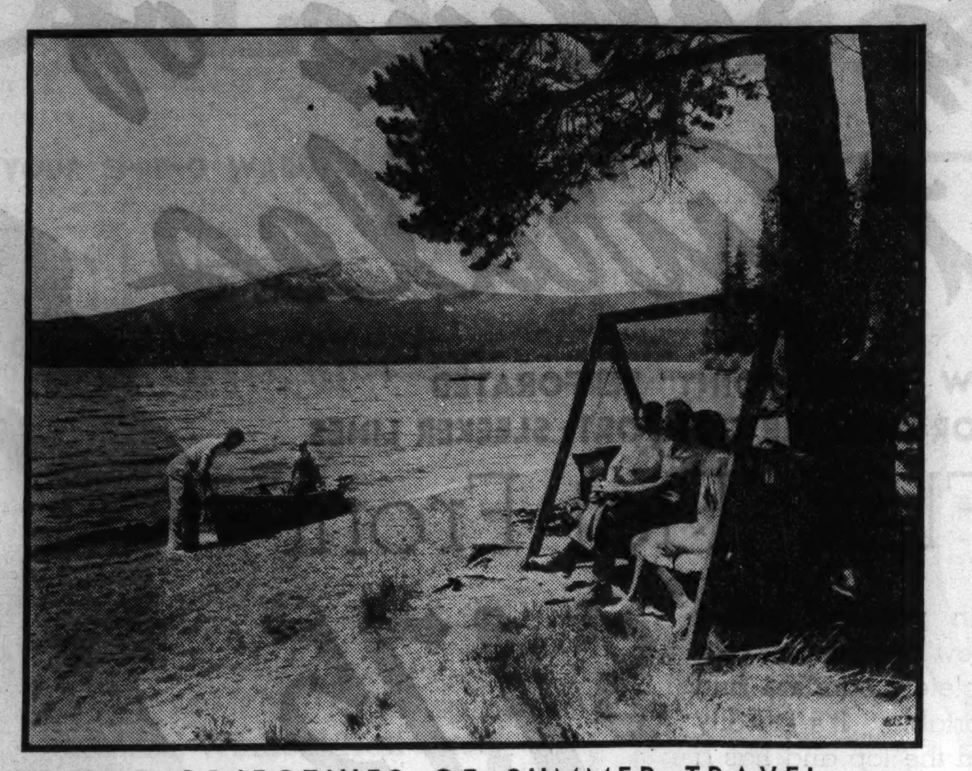
To other Chicagoans, spring means Paris and blossomtime in Normandy and Brittany. Mr. and Mrs. Bengt A. Carlson set sail Tuesday on the De Grasse. Aboard the Ile de France when it left Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Horton, who took their car over for a motor trip through France. Also leaving on the Ile were Rene J. Pleven and Mrs. Janet Taylor of Chicago and Prof. A. Vasiliev of Madison, Wis.

Starting out on their annual trip to Europe, Mr. and Mrs. William Ohlhaber of Chicago sailed on the New York Tuesday. On the same ship was Mrs. Gustav Wolkenhauer of Milwaukee. Wallace Herschel of this city boarded the Hansa Thursday for several months of study in Germany.

When the Scanstates left Friday it carried Mrs. O. Goranson and Miss M. E. Goranson bound for Stockholm. A fellow passenger was Mrs. E. A. Winkler of Madison, Wis.

The City of San Francisco, sailing yesterday for California via the Panama canal and Acapulco, had on board Miss Dale Andrews of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Pennefeather of Kenosha, Wis., are returning from a visit to the San Francisco fair on the City of Newport News.



ONE OF THE OBJECTIVES OF SUMMER TRAVEL

Diamond lake, in the Oregon Cascades, is known for its majestic surroundings, big trout, and easy accessibility.

Leaning Tower Has Counterpart in Yosemite Park

The Leaning Tower of Pisa in Italy, long considered a world wonder, has its living counterpart in the Grizzly Giant, a towering Sequoia tree in Yosemite National park.

Figures from Yosemite reveal that the tree, 209 feet high, leans 18.3 feet off center, or approximately 4 degrees 58 minutes. Known for its off center angle of 4 degrees 27 minutes, or fourteen feet, the Tower of Pisa, 179 feet high, leans less than the Grizzly Giant. While the angle is so apparent in the latter, it is far less noticeable in the great Sequoia, due to its large, spreading branches and proximity of surrounding trees.

Research has revealed that the Grizzly Giant has been off center probably for centuries, but is in no danger of falling. Recent annual checks have shown the lean has not varied. An extensive root system thoroughly anchors the tree, also held in place by buttressing of the trunk, 34.7 feet in diameter at the base. In addition, limbs and foliage have developed in such way to counterbalance this condition. The center of gravity of the trees is well within the stability limit.

The Sequoia is situated in the Mariposa grove of big trees, and is annually viewed by tens of thousands of park visitors, most of whom are unaware they are seeing the method nature uses when one of her forest monarchs fails to grow in a straight line to the sky. The Grizzly Giant is estimated to be 3,800 years old. It was already large when man began the construction of the Tower of Pisa in the eleventh and twelfth century.

FAR HORIZONS

It is so windy on top of the Eiffel tower, in Paris, that the French flag up there needs repair every two days, and a new flag every two months. Repairs are made by an old woman who has done the work since 1904.

Anchorage space for twenty ocean liners has been found in the harbors at Helsingfors, Finland, to help accommodate the 100,000 visitors expected at the Olympic games there in 1940.

In Exeter cathedral, England, visitors are shown the "dog whipper's rooms," just under the minstrel's gallery. In ancient times the functionary whipped stray dogs out of the cathedral. His wand of gold is one of the valuable relics there.

Unlike most European peasants who wear their bright costumes only on Sundays and holidays, the peasants of the Zakopane region of Poland wear their picturesque habit every day. They thus delight the artist and the tourist with a camera.

If you want to see sabots—the wooden shoes of French peasants—in the making, do not ask your way to a sabot factory, but go into the forest, such as the ancient one at Fougeres in Brittany, where in lone wood-cutters' cottages you will see them made by hand.

Not only are balconies in Venice covered with vines rooted in the soil, but the roots of the trees go down into the soil soaked with the waters of the Adriatic.

When in Sweden take one of the daily steamers on the Bohuslan coast to the island of Branno, where you will find the great rallying port of the Viking fleets of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden during their raids on the English and French coasts.

Next to Lourdes in France, no shrine in Europe has so many pilgrims as the Polish shrine at Czestochowa [pronounced Chenstohova]. The chief pilgrimage is in August, when it is not unusual for 30,000 persons to arrive in peasant costumes.

Denmark is one of the smallest lands in Europe—only a little larger than Maryland. Every year its towns and farms are visited by thousands of tourists on cycles who rent their wheels for about $2 a week. Cycles there outnumber autos twenty to one.

In the Rue des Cendres, Brussels, the convent at No. 7 represents the house in which "there was a sound of revelry by night" at the duchess of Richmond's ball on the eve of the battle of Waterloo.

Rome's Bath of Diocletian, now more than 1,600 years old, had a capacity enabling 3,200 persons to bathe at one time.

Norway has more coast line than the United States; it has 12,000 miles, half the earth's perimeter. Every year hundreds of visitors use the mail boats in and out the fjords to see the majesty of this remarkable coast.

Spring Selling of Famous Kleinert Girdles

FEATURING THE NEW "NEEDLEPOINT" PERFORATED FIGURE FORMERS FOR GREATER COMFORT, SLEEKER LINES

Sturdi-Flex "Flat Front"

This skin smooth patented rubber fabric with the new needlepoint perforations is completely odorless and amazingly comfortable. It's sturdily reinforced around the top and has a fleecy anti-chafe comfort band at the bottom, adjustable garters and new pull-on straps.

$1.75

The skillfully designed innerbands have already been proven a success for perfect girth control. They work miracles in giving your tummy the flat front that is so necessary in this season of sleek fitting high fashions. You, too, can have a perfect form! Don't delay—order yours tomorrow! Sizes 24 to 34.

Bra-Form Combination

$1.25

Guaranteed underarm daintiness plus an effective uplift bra! The attached nainsook dress shields are as tubbable as the net bra itself. White or tearose. Sizes 32 to 42.

Sturdi-Flex All-in-One

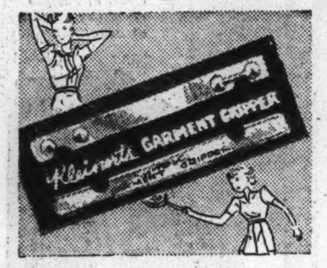
This fine foundation is made of new needlepoint Sturdi-Flex. The one piece fitted back, swami cloth uplift bra are just what you need to do justice to your new spring clothes. Adjustable shoulder straps, fleece edging, adjustable garters. Sizes 30 to 44. When ordering specify bust, waist and hip measurements.

Sturdi-Flex Panel Front

$3.50

The firm front brocade panel with concealed boning does the trick! The new needlepoint perforations insure ventilation in this figure perfecting garment. Fleece backed uplift bra, adjustable shoulder straps and garters. Sizes 30 to 44. When ordering specify bust, waist and hip measurements.

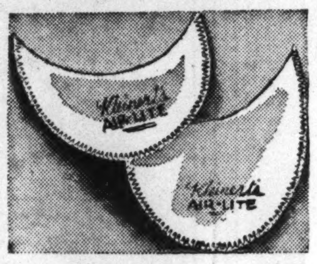
Group of Useful Kleinert Needs for Feminine Daintiness



Garment Gripper

50c

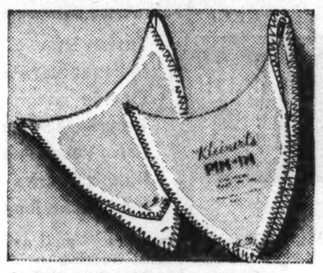
This cleverly designed garment gripper will hold the most elusive satin blouse securely anchored to your skirt. Will not damage the sheerest fabric. Grand with shirts and slacks, too.



Airlite Dress Shields

3 PAIRS $1

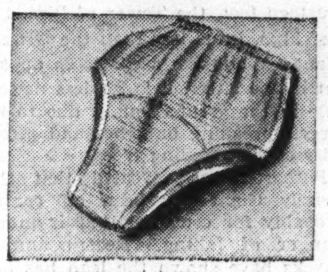
Weighing less than half an ounce, these rubberless shields prevent underarm friction. So comfortable to wear, they weigh about as much as a bubble. Flesh and white. Sizes 2, 3 and 4. 35c pair.



"Pin-In" Dress Shields

3 PAIRS $1

Just 30 seconds and you can protect your prettiest frocks. You don't have to bother sewing in these shields—4 tiny pins hold them securely in place. Flesh and white. Sizes 2 and 3. 35c pair.



Sani-Scant

The perfect protective brief. Pinning tabs eliminate need of a sanitary belt. Fits snugly.

CHAFE GUARD: Ends the agonies of chafing. Small, medium and large sizes.......$1

There's Nothing Like It on the Seven Seas!

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

IT WAS the night of last Nov. 21 on Lake Superior—the biggest and fiercest of the Great Lakes. The lake steamer John P. Geistman, loaded with coal and automobiles, her iron hulk glistening with ice, pitched and rolled and writhed and yawed in the delirious clutches of an unpredicted storm that swooped at her zigzagily and played with her wantonly like a gorilla tearing the strings from a harp.

● The weather forecast of the day before had predicted calm over Lake Superior, yet one of the most vicious tempests in Great Lakes history arose in a few hours, seeming to come alternately from the north, the east, and the southeast, until at half past 7 on the evening of the 21st a mountain of sea plunged across the Geistman's deck, washing some ten automobiles and their heavy chains into the lake. Again around 9 o'clock an even bigger mass of water avalanched upon the tortured vessel, sweeping thirty-four more cars to the black depths of Lake Superior. Skipper Charles Autterson said afterward that the gale shifted its angle of attack so frequently that "I couldn't put the vessel in any position in which she wouldn't roll. . . . It was the meanest blow I've ever seen."

● That sort of weather typifies the extremes to which Great Lakes climate can go. Spring is a relatively calm season on the lakes, but an April shower will occasionally go wild on Lake Michigan and strew wreckage in its wake. Sometimes salt-water sailors scoff at the need for taking precautions on the lakes—but not after they have sailed the lakes for a season or two. There is the famous tragedy which befell two French trawlers in the last week of the World war. They had been built by a Canadian shipbuilding company at Fort William, Ont., and were being rushed from that port to France. Disregarding storm signals in Superior's most treacherous month, two crews of forty some officers and men each set out aboard the two trawlers in early November to cross Lake Superior to Sault Ste. Marie and on to Lake Huron.

● But they never were seen after they steamed out of sight of Fort William. It is still a mystery what happened to them, but they certainly must have been swallowed up in the storm then raging, for "neither lifeboat, raft, piece of wreckage, nor body has been found from either one of them."

● What is the cause for such diabolical fury upon a mere lake? Is the same true of Lake Huron, Lake Michigan, Erie, and Ontario? What about Great Lakes weather in (Continued on page four.)

Studios Eye Future Through Golden Circle of New Faces

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

CONVINCED from analysis of fan letters that the great American public is getting tired of the same old faces in the same old rôles, a conviction strengthened by the popularity of foreign films that offer new faces and new personalities as their strongest attraction, Hollywood has started beating the bushes for young cinema white hopes. Within the last few months David O. Selznick picked unknown Vivien Leigh to play the rôle of Scarlett O'Hara and Columbia picked William Holden to play the lead in "Golden Boy." Under the old formula the parts would have been given to established players, but the old formula is being rejected every day.

Warners are publicizing youthful Ann Sheridan, Jeffrey Lynn, and John Payne. RKO is concentrating on a campaign for Lucille Ball. Universal has started whacking the publicity drums for Frances Robinson. M-G-M is paying more and more attention to youngsters like Ann Rutherford and Alan Curtis. Mary Healy will be given a terrific build-up by Twentieth Century-Fox.

These are scattered examples, but at Paramount, as a direct result of Frank Freeman's orders, youth really will have its fling. Freeman, the new Paramount studio boss, comes from the field of theater operations. His viewpoint is that of other theater managers who believe that the public wants new cinema blood. As a result Paramount will have a Golden Circle of new faces, and thirteen youngsters already have been admitted to that circle. Four of them are from Illinois, and the remaining nine come from Boston, New York City, Texas, Kansas City, and other spots in the hinterlands.

Paramount's policy is sound, I think, because Freeman does not intend to run his selections down the throats of the movie patrons. Fallacy in other studio campaigns has been in the attitude of the studio. For instance, Darryl Zanuck, when he presented Simone Simon in her first picture, ran a trailer along with the picture which told the audience that they had just seen a new Twentieth Century-Fox star. He did the same thing with Arleen Whelan. It was a piece of studio impertinence that audiences resented, and the youngsters so presented had all the worst of it.

Freeman, at Paramount, has picked the first thirteen of his Golden Circle by audience reaction throughout the country. These youngsters have been singled out by movie fans as the result of parts they've played in one, two, or three pictures. That is complete wisdom on Freeman's part, because the public always is the best matchmaker and it will arrive at the true answer every time.

Let's survey the four Chicagoans who have been admitted to Golden Circle membership—Ellen Drew, Janice Logan, Louise Campbell, and William Holden. Miss Drew, whose real name is Terry Ray, is a former department store accounting clerk and salesgirl. She has appeared in fourteen pictures, and in her last two pictures won featured billing opposite Bing Crosby and Ronald Colman. Contrast this sensible treatment of a youngster with the helter-skelter plan of naming her a star in her first appearance before cameras.

Northwestern university's Louise Campbell, instead of being rushed into parts that were too big for her, had the experience of seven pictures behind her before she got an important part in "Men with Wings." That is intelligent progression, isn't it? Janice Logan, daughter of Chicago Investment Broker Stuart Logan, attracted audience attention in "Federal Offense." As a result of audience reaction she was given a part in "What a Life," and her work scored again. Chicagoan William Holden is the only one of the quartet who has been rushed too fast, and that is not Freeman's fault. Columbia stepped in and secured the youngster for the lead in "Golden Boy."

Most advanced of the thirteen youngsters in the Golden Circle, from the standpoint of camera experience and "savvy," are Patricia Morison, dark-haired New York City beauty, and Robert Preston, Massachusetts youngster who was playing Shakesperean rôles in Mrs. Tyrone Power's company when he was 15 years old. You might keep your eye on both of them.

At the moment, and from now on, the youngsters of the country will be in an advantageous position if they have talent, because the search has just started and it will continue for the next twelve months. The studios frankly are looking for replacements. The knell has been sounded for those who have passed over the hill.

John Ford helped lead the way when he gave the lead in "Stagecoach" to youthful John Wayne, who had been laboring for Republic and learning the technique of the business. The youngster's performance in the Ford western was a revelation. Audiences liked him tremendously because his face was new. He projected an element of surprise.

The foreign pictures, however, drove home the lesson to the studios. Technically the British pictures were inferior to those made in Hollywood, but the foreign pictures were crowded with new faces. You didn't know in advance that a player would gesture this way or that, you couldn't predict in advance where this one would sneer and another one giggle, and the experience was pleasant. The Hollywood veteran stars no longer can surprise an audience. You know in advance just how Ronald Colman will play a part—any part. You know beforehand just what expressions will chase across the attractive faces of Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Carole Lombard. The veterans have appeared in so many pictures that their mannerisms were exhausted long ago.

So now the youngsters will have their chance, which is a good thing for them and a good thing for the industry.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am 12 years old and very much interested in movie stars. I read your column every Sunday and like it very much. Wayne Morris is my favorite actor. Please tell me something about him. If possible tell me a little about his movie companion, Priscilla Lane.

Is Tim Holt Jack's son? I say he is, but my girl friends say no. Thank you.

RUTH NEETZ.

PRISCILLA LANE
Born a Mullican in Indianola, Ia.

Editor's note: Welcome to the column, my dear! Wayne Morris is a good and likable actor. He was born in Los Angeles, Feb.17, 1914. He's 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 190 pounds, and has blue eyes and blond hair. Educated in Los Angeles. He was recently married to Leonora Schinasi. Priscilla Lane's real name is Mullican. She was born in Indianola, Ia., June 12, 1917. She's 5 feet 2½ inches tall, weighs 102 pounds, and has blonde hair and blue eyes. Educated Fagin School of Dramatic Arts in New York. Sang with Fred Waring's orchestra before entering motion pictures. Yes, Tim is Jack's son. Glad to be able to help you—and come again!

Dear Mae: Why can't we have more pictures like "A Man to Remember"? To me it was a fine picture. I might not be much of a critic, but I cannot understand why this picture didn't receive more comment than it did in the papers.

Put out more movies like this one and I'll surely go more often than I do. I go to the theater to relax and enjoy myself and not to come out of the place all jittered up as a result of the hot and gangstery pictures that they give you!

I'm no crab, Mae. Your truly,

ROY O. EVANS.

Editor's note: You don't sound like a crab. "A Man to Remember" was a picture to remember.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have had several discussions as to the natural color of Barbara Stanwyck's hair and the color of her eyes. Would also like to know the date of her birth. WINIFRED HAYES.

Editor's note: Barbara Stanwyck was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 16, 1907. She has auburn hair and blue eyes.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please tell us the names and ages of the six boys who played in "Dead End" and "Crime School"? Also the characters they played.

We enjoyed their acting in both pictures very much and would appreciate it if you would answer this in your Sunday column.

Could you tell us how we can get a personally autographed picture of these boys? DORIS and BETTY.

Editor's note: The boys known as the "Dead End" kids appeared in both films. Their character and real names are:

"DEAD END"

Tommy	Billy Halop
Dippy	Huntz Hall
Angel	Bobby Jordan
Spit	Leo Gorcey
T. B.	Gabriel Dell
Milty	Bernard Punsley

"CRIME SCHOOL"

Frankie Warren	Billy Halop
Squirt	Bobby Jordan
Goofy	Huntz Hall
Spike	Leo Gorcey
Fats	Bernard Punsley
Bugs	Gabriel Dell

You can obtain photos of the boys by writing Warners-First National studio, Burbank, Cal. The cost is usually 25 cents for each photograph. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please inform me who played the parts of the father and the uncle of the "lady" in the picture "The Cowboy and the Lady"?

Thank you. MRS. NETTIE LITTS.

Editor's note: Harry Davenport played the part of the uncle and Henry Kolker was the father. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: Please tell me what has become of John Boles and Fredric March. I haven't seen them in pictures for a long time, especially John Boles. I think they are both grand actors and would like to see more of them.

Could you possibly squeeze a picture of John Boles in your column for me?

Thank you.

DOROTHY FANSLER.

JOHN BOLES
A fan clamors for more pictures for him

Editor's note: O, John Boles is around, and Fredric March is appearing in a play in New York. I agree with you. We should have the pleasure of seeing them oftener. Here's a picture of Mr. Boles to cheer you while awaiting his next screen appearance.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have just seen "Boys Town." It was a peach of a picture. Could you tell me who played the part of Mo (the Jewish boy), Fred Fuller (the first mayor), and Paul? Also how can I obtain pictures of them? Thanks loads.

Yours truly, ELAINE KAPLAN.

Editor's note: Sidney Miller played the rôle of Mo Kahn, Frankie Thomas the part of Freddie Fuller (the first mayor), and Jimmy Butler the part of Paul Ferguson. I believe you can obtain photos of these boys by writing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal.

Dear Miss Tinée: I hope your many fans get as much enjoyment out of reading this poem as I had in writing it:

LAND OF MYSTERY

Hollywood, Hollywood, why do I like you
And all the vast and mighty things
That come from inside you?
You make us laugh, you make us cry,
You make us love and hate and sigh
With your intriguing splendor.

You mix the monthly seasons of our Standard year;
In winter you bring sun and rain,
In summer snow and hurricane.
You can make the weather hot or cold—
Hollywood, how dare you be so bold?

Land of stars, O land of stars, you
Keep the smartest guessing, yet
You please us all, young and old,
Big and small.
You capture the rarest of nature's
Colorful, hidden charm,
From the deep blue of the ocean
To the golden grain of the farm.

So still does time seem to stand
For you, so many things you can do.
The genius, too, that you display to Make a dreary, tired world relax
And then be gay.

Hollywood, Hollywood, is there nothing
You can't do?
Tell me, why do I like you?
If heaven on this earth we find
Where all things are so sublime,
Hollywood, Hollywood comes closest
To me,
That grand land of mystery.

Some day perhaps I'll come and see
What makes you feared and loved by me.
Hollywood, Hollywood, will I understand?

Sincerely, CARL SNYDER.

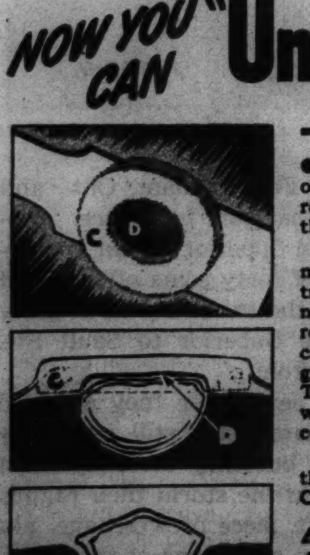
NOW YOU CAN "Uncork" your corn

—get rid of it Root* and All



● Corns are caused by pressure and friction and old-fashioned home paring only gives temporary relief because it only affects the surface—leaves the root imbedded in your toe.

Don't suffer needlessly. Now it's easy to remove corns quickly—without pain—without trouble. Just put a scientific Blue-Jay pad (C) neatly over the corn—it relieves pain quickly by removing pressure. The special Blue-Jay medicated formula (D) on the pad acts on the corn—gently loosens it so it can be lifted right out. Then simply by avoiding pressure and friction which caused your corns you can prevent their coming back!

It's silly to suffer from corns. Get rid of them this easy, scientific way. Get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters today—only 25c for 6.

New Deal Housing Too Costly for the Poor

It Knifes Private Industry While Missing Own Goal

By LAURENCE BURD

"I SEE A THIRD of the nation ill housed."

The President made this statement in his second inaugural address on Jan. 20, 1937.

A few months later the administration had plunged head first into the housing business. Supposedly the government intended to build houses to house some of the ill housed third. Supposedly it would give a decent shelter to those whose incomes prevented them from paying more than slum rent rates.

Hence the United States Housing authority set up by the housing act of 1937 had two chief purposes:

First, to clear away slums, and,

Second, to build "decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for families of low income."

These things were to be done largely with federal funds.

Slum clearance and low-cost housing were thus the apparent objectives; cleanliness and health instead of filth and disease for millions of present slum dwellers. Rents low enough so that those who had not known bathrooms or even inside toilets or central heating or refrigeration or green grass could have these facilities.

Few have disputed that these are admirable aims. But many are raising the question of whether the aims are being carried out. The government has already spent or contracted to spend nearly a billion dollars on housing for initial buidling costs alone. The Public Works administration spent 134 million, and the United States Housing authority has already arranged to spend 800 million dollars more.

Will this billion dollars help the slum dwellers? Will it help the "stimulation of business activity," a third stated objective of the housing act? Is government housing doing the job that it was intended to do?

Many real estate men, congressmen, taxpayers, and slum dwellers themselves say that the answer is "No."

They say that the federal housing program is neither slum clearance nor low-cost housing. They say that government building, with its billion-dollar subsidy, is knifing private residential construction in the back.

They argue that the billion-dollar cost is only the first installment of a program for the squandering of taxpayers' money. If the program continues at its present pace billions more will be taken from taxpayers' pockets to subsidize housing.

They say that the American people are not getting their money's worth—that they are paying a billion dollars for one thing and getting something else.

Just why is the government's housing program under such a barrage of hostile cross-firing? Here are some of the things that the critics have found:

1. Rents on federal housing projects are so high that only the so-called middle income groups can afford to pay them. This leaves the truly "ill housed" families just as ill housed as they ever were.

2. The cost of federally built dwellings is extravagantly high for a project that is supposed to be "low-cost" housing. Architects hired by the government have been more interested in high fees than in low-cost houses. They receive more if the houses are more elaborate, and so are interested in making them fancy. Contractors, too, are interested in building high-priced dwellings to increase their incomes, and it is difficult for the involved government administrative machinery to curb this tendency. Many modern conveniences and frills, including electric refrigeration, electric stoves, and recreation rooms, are provided. The middle income families that move in have facilities far better than those of the less lucky middle income families that are not admitted but whose taxes help to pay for the projects.

The average estimated cost for each family unit now under construction by the USHA is $5,520. A study by another government agency, the Federal Housing administration, shows that the average cost of privately built homes insured by the FHA is only $5,384.

3. The high costs of federal housing are paid for out of taxpayers' pockets. Although the actual financing takes the form of a loan by the USHA to the local housing authority, the government immediately turns around and pays subsidies to the local authority. These subsidies, which run for sixty years, are large enough to enable the local housing authority to repay its debt with interest. In sixty years the subsidies will total two and one-half times the original cost of the projects.

Williamsburg housing project in New York, land for which was bought at $4.30 a square foot. (Tribune photo.)

Knickerbocker Village, a privately financed New York project, built at 23 per cent lower cost per room than federal project.

4. At the present rate of building costs and subsidies the USHA cannot begin to make any real dent in either slum clearance or rehousing without saddling a crushing tax load on the people. The initial cost of housing for 150,000 families is estimated at $888,000,000. If 5,000,000 families were rehoused by the USHA—and this number is little more than half the families with incomes in the lower third—it would cost the federal government more than sixty billion dollars in subsidies. This is one and a half times our present national debt.

5. Federal housing projects are boosting local as well as federal taxes. In cities where the USHA builds the projects are tax exempt, and the cities receive only a small service charge instead of taxes. This charge runs less than one-sixth the tax rate actually paid by property owners on comparable private properties. Cities must make up the tax loss from their taxpayers' pockets—from private tenants and landlords and home owners.

6. Private builders, who in competition only with each other would find it profitable to build new dwellings, have been stopped short by government competition. They cannot profitably meet the scale of rentals that the government charges the middle income groups, because the federal projects are subsidized. Private builders must get back in rent their cost of construction. They must also get enough to pay local taxes. In government building the cost is charged up to today's taxpayers or to the deficit—that is, tomorrow's taxpayers. The local taxes are charged to other local taxpayers.

7. With all its ballyhoo, the USHA is actually not clearing the slums on many projects. It has found from the experience of the PWA's $134,000,000 housing experiment, which preceded the USHA, that it is cheaper to build on vacant land. The PWA also found that single projects in the midst of slum areas proved undesirable locations for those who were supposed to be cut loose from the slum atmosphere by government housing.

The housing act of 1937 calls for "equivalent elimination" of slum dwellings when government projects are built on vacant land, but this elimination may be delayed indefinitly where a scarcity of low-cost housing is shown.

Privately financed six-room brick and steel home built in Chicago for $5,800, including 33x125-foot lot.

The critics contend that if slum clearance by the government requires the high costs, the tax exemptions, and subsidies running into billions of taxpayers' money, then slum clearance is not a job for the government. Slum clearance and low-cost housing are two different propositions, but the government has tried to scramble them both in one skillet, real estate men say.

Most slum areas in cities such as Chicago are regions which from the viewpont of location are intrinsically valuable and are worth rehabilitation. Business men know this, and that is why many of them favor reconstruction of these areas with private capital on some such plan as the "public service building corporations" being proposed by the Chicago Building congress. Because of their high intrinsic values, slum properties are too expensive to be suitable for government "low-cost" housing projects. Truly low-cost housing can be built more economically where land is cheaper.

Paul D. Angell, secretary of the Chicago Building congress and member of the housing and blighted areas committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is one of the many real estate leaders who propose that the government abandon its present scrambled policy and go in for low-cost housing that will actually reach down to the families whose incomes are so low that they cannot pay private landlords for a decent place to live.

"The objects of government charity under the prevailing system of public housing," Angell says "are those who earn on an average between $100 and $150 a month and receive housing accommodations superior to those who earn twice as much or more, while those who really deserve charity and public aid are left to their fate.

"Might it not be more reasonable to suppose that the province of government aid in housing should be confined to meet the needs of the poor, the unfortunate, and the unemployable members of our population? To provide them with sanitary living quarters at the expense of the government, either through direct subsidies as rent contributions or indirect subsidies by way of tax exemption, is clearly justified. But the government is missing these people entirely. Its 'low-cost' housing has become high-rent housing compared with the means of the ones who need it most."

What are the actual costs and actual rent charges on housing projects administered under federal government supervision?

All federal housing is now handled by the USHA, but the only ones yet completed were built originally by the PWA. Constructed as so-called self-liquidating projects, they have turned out to be 100 per cent nonliquidating, for the entire cost of $134,000,000 was written off by the government as a loss.

The average over-all cost for the PWA's 21,656 dwelling units, which averaged 3.5 rooms each, was $6,189 a unit. Contrast this with the four private housing projects which were built about the same time in Washington, D. C., and insured by the Federal Housing administration. The latter had an average cost of $4,690 a dwelling unit. The per room cost was 30 per cent lower than on PWA.

Although PWA costs were written off the books, rents being charged by the USHA to cover operating expenses alone on these projects are too high to reach the needy among the lowest income groups. This is obvious from a comparison of the incomes of those now living in the projects with the incomes of the lower third of the population. It is also apparent from a study of rent schedules that most slum dwellers could not afford to pay what the government charges.

One-third of the families in this country have incomes of less than $780 a year, or $65 a month, according to a study for 1935-'36 by the national resources committee. Of course, not all of the lowest one-third are in the city slums, but the committee found that this group with incomes under $780 included all classes of families living in all kinds of communities—factory wage earners and farmers alike.

Case studies of federal housing units show that these low income families cannot pay the rents charged. For example, government operation of the Logan Fontenelle Homes in Omaha, Neb., was studied by the Building Owners and Managers' association of Omaha. The association found that:

Rent schedules were $24 a month for three-room apartments, $28 for four rooms, and $31.70 for five rooms. Under the USHA maximum limitations families with incomes as high as $96 a month could be admitted to three-room units in the Omaha project, and families with incomes up to $158 were eligible for five rooms. Incomes of $65 to $121 monthly fall in the nation's middle third income group, and those of $121 and higher in the upper third.

A large number of tenants in the Omaha units had incomes of between $100 and $150 a month—in the middle and upper income thirds instead of the lower third.

The project paid to the city of Omaha, instead of local taxes, a fee of $2,500 for 1938. Local assessors and appraisers estimated that the property in private hands would have been taxed $45,000.

Families moving into the new apartments had 125 children altogether, and the sudden increase in attendance at the neighborhood school so overcrowded school facilities that the board of education advised that a new school must be built at Omaha citizens' expense.

Another example is found in Chicago, where PWA money was used to build three projects—the Jane Addams houses, the Julia C. Lathrop homes, and the Trumbull Park homes. These are now administered by the Chicago Housing authority under an agreement with the USHA.

Under the CHA rules for admission the legal limits on eligible families range from those with incomes of $765 a year to those with $2,332. The median income per family is actually $1,275, based on figures at time of admittance. Practically all of the 2,414 families were admitted in 1938. The median figure means that half the families get more and half the families get less than $1,275 a year.

According to the bureau of labor statistics, 32 per cent, or nearly one-third, of the families in Chicago have incomes under $1,250, and 16.2 per cent, or about one-sixth, receive less than $750.

Thus the one-sixth of Chicago families who are apparently most in need of low-rent housing are ineligible for admittance to the government's "low-cost" projects. And nearly one-half the families admitted by the CHA have incomes that place them above the lowest one-third group.

The rents in effect for the Chicago projects make them out of sight for the most ill housed families. A three-room unit costs $23.70 a month, including utilities and janitor service; four rooms rent for $27.50, and five rooms for $31.50. The per room rental is from $7.90 to $6.30.

Real estate men point out that the authority is now forced to charge these high rents because the government built elaborate projects that are expensive to operate.

WHAT THEY ARE

PWA The Public Works administration, a federal agency, spent $134,000,000 from 1933 to 1937 on "low-cost" housing projects. Federal housing projects are now financed by the USHA.

USHA The United States Housing authority, established in 1937. It lends to local housing authorities up to 90 per cent of a proposed housing project and makes further annual contributions.

CHA The Chicago Housing authority, a local authority, with officials appointed by the mayor. It has leased from the PWA and now operates in Chicago three housing projects built by PWA.

FHA The Federal Housing administration, a government agency authorized to insure up to 3 billion dollars of private home mortgages to protect the lender. It does not lend money.

In comparing private rents with rents on the government projects in Chicago, Newton C. Farr, vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said recently:

"I have checked a group of nine buildings for the management of which I am responsible. These buildings provide living accommodations for the same type of people that it was proposed to accommodate in the federal projects. The buildings are old, but they are clean and sanitary. They are not in slum areas. In these nine buildings there are 909 rooms, which are rented at an average rental of $6.90 a room. These buildings are all subject to real estate taxes."

(Paul Stone photo.)
Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary, CHA.

Angell estimates that rentals on government housing projects would have to be 100 per cent higher than the present rate if the projects were not subsidized by the federal government and exempted from taxes by local bodies. Private landlords are thus trying to buck a 100 per cent subsidy.

In buying slum properties for clearance and rebuilding under PWA projects the federal government was often a lavish spender. The price of slum land bought for the Williamsburg houses in Brooklyn amounted to $187,000 an acre, or $4.30 a square foot.

This and other instances of extravagance in PWA land buying prompted congress in setting up the USHA to limit the cost of land bought for USHA projects to $1.50 a square foot. That would mean a limitation of $65,340 an acre, which could hardly be called low-cost land. An idea of the coming results of the USHA program now in process may be found in reports by Nathan Straus, administrator.

Straus has reported that the average land cost for the first 141 projects contracted for by the USHA is less than 75 cents a square foot, or about one-half the maximum set by law. The estimated average cost of USHA housing units now being built is $5,520. This is lower than the PWA's dwelling unit cost of $6,189, but is still $136 a unit higher than the average cost of all privately built, FHA insured homes in the country.

Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.) pointed out in a recent speech on the floor of the senate that the USHA is building a Baltimore "low-cost" housing project at a cost of $6,354 per dwelling unit, according to USHA estimates.

"In other words, we are building in Baltimore city, for people of the lowest possible income, houses which cost more per family unit than 90 per cent of the houses in Baltimore city cost," Tydings said, "and the people who live in these government-constructed houses are to be exempt in whole or in part from local taxation and are to have an average of $215 per family per year paid as part of their rent for sixty years in the future."

Straus says that direct comparisons between USHA costs and costs of private homes are unfair, "because the total cost of a public housing project includes many items of benefit to a city's government and to its social and economic welfare, which are practically never encompassed by a private housing development."

In answering the opponents of local tax exemption for federal projects Straus says in effect that the tax loss to the city is slight and that gains to the city from the new project are many.

"In the average community benefiting by our present program," Straus says, "the maximum local cost in the form of tax exemption would deprive the city of only two-tenths of 1 per cent of its annual tax revenue.

If You Do It Correctly, Talking with Your Hands Is an Aid to Beauty

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1939: By the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

A LITTLE gesture is not a dangerous thing.

"A little gesture is rather like lipstick; it adds a touch of color to conversation," said Carlotta, English poetess, stopping in New York on her first American visit. "American women on the whole have the best kept, neatest, most beautifully manicured hands in the world, but they just don't know how to use them.

"Linguists will notice there are certain natural gestures that are as typical of a language as the tone used to express it. You speak English in one tone. French becomes slightly nasal, German guttural. As the tone varies with each language, so also does the gesture. The English speak with little gesture. The French language demands punctuations of gesture, and French women use their hands exceptionally well, delicately, piquantly. The secret of the graceful gestures of French women lies in the fact that they never use their hands at the same level."

Take a hint from a world traveler. You may not have tiny Latin hands, nor the shapely ones of old French paintings, but you can use them effectively if you'll take a little trouble.

A few hand exercises practiced before the mirror, and also composure of the spirit, will do wonders toward making your hands more beautiful. Hands are the most indiscreet things. If you are nervous they will be restless. Trial lawyers often note their witness' hands during their questioning on the stand. Faces may be kept guileless, but the hands will jerk and fidget.

And if you're a wise woman you won't let your hands "tell tales out of school" either by gesture or appearance. Pianists have short nails of necessity. Practicing keeps them so. The sculptor, typist, and painter have hands that are the result of their repeated exercise, their use. But the day is over when the disproportionate shape of hands excuses their being unkempt. Today is not the day to sigh over the shape of your hands. Your mid-Victorian sisters may have "saved" their hands, but life is too active and stimulating in this modern age.

Better to say to the American, "Stop breathing," than to say to her, "Do nothing and let your nails grow." It was a sign of aristocracy with the Chinese. They were proud of the fact that they did nothing. Victorian ladies folded their hands and waited, and as a consequence their hands were soft and pale. But we live in an era of "doing things." American women live two or three lives in one. They marry, have babies, play golf, bridge, and badminton, but their hands are well kept and neat.

There is hardly a home without a manicure kit. Mother and daughter know how to use it. Around every corner there's a beauty salon where they can have their weekly manicure. There's a jar of hand cream on the shelf and various shades of polish for every occasion. There are cameo tones to match demure costumes, fuchsia shades to blend with fashion's high trends. There are tones and hues to express the individual personality. Your hands are becoming more interesting, vital, modern.

So study your hands and train them. Harmony, color, and style for your finger tips can be supplemented by grace and poise of gesture. Recognize that you have gestures and get them under control. They are as natural as speaking itself. Watch them, and tone them down if they are too gauche. Brighten them up if they are heavy. The best manicure on the prettiest hands in the world is lovely only if the hands are used gracefully, freely, unaffectedly. The fate of your hands lies with you. No matter what their shape, size, or color, you can make them interesting.

Storm Over the Great Lakes!

general? What are its habits and caprices, and how does it get that way?

It would be hard to find a man better qualified than Capt. Robert J. Brown of the Chicago Tribune fleet to tell of the nature of Great Lakes weather, and so the last time the 2,960-ton paper ship Chicago Tribune was at her Chicago dock the writer went down there and sought out Captain Brown. Sitting at the table of his trim cabin with a chart of the lakes spread before him, Captain Brown told of what he had observed during his three years with the Tribune fleet and of his long preliminary training on waters of the world, both salt and fresh.

"Superior is the worst of the lakes," he said. "The water is deep there, and cold. A ground swell keeps up a long time on Superior after a storm. It's almost like the ocean, only the swell is a little shorter and nastier."

Enormous waves pound Toronto water front during seventy-mile gale on Lake Ontario. (Acme photo.)

"Have you been in many storms on Superior, captain?"

"Not many," he said. "I seldom have to go there, but I remember one northern gale on the way to Fort William that pitched us about so hard that nearly all our dunnage was smashed in the hold. We were empty, and our water ballast swashed the one-and-a-half-inch planks around like matches and broke almost all. It was one of those equinoctial gales in the autumn."

"How about Lake Michigan?"

"That's bad, too. I guess the worst storms of all come on Michigan. They don't last as long as on Superior, and there isn't so much swell, but they're fierce. Northers are the ones that are bad on Michigan. They sweep down the length of the lake. Sometimes southerly gales sweeping up the lake are bad, too.

"I remember one in October, 1937. It broke the plate glass in the wheelhouse window, which is some twenty feet above where the water ought to be. The Chicago Tribune pitches more than she rolls, because she's broad o' beam—but this time we were rollin' like a lightship, and we put one sea aboard there that slapped the glass right through. Why, the steering pole—that spar out on the bow there sticking up twenty-five feet above water level—was walloping down in the seas and plunging under water at times. We were heading south, but it got so fierce we had to turn and run before the wind, going north again for several hours. I was afraid the whole wheelhouse might be smashed away if I didn't."

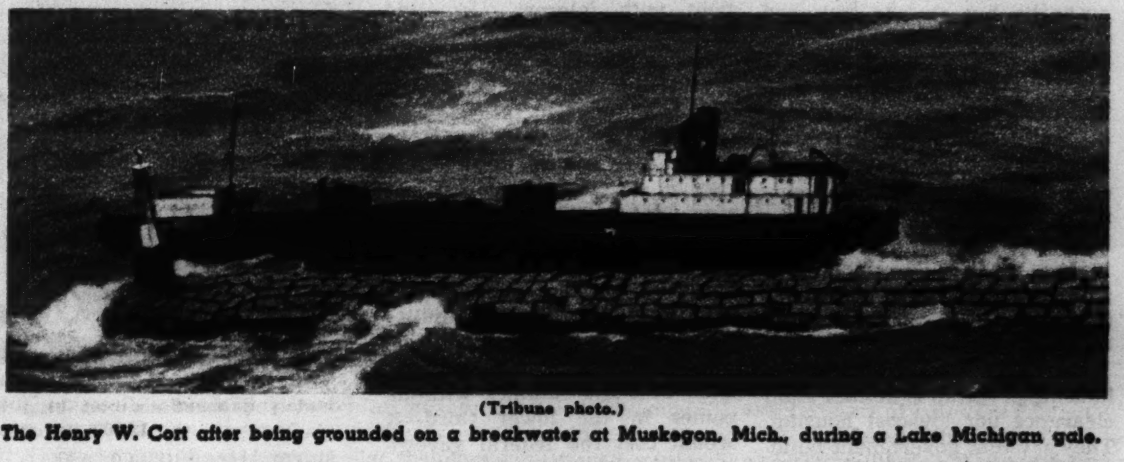
"What time of year do you get the worst weather, captain?"

"In the autumn always, especially after the snow begins to come. You get snow squalls often along with the gales, and between gales you're apt to get fog. Snow is just as bad as fog, only colder. You have to go slow, because the fog signals often get lost in the wind. In the old days we had a terrible time trying to figure out where the fog signals were coming from in the fog, but today we've got the D. F.—direction finder, or radio compass—which tells us exactly where we are. Some of the oldtimers don't trust the D. F. and still go by dead reckoning and fog signals, but I let the D. F. tell me where I am and I don't have to slow down as much as some. The D. F. works something like the radio beams that airplanes fly on. It's the finest thing ever invented."

"How does the ocean compare with navigating on the lakes, Captain Brown?"

"It's very different. It's slower and easier on the ocean. It's like—well, like the difference between galloping on a horse and trotting. The lakes have a short 'woof' and the ocean has a long, slow 'ro-o-o-o-oll.'"



(Tribune photo.)
The Henry W. Cort after being grounded on a breakwater at Muskegon, Mich., during a Lake Michigan gale.

"What's the worst storm you ever were in?"

"I guess about the worst was a northeaster in October, 1934, in the Atlantic off Nova Scotia. It was terrible. I was on the New York News, bound for New York from Thorold, Ont. A hurricane was forecast, but we didn't know much about it, because our wireless broke down from the wind. The wireless room flooded, and the ship pitched so much the paper rolls in the hold got loose and began to plunge back and forth with the motion of the ship, roaring terribly and splintering the dunnage and sounding like they were going to knock our sides out. We finally made New York all right, but maybe it would have been different if we'd struck as bad a blow in Lake Superior or Lake Michigan. The salt water has more buoyancy than the fresh, and a ship behaves better in it."

(Associated Press photo.)
Capt. Autterson of the freighter John P. Geistman on deck the morning after the Lake Superior storm that swept forty-four automobiles overboard.

"The ocean is better as regards ice, too, isn't it?"

"Yes, that's right. The freezing point of salt water is several degrees lower than fresh. Spray freezing all over a ship is a serious trouble with winter navigation on the lakes. Rigging gets so heavy with ice that it breaks. Winches get so clogged that it takes two men with axes and steam hoses an hour to thaw them out."

"How about the other lakes? Is Lake Erie easier on a ship than Superior or Michigan?"

"Yes; it's farther south and shallower. Because it's so shallow, Erie has short, choppy waves like a boiling pot when the wind blows. Of course, that type of wave is hard on a ship in a way, because in such a short sea a vessel doesn't have a chance to lift."

"Where do the lakes freeze up first in winter, preventing you from getting through with our newsprint paper?"

"Well, generally the river around Detroit and St. Clair lake, between Huron and Erie, show ice first. The big lakes don't freeze over easily—but, of course, I'm not around in winter, so I don't know much about that."

"Here's one more question, Captain Brown. Do you like being on the lakes as much as the ocean?"

"Yes," he answered without hesitation. "In spite of the weather, there's nothing like the lakes. I get four months off a year when I'm working on the lakes."

After the interview with Captain Brown the writer visited the government weather bureau in the federal building.

Brown's statements were well corroborated by the official documentation of science. November, the records show, is definitly the month of greatest storm frequency on the lakes, with October and December next.

• • •

The present time of year, April, is a comparatively mild period, being average in everything but wind velocity. Both rainfall and humidity in the lakes region are greatest in summer and least in winter, leaving April intermediate. In sunshine, too, April is average, the summer months getting the lion's share of sun despite the heavier rain then, which descends mostly in the form of brief but intense thundershowers.

Where April is supreme is in high average wind velocity. The records show that for steady blustery weather and rib-whittling winds April in Chicago, for example, cannot be beat.

That fact, however, does not detract from the drama of the violent extremes which the wind occasionally indulges in in November. Probably the worst storm ever to hit the Great Lakes was a November storm, that of Nov. 7, 8, and 9 in 1913. As it swept across Lake Superior the steamer Henry B. Smith was swamped and sunk, drowning twenty-six, and there were numbers of other shipping casualties on Superior not itemized in the records. On Lake Huron, in addition to numerous small craft, the storm destroyed the following steamers: The John A. McGean, with twenty-three lives lost; the Charles S. Price, with twenty-eight deaths; the Isaac M. Scott, with twenty-six deaths; the Hydrus, with her crew of twenty-four, and the Argus, also with twenty-four. Reaching Lake Erie, the storm was undiminished in intensity and foundered at least seventeen ships with a total of 248 known deaths on that lake alone. Then in the St. Lawrence river the storm finished off its grim mission by wrecking the steam collier Bridgeport, accounting for forty-four more lives.

According to the weather books, the most destructive storms in the lake region come from the southwest, although the wind may not be blowing from the southwest at any time during their visit. These storms appear first on the southeast slopes of the Rockies and the western Gulf of Mexico. Unlike the usual course of weather in the United States, which habitually travels eastward from the Pacific ocean to the Atlantic, these bad storms are of tropical, sometimes West Indian, origin.

In the matter-of-fact language of the weather bureau: "As the storm center approaches the middle Mississippi or Ohio rivers the barometer falls rapidly and the wind gradually increases to gale force. . . . The gales that attend these storms are particularly dangerous on the United States side of the Great Lakes, where they come as on-shore winds," an on-shore wind being stronger and attended by much bigger waves than an off-shore wind, because it has a free sweep.

According to the weather experts, "disturbances of the northwest type are seldom very severe or destructive over the

Serve Cheese Souffle, Gold Cake, and Spiced Coffee

By MARY MEADE

THE GOOD things in these pictures are, in turn, a three-layer gold cake with caramel frosting, a puffy old English cheese soufflé, and coffee with cinnamon spicing and whipped cream.

Get out three 8-inch layer cake pans for the gold cake. Grease them well and set them aside. Now get ready to mix the cake. Here's the recipe:

GOLD CAKE
(Three 8-inch layers)

3 cups sifted cake flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
5 egg yolks
½ cup irradiated evaporated milk
½ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, measure, and resift three times with baking powder and salt. Cream butter (or use another shortening if you like) and add sugar gradually, beating until fluffy and light. Add egg yolks, well beaten, and beat in well. Alternately add flour and milk and water, mixed, in small amounts, beating after each addition. Add vanilla and pour into the greased layer pans. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 25 minutes. Frost with caramel frosting.

CARAMEL FROSTING

2 cups brown sugar
⅔ cup irradiated evaporated milk (1 small can)
⅔ cup confectioners' sugar
Chopped nuts

Boil brown sugar and milk to soft ball stage, 234 degrees, and cool without stirring. Add sifted confectioners' sugar and beat until smooth and creamy. A little more milk may be needed to keep the frosting soft enough to spread easily. Chopped nuts may be beaten into the frosting or sprinkled over it after it has been spread on the cake.

Serve this cheese soufflé whenever you want to "wow" luncheon guests. It's such an imposing dish when brought to the table—all golden puffiness. And it's heavenly to eat.

OLD ENGLISH SOUFFLE

¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
1⅓ cups hot milk
1 teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne
½ pound old English cheese
6 eggs, separated

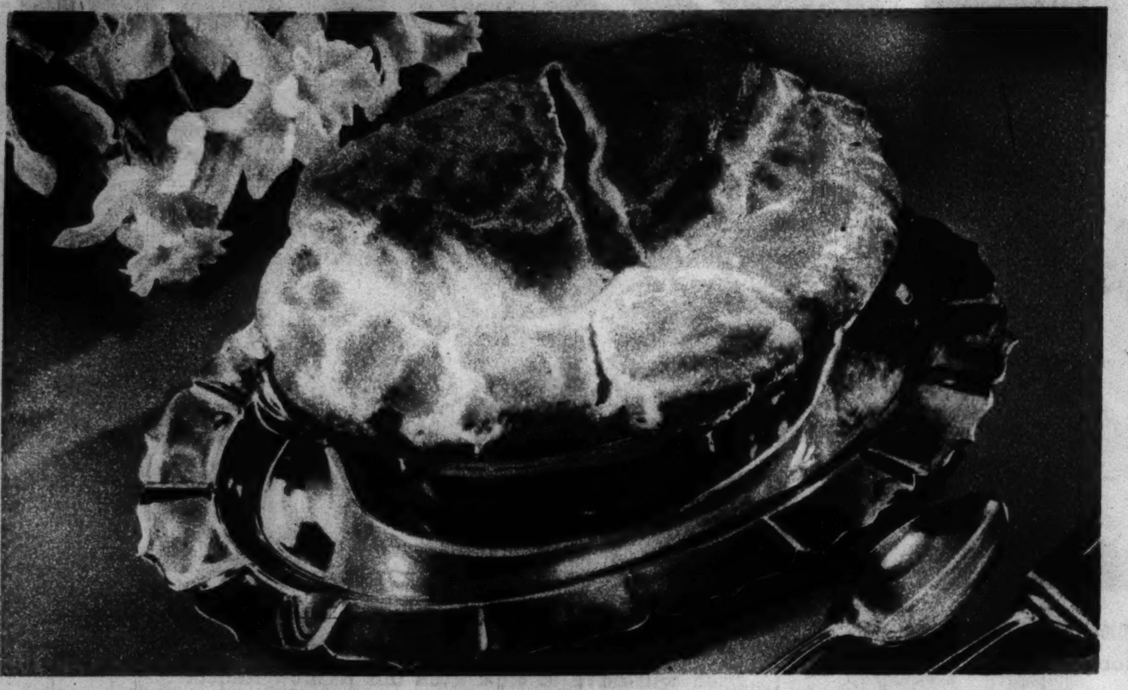
Make a sauce of butter, flour, milk, and seasonings. When thick and smooth remove from heat and add cheese, broken into pieces. Stir until cheese has melted. Add well beaten egg yolks and mix well. Cool and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a two-quart casserole and bake 1¼ hours in a slow oven, 300 degrees. Serve at once.

Coffee as it is here pictured is called coffee imperial.

COFFEE IMPERIAL

Pour freshly brewed coffee into a cup in which ¼ teaspoon of ground cinnamon has been placed. Top with a big spoonful of whipped cream and use cinnamon sticks as "muddlers."

Here's a new way to serve coffee—with cinnamon and whipped cream.



Puffy, golden brown, and flavored with a tangy cheese, this souffle is an imposing luncheon or supper dish.

Great Lakes Storms

lake region," but the southwest storms sometimes produce winds over the lakes as high as eighty miles an hour.

That the wind in its extremes can strike with the impact of a high-explosive shell sounds like gross exaggeration to those who have never felt the might of a hurricane or a tornado, but something to ponder is the established fact that one American tornado lifted an eighty-three-ton steel railway coach containing 117 passengers and dropped it eighty feet away.

Wind, of course, is caused by differences of air pressure at different places on the earth's surface. Most of these variations in pressure are caused either by the earth's motion or by the natural rising of warm air in warmer spots, which decreases the pressure in the relatively empty spaces left below and thus causes wind as cooler air closes in to fill the gaps.

The differences in high and low pressure are measured by barometers in terms of how many inches of mercury the air pressure can hold up in a vacuum tube. Thirty inches is about normal at sea level. Twenty-nine inches is dangerously low at this level and means air from great distances away soon will come to fill the relative emptiness, causing high winds and carrying storm clouds. A difference in pressure of only one-tenth of an inch between two points 100 miles apart is sufficient to cause a forty-mile gale at the latitude of Chicago.

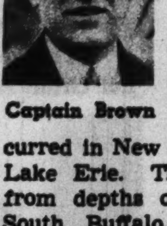
Farther north, because of the earth's motion, the wind would be less severe, and farther south more severe. Perhaps this is in some measure the reason why tropical storms, being close to the area of greatest motion on the earth's surface, are more violent than northern storms. Another factor is the density of warm air, which, being less than that of cold, allows it to move more easily.

Counteracting the above factors is the fact that in winter the highs and lows of air pressure are apt to be more extreme than in summer. For this reason, despite the coolness of the air, the wind is usually more violent in winter and storms more frequent. It is very confusing to try to figure out the effect of all these factors on the wind and weather, and even the most experienced weather experts can do it to only a partial degree. In winter and when highs and lows are extreme it is comparatively simple to predict whether it will be fair or stormy tomorrow, but when the highs and lows are nearly equal it is often impossible to tell which way the winds will blow or what the weather will do. At such times very slight differences of temperature on the earth's surface, or even smoke from a city, might affect the outcome.

In general the winds blow clockwise north of the equator and counterclockwise south of it. This is because of the motion of the earth, which cannot pull the air along with it as readily at the swift-moving equator as at the nearly stationary poles. But, of course, this motion is complicated by geographical differences like mountain ranges and oceans, and there are certain areas that tend always to be of lower pressure, such as the great "Icelandic low" in the North Atlantic, toward which the weather generally moves eastward across North America. Low pressure areas, as has been pointed out, usually mean bad weather, and they are attracted to the Great Lakes region in winter by the relative warmth of the water in winter (as compared to the quickly cooling land) with its upward currents of warming air and consequent lowered pressure at the surface. This is undoubtedly much of the reason for Captain Brown's woes as winter approaches each year.

Storms on the ocean are relatively easy to predict, because the surface of the earth is regular there, with little local variation of temperature, and a captain can tell from his barometer and the wind's direction just about where the low point of a storm is and which way it is moving. If a lee shore is within reach he can dodge the storm altogether.

But on the Great Lakes prediction of storms is greatly complicated by the surrounding land areas. The relative coolness of the shores in winter, for example, causes on-shore winds to drop their moisture on reaching shore—cold air cannot retain as much moisture as warm air—and that produces sudden local snowstorms and all manner of unpredictable complications. In October, 1930, a snow blizzard of this kind occurred in New York state along Lake Erie. The snow ranged from depths of six inches at South Buffalo to forty-eight inches at Eden, about a dozen miles away. At Angola "the roof of the hotel caved in because of the weight of the snow," yet on the shore of the lake only three miles away there was no snow at all and "the grass was green and the flowers in bloom."



Captain Brown

Weather on water is, of course, more extreme than weather on land, because, in addition to what the sky and the air are doing, the surface shows the weather also, and in the case of a storm the surface expression, or waves, is more to be feared than the wind which produces it. In winter this is even more true, for not only is the wind apt to produce larger waves, but they actually are harder. Water reaches it maximum density (or smallest volume) at about 39 degrees Fahrenheit, which is close to the winter temperature of water on the Great Lakes, and therefore it is literally true that the winter waves pack a more wicked wallop for their size than the summer waves.

Hail, contrary to some people's belief, is not a winter menace. It is never known in winter or at night, and it can be produced only by thunderstorms which are preceded by high and violent drafts of air in which raindrops can be suspended until they have frozen in the subfreezing temperature of a high altitude. Sometimes the hailstones accumulate more water while falling down through the lower rain, then are relifted by updrafts until the added water freezes, then fall again, bigger than before. If the updrafts of air are violent enough this circulating process can go on until the stones are dangerously large, and hailstones bigger than baseballs have been known to fall in the Great Lakes region during summer thunderstorms.

Hail should not be confused with sleet, which occurs in cold weather but whose frozen particles do not exceed raindrops in size.

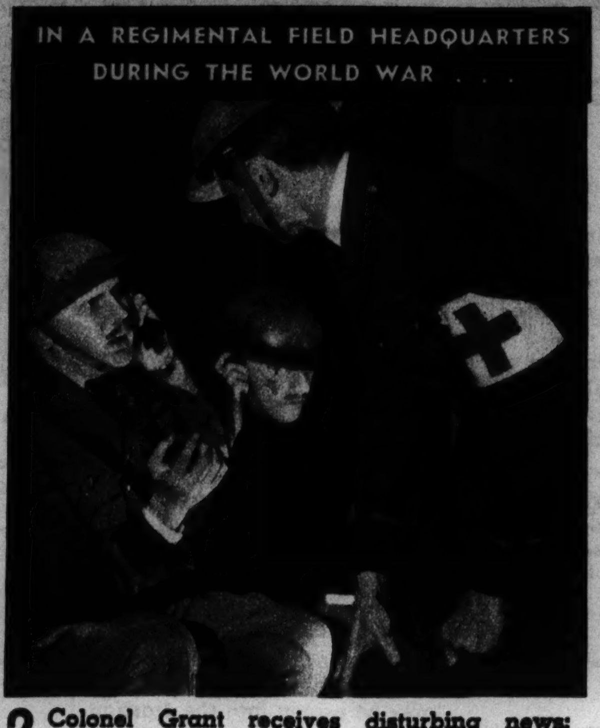
At Duluth, Minn., on June 10, 1929, a hailstone was found to measure sixty cubic inches in size and to weigh twelve ounces, which is more than twice the weight of a baseball and heavy enough to fall through a shingled roof or to kill a horse.

Fog, perhaps the greatest menace of all to Great Lakes shipping, is described in weather books as being caused by damp air becoming too cool to retain its moisture. If air is damp, no matter how clear it may look to the naked eye, a sudden fall in temperature—even of only a degree or two—may suddenly produce fog in the path of a ship and cause disaster.

That it takes very little moisture to make dense fog is evident from the opinion of an expert that there may be "scarcely a gallon of water in a cubic mile of it," and that a mere bucket of water in the form of fog can tie up New York harbor for days. Fog's peculiar quality may be further comprehended by the knowledge that there can be "as many as 20,000 particles of water in a cubic inch of it."

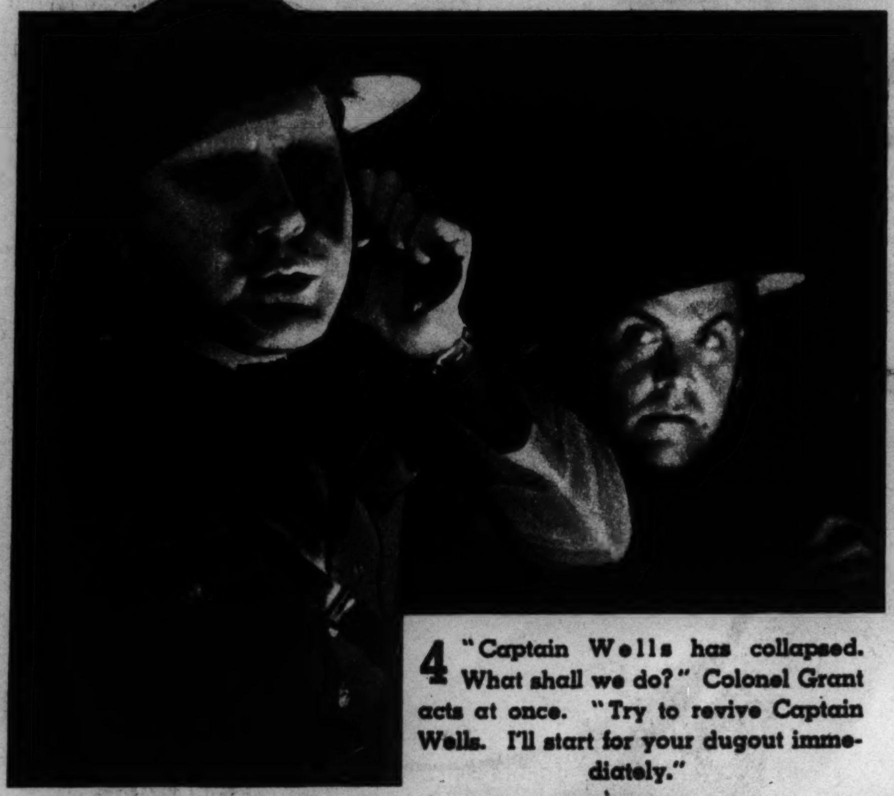
The Return of PETER QUILL

1 Peter Quill, whose genius and cunning have often served his country well, recalls to Gail Carson, secret bureau agent, the story of a miracle of patriotism.



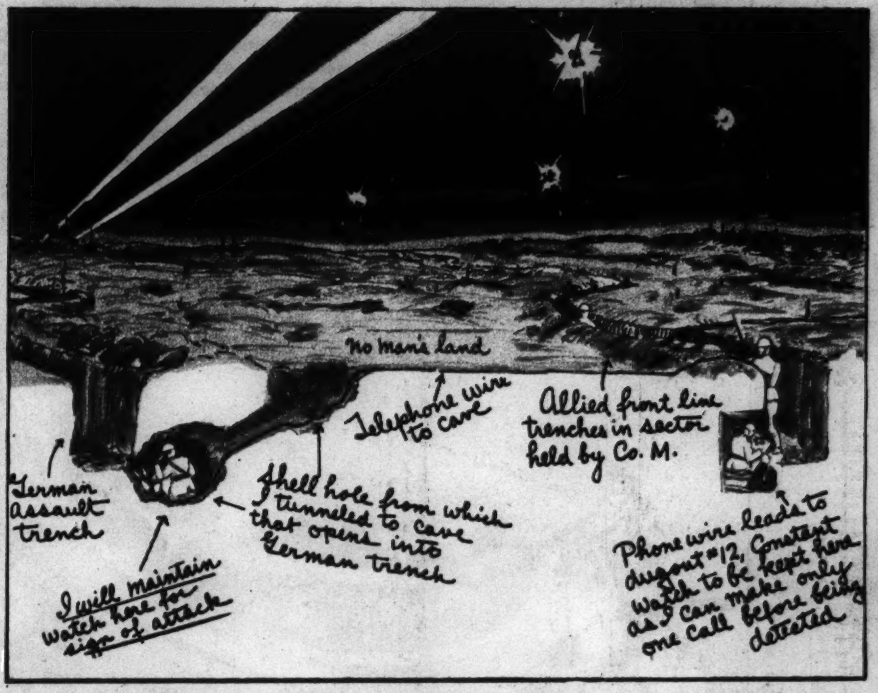
2 Colonel Grant receives disturbing news: "Captain Wells, commanding Company M, is seriously ill. Regimental surgeon recommends he be relieved. . . ."

3 "Company M's position must be held at all costs," Colonel Grant tells his aids. "It is the key to our defense against the big German push that according to all reports is due any hour. Captain Wells can't leave now. We are badly understaffed." . . . Another call interrupts him. . . .



4 "Captain Wells has collapsed. What shall we do?" Colonel Grant acts at once. "Try to revive Captain Wells. I'll start for your dugout immediately."

5 Illness has taken its toll, but Captain Wells' iron will carries on. He unfolds a daring plan to Colonel Grant. . . .



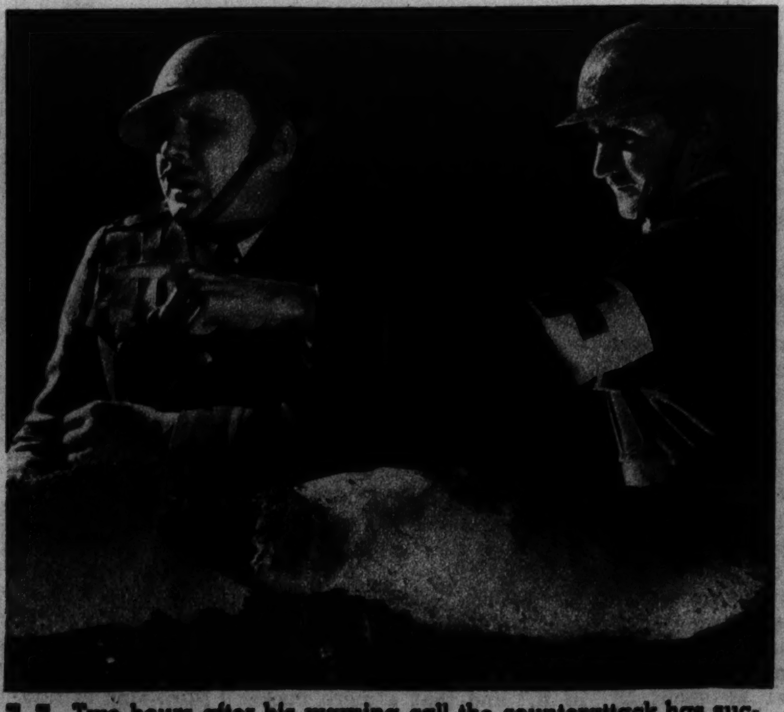
6 "I know I'm going to die, sir," he tells the colonel, "but I propose to sell my life dearly. Here is a plan of the front lines. The German push will have to start from this assault trench."

7 Captain Wells, under cover of darkness, takes his position in the little cave, undetected by the German sentries. . . .

8 Five days pass without word from Captain Wells. Has his illness defeated his plan? Then the colonel's faith is rewarded. The phone brings the captain's voice: "German troops are filing into the assault trench for an attack. . . ."

9 The news is relayed to headquarters, but the reply is disheartening. "The general is away. Hold your fire until we can reach him." Colonel Grant refuses to risk delay. "To hell with regulations! Open fire!"

10 Grant sees the enemy attack falter, then turn into retreat. A counterattack is ordered. "Over the top, Company M!" Grant shouts. "There may be a chance to save Captain Wells."



11 Two hours after his warning call the counterattack has succeeded and word comes of Captain Wells. "We found his body, sir," a field hospital attache reports, "BUT HE'S BEEN DEAD FIVE DAYS . . . !"

NEXT WEEK: THE RIDDLE OF THE RED IMPOSTOR

12 "And that," concludes Peter Quill, "is the story of a patriotism so intense and so indomitable that it overcame death itself when America's liberty and safety were at stake."

1 These are Heinkel 111K twin-motored bombers, best of Germany's three standard twin-motor bombers. With special engines similar planes have flown at more than 350 miles an hour. Germany is supposed to have large numbers of these all-metal ships with gun turrets and retractile landing gear. The machine gun in the nose turret is of a caliber equivalent to the American infantry rifle. The bombers are 73 feet from wing tip to wing tip, 57 feet long, and 12 feet high. Their Daimler-Benz V-12 liquid-cooled motors develop 1,070 horsepower for takeoff and provide a cruising range of 1,700 miles with a 3,000-pound load.

2 The pocket battleship Deutschland, Germany's first post-war bid for sea power. It combines the characteristics of big cruisers and small battleships, raising entirely new problems in naval strategy. It was the first ship of its size to have an electrically welded hull and to be propelled by Diesel engines. The belt armor was incorporated as part of the hull. Germany has built three of these ships, each with a speed of 26 knots. They mount six 11-inch guns which throw 670-pound projectiles a distance of 30,000 yards. In addition they carry eight 5.9-inch guns, six 4.1 anti-aircraft guns, and aircraft for reconnaissance purposes.

Polarization Makes Light Behave

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

ABOUT 270 years ago Christian Huygens, a Dutch astronomer and physicist, discovered the phenomenon of the polarization of light. But he was unable to explain it. Since his time, however, scientists have gone into the subject thoroughly and now are provided with the true whys and wherefores of the matter.

Today the subject is well understood in the field of applied optics. And polarization is being employed on an ever-increasing scale for everyday purposes, owing to the recent invention by Edwin H. Land of a light-polarizing substance that can be manufactured at a moderate cost.

Scientific explanations of polarization, nevertheless, are involved, replete with technical terms, and difficult for the layman to understand. For our purpose let us adhere to simple terms and plain comparisons. For even the most elemental understanding of the polarization of light it is necessary to think of light as moving in waves, which, in certain scientific opinion, it actually does. Light waves, unlike those which disturb the surface of a lake or a sea, vibrate in all planes at right angles to the path of the light.

To polarize this light, which is vibrating in every direction, it is necessary to pick out from it only the vibrations that, let us say, lie parallel in a vertical direction. Polarization means, in simplest terms, arranging as to poles. When we pick out from the confusion of light vibrations flashing in every which direction only those that are vertically parallel we are arranging the light as to poles—in other words, polarizing it.

In order to simplify the subject, suppose we think of the path of light as a rope, with one end tied down and the other left free in our hands. We can whirl and jerk this free end of rope in any direction and cause waves to travel toward the tied end. The rope in this case has not been polarized. But let us run the rope through an opening in a picket fence. When we whirl and jerk the loose end only the vertical waves travel to the tied end. All others are halted at the fence opening. The waves that go through the fence are polarized.

Various substances have been found that will polarize light just as the picket fence polarizes the waves of a rope, but in nearly all cases these substances, such as glass prisms, crystals, and the like, are too expensive or too cumbersome to be put to ordinary commercial uses. It was only with Mr. Land's invention of a substance termed Polaroid light control film that the world has been provided with inexpensive polarizing agents that can be put to practical uses.

What, one may ask, are the practical uses to which a polarizing agent may be put? The answer is too big a one to be contained in an article of this length and this nature. Innumerable are the advantages of polarized light and countless are its uses. In fact, the manufacturers of Polaroid film confess themselves that they have only begun to explore the fields which their product promises to open for commercial enterprise, have only begun to develop the applications as they appear.

Some common uses of Polaroid film involve:

Its application to the automobile. By the use of Polaroid filters on head lamp lenses and on windshields the glare of lights of approaching cars at night may be eliminated. If the two cars which are passing each other thus are equipped the lights of neither throws glare into the eyes of the opposite driver. This application is getting the attention of Mr. Land and his laboratory associates.

Its application to photography. By the use of a polarizing filter on a camera reflections are cleared away from the subject photographed and the sky is darkened without a change of color values.

Its application to glasses. A person wearing polarized glasses is able to look right through a reflection. This enables a fisherman to look through a glare on the water and see fish below the surface, a yachtsman to see a dangerous shoal or a floating obstruction.

Its application to the motion pictures. A moviegoer provided with a pair of polarized glasses may view a three-dimensional film in full colors. In Polaroid three-dimensional movies the camera looks at the scene just as a pair of human eyes would look at it and takes two simultaneous views of it. In showing, the two views are projected on the same screen, one over the other. Each image is projected through a Polaroid filter set in such a way that the left eye image reaches the screen with its light vibrations vertical, the right eye image with vibrations horizontal. The audience, supplied with Polaroid glasses with the lenses set at corresponding angles, sees one image with the left eye and the other with the right. Each eye sees one picture only. The screen itself seems to disappear. The observer feels that he is looking through a great open window at real actors and actresses engaged in a real play right before him.

Its application to advertising, architecture, and stage designing. Polaroid film is the source of brilliant and variable colors. When a thin film of mica or cellophane is placed between two Polaroid sheets, brilliant colors appear in the film. These colors are created by the withdrawal of certain spectral components of white light by the interference of light vibrations occurring at the second Polaroid. They may be changed by using different thicknesses of film, by rotating either of the pieces of Polaroid, or simply by changing the point of view. It is easy to see that there are innumerable possibilities in this manipulation, which produces brilliant colors that always are in harmony with each other and which may be instantly changed so easily. By using a simple mechanical motion device to turn one of the pieces of Polaroid the color scheme of the entire design may be made to change smoothly to the complementary color scheme four times during each rotation.

Besides all these uses, Polaroid is valuable to the engineer and machine designer as a means of locating and measuring the stresses in model structures. It helps the manufacturer and buyer of glassware to locate otherwise invisible strains that cause untimely breakage. Reading lamps equipped with Polaroid filters provide glareless light. This new polarizing substance is a boon to science teachers, as it provides them with a means of demonstrating—spectacularly—the fundamental properties of light.

Polaroid, as you may have surmised already, is made up in sheet form. The Polaroid film itself is extremely thin and transparent and always is laminated between sheets of glass or heavy safety film. It is a flexible cellulosic sheet, unlimited in area, in which are embedded some thousand billion crystals per square inch, all parallel.

It is these microscopic crystals in the film that do the work. All lying parallel, they serve to arrange in the same plane the light that passes through them, just as the opening in the picket fence arranged in the same plane the waves of the rope. It is this arrangement of the vibrations in one plane that makes them controlable, for when a second piece of Polaroid is placed in the path of the light with its crystal parallels at right angles to those of the first piece the vibrations cannot pass and no light gets through.

Polaroid made up into eyeglasses thus is capable of controling or stopping reflected glare. A thin sheet of the material is laminated between two pieces of glass to make the lens. The crystals in the lens form the optical slits through which only polarized light passes. The glare on water is light vibrating in a horizontal plane. The crystals in Polaroid glasses are set vertically parallel. The horizontal glare of the water is stopped. Even tubular gun sights equipped with Polaroid filters now are on the market.

For application to automobile illumination the Polaroid in the windshield and that in the car's headlights are keyed together. That is, the crystals of the polarizing substance in both the lamps and the windshield are set at 45 degrees from perpendicular. The driver of the car has perfect vision and perfect lighting ahead.

Now let us assume that all other cars on the road are thus equipped. The driver of the first car sees another car coming toward him, but he sees no headlight glare at all—just a gentle glow of light. The parallel crystals in the other fellow's headlights, being set at the same angle as those on the first machine, are therefore at right angles to those of the first car when the two cars are facing.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

In the Spring the Dog Owner's Fancy Turns to Thoughts of Training

ALTHOUGH spring may mean warmer weather, more fun out of doors, the promise of vacations, and many other things to the average American, to the dog fancier interested in field trials or the fun of hunting with sporting breeds the season should be a reminder that it's time to start training a gun dog for fall use.

Dogs that are old enough for training must be started at this season if they are to be ready for their first trips afield or for their debut in field trials next fall. They must continue in "school" right through the summer.

All too often field enthusiasts and hunters wait until just a few weeks before the start of the fall hunting and field trial season to look for a trained dog. A worse time could hardly be chosen. It's too late to take a young dog and train it, and the ones that have been trained and may be bought naturally command higher prices than they do in the spring.

The one market that never seems to overstocked is the one that produces good gun dogs. There are several reasons for this. In the first place, the increase in the number of field trials in the United States has created a demand for gun dogs of all breeds. (It's especially true of springer spaniels.) Secondly, there are new fanciers coming into the field who are buying many of the best bird dogs. Then, too, the superlative work of certain breeds in field trials has created a heavy demand for that type of dog, so many breeders are getting more particular about the stock they want for their kennels and are constantly gleaning the field.

The sporting dog situation has been a boon for English breeders. Unable to find dogs in this country with speed, good noses, and the other characteristics that make for field trial winners, many American fanciers are sending to England for their dogs. This is especially true right now of springer spaniels and Labradors. The increase in interest in springers is one of the big developments in the dog world in the last ten years. The American Kennel club recently commented on this situation. It credits field trials with this new and healthy interest in the springer, which because of its general all-around utility, excellent disposition, and good looks is winning many new friends every year. Spaniel field trial clubs are increasing, and every new club and every new trial means more converts to the breed.

Field trials also are responsible to a large extent for the heavy interest now being shown by sportsmen everywhere in the Chesapeake Bay and the Labrador retrievers. Some parts of the United States that never had field trials for retrievers now hold not one but a half dozen during the fall. Until the last few years the eastern seaboard was the center of interest in

This dachshund, Reiger von Koenigs-Marck, poses for the camera as if it had received special training for that purpose.

Chesapeakes and Labradors. Then the middle west began to focus attention on these duck dogs. The resultant demand for fast, obedient dogs that have style, dash, and the ability to take training quickly was great.

One result of all this interest in gun dogs has been the development of training classes for owners. Although the pointer and setter enthusiasts still rely mainly on trainers to develop their dogs, for these breeds need lots of training room and game for their education, spaniel owners can go to school and learn how to train their dogs close to home. The training class idea, which was designed to teach the owner how to train his own dog and was originally started by the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois, has proved so popular in the Mississippi valley that the system has been carried into other states. Scores of springer owners now are going to school outdoors to learn how to train their own dogs. Ten years ago this system was unheard of.

But in spite of classes and increased interest in breeding more and better gun dogs, there still is a shortage of good trained dogs. So the wise sportsman who wants a canine hunting pal for next fall starts now to find his dog.

DOG NOTES

Kennel buildings constructed by American dog owners usually are considered among the finest to be found any place in the world. Every modern housing facility developed in this country in the last decade has been applied to kennels as well as to homes.

Heat always has been one of the important enemies of the dog, therefore air conditioning of kennel buildings is becoming increasingly popular, especially in those parts of the country that have very hot summers or protracted rainy seasons.

Fire prevention is another feature of modern American kennels. Automatic fire extinguishers are used extensively. Some of the large kennels have completely equipped canine hospitals, and many of them have isolated buildings where ailing dogs are housed.

Thirteen years ago the cocker spaniel was in ninth place behind the Airedale in American Kennel club registrations. Today the German shepherd is tied with the Airedale for nineteenth place and the cocker the leader with more than 16,000 registrations last year.

The Kuvasz is a working breed developed in Hungary. It's a strong, powerful dog, standing 28 inches at the shoulder. This specimen is Champion Gilda of Romance.

NIGHT CLERK

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1939, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

The Misses Pratt, Mamie and Sadie, year-around guests, returning from a lecture on "What shall we do about the Berlin-Rome axis?" Pause at the desk to make a necessary complaint. It seems that Miss McNeafie took her big, fierce dog (a cocker) into the passenger elevator, and she must be made to use the service elevator.

Showing the boys who come back to the hotel in the small hours pretty well lit up after a big evening. They want to tell the night clerk (aroused from a delightful siesta) all their secrets. The boy in the center got the wrong hat at the night club. He wants sympathy.

Apartment hotel manager unwillingly taking over night clerk's job, while night clerk, who fell by the wayside, is sobering up.

Supplies are locked up, but Mr. Posner, the obliging night clerk, will see that the chilly guest has an extra blanket, even if it means stripping a blanket from a bed in a vacant room. But the room isn't vacant and Mr. Posner is mortified almost to death!

Night clerk of small hotel being requested to call departing guest at 5:30 A. M. Wonders how he can possibly wake himself up at that hour, which is his usual time for shut-eye.

Girl guest who thinks she smells smoke—at least three times a week—notifying the office. Night clerks are crazy about her.

"There's a man swearing and yelling something awful out in the street. Will you please go and stop him, because we can't sleep a wink!"

Day clerk and night clerk. A day clerk is hired for roguish charm and all that sort of thing. But a night clerk is picked for sterner qualities, such as maternal instinct, which fit him to guard the sleeping guests.

Flight Makes Right

Newest Clipper Evolved Only After Many Tests

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE BOEING flying boat—known now as the Pan American Airways trans-Atlantic Clipper—is a classic example of the fact that, despite all the advances made in the knowledge of aerodynamics, the best engineers do not know exactly how any new airplane will handle in the air until it is flown. And they do not always know in advance how to make their airplanes as stable and controlable through a wide speed range as they would desire.

This definitly is not a criticism of the engineers. They are the first to admit that their knowledge is not complete and static. The science of aviation still is growing and expanding. With each new type of airplane comes a newer and fuller understanding of the natural laws governing flight. And as the laws are clearly defined the engineers are able to design craft of ever-increasing efficiency.

The Boeing plane is mentioned here because of the availability of clear photographs to illustrate the changes that were made in the airplane's tail during the flight testing period at the factory. It is only fair to point out that these changes in the plane's tail group did take place during the testing period, long before it was offered for passenger service.

When the Boeing 314 first came out of the final assembly cradle beside one of the Puget sound inlets it had a single vertical fin and rudder, as in illustration No. 3. The area of this fin was small in relation to the huge size of the boat. Observers who merely saw pictures of the airplane prior to flight noted this fact and predicted that this "keel" area, which is the essential control surface to keep the plane on an even course, was insufficient.

The Boeing engineers also were not unaware of the apparent inadequacy of the keel area for their huge plane, but because this fin had seemed sufficiently large in their wind tunnel tests they turned the plane over to the flight test crews. Meanwhile, however, they designed and stressed a twin type of fin and rudder that readily might be substituted if necessary.

Test Pilot Eddie Allen, who had charge of flying the big Boeing, taxied the 82½-ton plane on the sound and even hopped it into the air for short flights. Then he reported that more keel surface was needed, and the ship went back to the Boeing plant for changes.

The second time it came out it had the tail shown in illustration No. 2. This time the single fin above the hull had been removed. In its place were two fins and rudders placed at the tips of the horizontal stabilizer and elevators. This is the type of tail that long has trademarked Lockheed airplanes.

It is more efficient than the single fin, because the double stabilizers and rudders are out in the slip streams of the outboard motors. Furthermore, there is a certain amount of compression in the air flow between the two fins, and this makes for exceptional stability in rough air or normal flight.

Allen tested the ship with the twin tail and reported that while there was improvement, still more stability would be an excellent characteristic. And so the plane went back to the plant a third time. When it reappeared it had the triple fin arrangement and double rudders as in picture No. 1.

This time the engineers reinstalled the original fin between the two double fins. The central keel surface was only a vertical stabilizer, however, and it had no hinged rudder surface. The rudders were part of the outer vertical tail surfaces. With this arrangement, Allen reported, the big boat is perfectly stable—so much so that it has been flown for as long as five minutes at a time "hands off" without deviating a degree in its course.

At the same time, Allen says, the efficient rudders are able to turn the big plane at an exceptionally rapid rate. The machine is both stable and maneuverable to an unusual degree—an achievement seldom reached in airplanes that tend to be either too stable or much too tricky and maneuverable. It might also be pointed out here that the Boeing engineers in dealing with their boat undoubtedly profited by the experience of the Douglas Aircraft company designers who were turning out the DC-4 at the same time the 314 was constructed.

The Douglas crew had experienced difficulties in obtaining the degree of stability they sought in their two previous airliners, the DC-2 and the DC-3. In the latter machine they cured the trouble by adding an additional amount of fin area to the vertical stabilizer. And, deciding in the early stages of the DC-4 to cure this trouble at its source, they designed the tail of the DC-4 with a central fin and two outer fins with rudders.

Federal Housing

Even this small theoretical loss is more than offset by the saving in municipal services due to the elimination of slum areas and by the economic gains conferred upon business and the whole community by an enduring public improvement."

USHA critics counter with the argument that the present loss from tax exemption is only a starter and will increase as the program goes farther. They argue, too, that the basic principle involved is utterly unsound regardless of the amount—the principle of constantly increasing the area of property that is free from taxes and thus placing an ever-growing expense burden on private property owners, who are required to pay their taxes.

Critics also point out that in many cases USHA projects are being built on vacant land and no immediate slum clearance is accomplished to help the city.

The USHA's Chicago South Park Garden apartments, a Negro project now in the blueprint stage, will be tax exempt. Instead of taxes the Chicago Housing authority, administering the project, will pay 3 per cent of the shelter rent to the city. This is estimated to be less than one-seventh of the tax rate paid by private property owners.

Estimates by the USHA now call for a monthly rate of $4.50 for shelter rent, without the service charge for utilities. The service charge now in effect for other federal housing projects in Chicago would boost the rental to $6.37 a room.

Based on the proposed average size of 4.5 rooms per dwelling unit, the average rental would come to $28.67 a month, or $344 a year. For families with incomes of $600, $700, and $800 a year this naturally does not look like low-rent housing.

Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the Chicago Housing authority, says that the published USHA estimates for the Negro project are "just estimates," which will probably be revised when the apartments are actually built. She predicts that the CHA will build the apartments at considerably lower cost than the estimated cost of $5,643 per family unit reported by the USHA.

The prediction that preliminary cost estimates will prove too high may seem somewhat dubious to any family that has tried a hand at building a house. It seems dubious also in the light of the PWA housing extravaganza.

The present USHA program has committed the American people to a tax bill for direct subsidies of more than two billion dollars. Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.), who sponsored the housing act of 1937, now wants to double the borrowing power of the USHA and has proposed in congress an amendment calling for this change.

Doubling the USHA's borrowing power would in turn double the housing subsidies that must be paid for by taxpayers, making the total subsidy four billion. It would double the tax loss to the cities because of the tax exemption of federal housing projects. It would double the cost of the "low-cost housing" program, which so far has apparently failed to reach down to help the "ill housed third" whom it was supposed to benefit.

NOW—EXTRA "SKIN-VITAMIN" IN A FAMOUS POWDER BASE*

Now Pond's Vanishing Cream brings extra skin care. Pond's contains Vitamin A, the "skin-vitamin" necessary to skin health. In hospitals, scientists found that wounds and burns healed quicker when "skin-vitamin" was applied to them. Same jars. Same labels. Same prices.

*Statements concerning the effects of the "skin-vitamin" applied to the skin are based upon medical literature and tests on the skin of animals following an accepted laboratory method.

FOR SKIN IRRITATIONS

"There's a new month on my calendar—"

"Remember how I used to be, Carol? Forever letting down my friends . . . breaking dates and missing appointments . . . staying miserably at home several days each month — because I thought I had to!"

"Then you made me see how much I was missing by doing nothing to relieve menstrual pain — really robbing myself of a full month of living every year. That was the time when you told me about Midol."

"I could bless you for it today! Why, if it weren't for Midol, I'd be at home right now. Thanks to you both, there's a new month on my calendar — an extra month of joyful and active living!"

DOCTORS know that severe or prolonged functional periodic pain is not natural to most women. Now thousands of women have discovered much of it is unnecessary. For unless there is some organic disorder calling for a physician's attention, most of those who try Midol find it brings swift relief from such suffering.

Midol is made for women for this sole purpose. A few Midol tablets should see you serenely through your worst day. Try Midol; discover for yourself, as many women have done, that it's easy to keep going and still keep comfortable! Your druggist has Midol in trim and economical aluminum cases to tuck in purse or pocket.

Smith SMART SHOES

ARE YOURS PERSONALLY . . . At the First Step
They Need No Breaking In!

Ball players will tell you it's no fun to break in a glove, that a new one isn't much good until it is broken in. That's why they hang onto their old gloves year after year. Perhaps you feel the same way about shoes . . . probably because you didn't know that it's no longer necessary to go through the unpleasant job of breaking them in — not if they're Smith Shoes!

Smith Shoes are crafted to be enjoyed at the first step. Inside and out, from toe to heel, they are slowly, carefully shaped over exclusive lasts by the hands of Smith's craftsmen. Their proud boast is that they don't know how to make shoes in a hurry and their skill has made Smith Shoes the yardstick by which all fine shoes are measured. Let your Smith Shoe dealer fit you properly in a pair tomorrow morning!

To experienced shoe men 88 Tan Hickory Calf and Black Alpine Calf are leathers that command premium prices. Fashioned over an exceptionally comfortable Smith last designed to please men of conservative, though modern tastes. Tan, No. 202, Black, No. 402.

KEEP THIS IN MIND
When You Want to Relieve Common Pain Quickly

These Pictures Show You Clearly Why Genuine Bayer Aspirin offers such Rapid Relief from Headache, Rheumatic and Neuralgic Pain

Try This Way Known to Thousands—Then, if Pain is Not Eased Quickly, See your Family Doctor

EVERYONE who takes aspirin should study the pictures above.

They tell you clearly why thousands always insist on getting genuine BAYER Aspirin when they seek fast relief from the pains of neuritis, neuralgia, rheumatism or headache.

Reason for Fast Relief

Your own eyes can see how genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets begin to dissolve almost instantly they touch moisture. Drop a genuine BAYER Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Watch it start to disintegrate and dissolve often before it touches bottom.

Thus—because they disintegrate almost instantly, BAYER Aspirin tablets are ready to go to work promptly to bring relief from pain.

If you suffer from headache or other common pain — rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia — keep in mind this "quick-disintegrating, quick-relieving" property of Bayer Aspirin. Especially if you want relief in a hurry.

For the way a Bayer Aspirin tablet works in a glass of water is the way it works when you take it. It starts to dissolve at once, hence is ready to "take hold" of the average pain or headache within a few minutes.

Get the Genuine

When you buy, be sure you get genuine BAYER Aspirin — by asking for it by its full name "Bayer Aspirin" — not by the name "aspirin" alone.

To protect yourself from substitutes, see that the name BAYER is clearly stamped in the form of a cross on every tablet you take. Then you'll know you're getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin millions use for quick relief.

SEE YOUR DOCTOR if you have frequent headaches. Often the cause can be found and corrected.

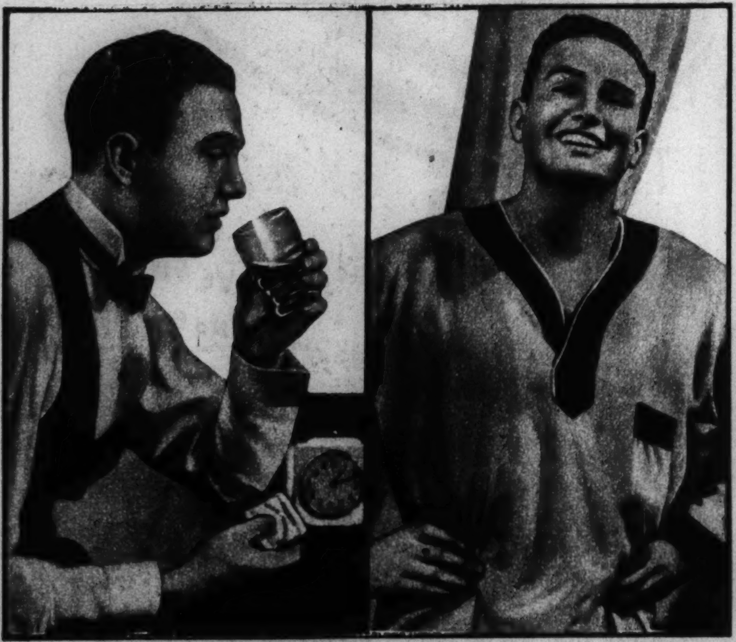
NEVER SLEEP ON AN "UPSET STOMACH"

Often neutralizing excess stomach acids can make the whole world smile in the morning



To relieve the effects of over-indulgence — escape "acid indigestion" that can ruin the whole next day — simply do this:

Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water — AT BEDTIME.

While you sleep, this wonderful alkalizer will be sweetening your stomach . . . easing the upset-feeling and nausea . . . helping to bring back a "normal" feeling. By morning you feel like a million.

Then — when you wake — take two more tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with the juice of a whole orange.

That is the quickest, simplest, easiest way to overcome the bad effects of too much eating, smoking or drinking. Thousands use it.

But — when you buy, make sure you get the Real Article. Never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone — always ask for "Phillips'" Milk of Magnesia — the kind many doctors endorse.

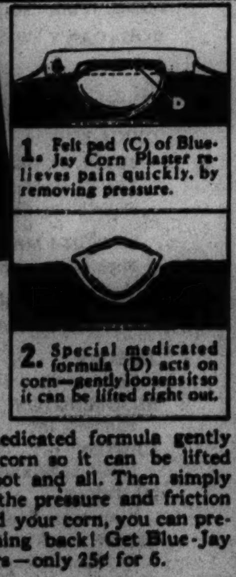
HERE'S HOW TO "Uncork" your corn ROOT AND ALL

QUICK RELIEF THIS EASY WAY



1. Felt pad (C) of Blue-Jay Corn Plaster relieves pain quickly, by removing pressure.

2. Special medicated formula (D) acts on corn—gently loosens it so it can be lifted right out.

CORNS are caused by pressure and friction—often become imbedded in your toe—press against sensitive nerves. But now it is easy to get quick relief. Just put a scientific Blue-Jay pad neatly over the corn—it relieves pain by removing pressure. The special Blue-Jay medicated formula gently loosens the corn so it can be lifted right out, root and all. Then simply by avoiding the pressure and friction which caused your corn, you can prevent its coming back! Get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters—only 25¢ for 6.

WHEN HEADACHE COMES, I THINK OF MY NERVES —TAKE BROMO-SELTZER

says TED HUSING

Voted the most popular radio sports announcer in a nation-wide poll, 8 years in a row, Ted Husing says: "Believe you me—I can't let a headache slow me down. So I take Bromo-Seltzer."

TENSE MOMENTS

COLUMBIA-NAVY racing on the Hudson, and Husing on the spot with a second-by-second account for millions of fans. "When headache has me on the spot," he points out—"I race for Bromo-Seltzer."

DOWN THE FAIRWAY goes the ingenious Husing. He follows the golf champions on a motorized lawn mower—is right there for the final putt! He says: "Got to be keen in my job. I've taken Bromo-Seltzer for years. It relieves headache fast, calms my nerves. Leaves me keener, ready to go."

HEADACHE strains your NERVES

When your head aches and throbs, your nervous system gets upset. You feel irritable, tense. That's why headache is best treated with a remedy made to do at least 2 things . . . ease PAIN fast, steady your NERVES. Bromo-Seltzer does both. Tests by a group of doctors have proved this.

Take Bromo-Seltzer!* It does more for you than many remedies do! At drugstores, soda fountains. Keep it at home!
